"Super Great, Super Senior 78," the senior class chant their personal cheer.

We made

it  happen in 1978

We were all separate persons, each carrying our own special traits, our own creativeness, our own qualities, just like any other group of students in the high schools throughout the U.S. But, as a whole, the ' 78 student body of Marshall High was a great aggregation of uniqueness, originality and individualism. We strived to prove that we were an exclusive assemblage, one having never been recognized before, and never to be witnessed again. We attempted to show that we were a body to tally different than any other. And 1978 was the year we made it happen.

We did it our way

We entered the school year responsibly keyed to bring forth a year that had never been seen before and would always be remembered. Our student body structure dispersed vibes that let everyone know that we were going to be like no other. The four classes began to bind together during the first days of September and we all remained close throughout the autumn, winter and spring seasons. Of course, there were the same class rivalries and the same "Seniors are stuck-up" and "Typical Freshmen" stereotype. But nevertheless, the 1977.78 student body carried an overall unity that was hard to find in most schools. We were fired up and proud as hell of our great assemblage of Mighty Redskins.

We were facing a changing environment

Throughout the school year the high school was pushed through a number of innovations, alternations, and some of us found ourselves clasping onto goals that were once unthought of. In the city with the money raised by the community, the new football field was finally underway after months of construction, plastering, and trimming.

In sports, the Mighty Redskin football team stomped over all their competitors and grabbed the Twin Valley title.
In academics, four new teachers spiffed up aging chores in the English, Language and Special Ed departments.

The spirit that roared throughout the school year was incredible. Never before had a body of students supported their teams and their name as we did. We were charged throughout the short months; throughout the dynamic football season and homecoming, the basketball season, the Spirit Festival, and we were still red-hot during the last few rowdy spring days. Pep assemblies with skits put on by various groups in the school and community blared that the mighty Redskins were number one and we'd leave the school each time electrified knowing that that was no less than true.

We made the best of it

We were not a special or superior group of individuals. We didn't have the fancy buttons of private schools, nor were we filed around like members of academies. And we definitely were more than a collection of social security numbers - we were credited as real, interesting, creative, powerful students that faced the fact that the year would never pass again. We had to make the best of it right then, not whenever we got around to it. So with a potent, cogent, energetic body of various roles and goals, we made it happen in 1978.

We Made It Happen

Stadium-a symbol of devotion

It wasn't just the school system that made things happen this year for MHS. There was an incredible community involvement in order to get the Redskin Athletic Field and facilities under way. Under the supervision of Hans Schuler and Ron Degraw, the city of Marshall donated $$ 79,000.00$ to go along with the $$ 150,000.00$ that the school district contributed to have the stadium built. The student body, classes 78 through 80, raised enough money, through a Marshall Redskin bumper sticker sale and a huge all-city car wash that was held in May, 1977, to buy the entire scoreboard system. In the first home game against Mason on September 9th, quarterback Larry Schuler ran for the historic first touchdown. And during halftime of the last home game against Albion, claimed as Dedication Night, the flag pole was dedicated to the late Steven E. Wasielewski who was a hard-hitting player his senior year in 1976. The construction of the field took from June, 1977 until October, 1977, and it still had some things to be finished, but it has been noted as one of, if not the best high school stadium in southern Michigan. The Marshall High School Athletic Field is a grand symbol of how beautiful the Marshall community really is.

On an early autumn morning the new stadium awaits the upcoming football season with only a few touch-ups needed.

The Varsity squad rejoices as quarterback Larry Schuler dives for the historic first touchdown on the new field.

Welcome

 to ## Redskin

Country

With the new extensive football field almost completed, Homecoming found itself going through a variety of alterations as the student body made a "Welcome to Redskin Country." The successful idea of class lawn display did away with the preceding floats that annually deteriorated during the Homecoming parade. The class lawn display offered the community a chance to leisurely observe the outcome of all the nights behind closed barn doors. The field was lit up on the Thursday night before the game against the Coldwater Cardinals for a vigorous pep rally and the bleacher stomping and mitten applauding roared throughout the nine evening events, which included hula-hooping, frisbee tossing and a class competition cheer that rocked the judges on the opposite side of the field. The burning of the "bird" brought the student spirit to a soaring high, while Homecoming queen Karen Wilbur, coach Ron Labadie, and guest speaker, John Aalbregste spoke in order to charge the crowd even more for the following night's game.

Assembled once again, classes battle for victories

The four separate classes congregated once again in the gymnasium on Friday afternoon with sly schemes for rival classes burning in their brains. The contending class strove for the finish lines throughout the afternoon in contests like gunnysack racing, football pushing, marshmellow eating and rope jumping. The "super seniors" ended up running away with nine of the thirteen first places, and they chowed their way to a victory in all three of the edible contests. Senior Jim Sobel made history during the assembly by consuming more than his share of Big Mac's as he chomped his way to his fourth Homecoming Big Mac eating victory. Like in the previous two years, the student body advanced their spirit by raising almost $$ 1,400$ in three short days for the United Fund Drive. The seniors brought in $$ 516.45$ with the juniors not very far behind with $$ 408.66$ : the sophomores contributed $$ 327.88$ and the freshmen brought in $141.22.

Redskins make it happen

During the pre-game cermonies on Friday night, the first Marshall Redskin Alumni Reception was held for all former MHS students, football players, cheerleaders, and band members in the high school gymnasium. Queen Karen Wilbur, escort Sam Landers and her court containing senior attendant and escort, Christy Klein and John Wuori, Junior attendant and escort, Lora Jason and Steve Rivard, sophomore attendant and escort, Peggy McDonagh and Jeff Weatherly, and freshman attendant and escort, Pam Baker and Dave Flynn remained together in the stands throughout the game. Out to the playing field, totem pole sections, one from each of the classes, were placed together to unite the student body into a spirited and proud whole that supported their unbeaten football team. The Mighty Redskins remained unbeaten as they walked over the Coldwater Cardinals 22.14 , with help from their "Electric Fence." During the game, the seniors were announced as the winning class for the Homecoming Week celebration with 139 points, the juniors grabbed second with 112 points, the sophomores found themselves third with 102 points and the freshmen rested at four th with 70 points. Students celebrated the victory as they danced to the sounds of Gabriel after the game, while couples enjoyed the music from Cyprus during the Semi-formal dance on the following

Friday night fever

Disco was the sound the country raved about this year and it was Disco that made the scene at Marshall High's informal dances. Students caught the "Night Fever" as they packed the dance floor after a stimulating Redskin game or maybe just a night on the town. The music of Rush, Frampton, Queen and hundreds of other eminent artists were reproduced and brought to life by bands like Strom, Cyprus Axis and the Show Biz Kids for the entertainment of the student body. These dances were sponsored by numerous clubs and organizations that were out to please the people (and sometimes make a profit). Not only were the sounds exciting Disco or good old rock and roll, but the '50's were also brought out in the Senior sponsored 50's dance. It was a great night full of peg legs, cigs, grease and pleats, and it was a change of pace, from the bump to the bunny hop. All the dances proved that we were "Staying Alive"' and making it happen with celebration.

Contesting

 but
rewarding

There is probably nothing that can depict the anxious but exalting feeling each senior girl holds for what seems like hours when she stands on the risers during the last few minutes of the Junior Miss Pageant. Her hands are hot and dripping wet, her legs are like rubber and her teeth are clenched in a nerve breaking tension, but she still manages to smile for the judges one last time. Though only one girl is chosen to compete in the following state pageants, every girl still feels as though she came through the long hours of workouts and practices triumphantly. On November 26th in the Marshall Middle School Auditorium, Cathy Clement was crowned Junior Miss, with Jane Sherman and Rena Lautzenheiser first and second runner-ups. Cathy was also given the Scholastic Award while Cindy Nobbs received the Jean Livingston Talent Award and Kathy Patterson was voted most congenial.

 victoryMany students and teachers received recognition throughout the school year. Marshall High's athletes were congratulated of a job well done at the J.V. and Varsity banquets where certificates and letters were awarded.

The Awards assembly was held differently this year. The Building Council was in charge of the assembly and they had all the award winners seated in the center of the gym. Each department gave out awards to students who did an outstanding job throughout the school year. Several seniors received scholarships which were presented at the assembly.

The Bill Holt Award was awarded again this year, but not only to a boy but a girl as well. Russ Smaston and Christy Klien were chosen as the winners of that award. We also should be proud of our teachers. Mr. Kelly was chosen as the outstanding Biology teacher in the state of

School is not all work

School, as most students will verify, can become a real drag. The monotony of lecture after lecture, paper after paper, can be mind flustering, for life is not all work and no play. To break the tension perıodically there were an assortment of assemblies to keep the student body in tune with the outer world as well as themselves. Navy bands, religious bands, trampolines, energy - we had entertainment from all four corners of the world, or state, and programming us to fire up for the different sport seasons were cheerleader skits, even Mom and Dad skits that involved the whole community in a bleacher stomping din. The assemblies of 1977-1978 made life at M.H.S. a little easier to live with.

Actors

sharpen skills

The MHS Theatre Department was very busy throughout the year, performing some of the most difficult works by famous playwriters. The theater department is very dedicated and they put in many hours to perform the plays as "On a Clear Day" written by Burton Lane and Lowe, "The Miracle Worker' by William Gibson, and "God's Favorite" written by Neil Simon.
"'On a Clear Day" starring Laura Brown was about a girl who makes flowers grow. Weird? Later, a psychiatrist finds out she is reincarnated. In the play she falls in love with her psychiatrist, but he is in love with her reincarnation.

The second play, "'The Miracle Worker' ' was about Helen Keller who was blind and de af since she was a baby. A woman named Annie Sullivan brought Helen out of her darkness.
The Miracle Worker starred Annie Karns as Helen Keller, and Anne Oren as Annie Sullivan.
"'God's Favorite" was about God who sent a messenger to Sidney Lipton, that he had been the chosen one.

Releasing

 of spirit
and pride

The student body made it happen in everything. Butwe were so keyed we couldn't allow ourselves only one celebration like that of Homecoming. We needed something to commemorate in order to let out our locked up spirit and pride during the winter. The Spirit Festival was held the last week in February in order to celebrate the last home basketball game. It was a fantastic success, with the entire student body, faculty and adminstrative participation during the assembly, the game, and the weekend dances. During the assembly the classes competed for points in events like the spider crawl, human bingo, Class Pyramid, and they also received points for attending the game. Everyone danced Friday to "Storm" after a victorious game over Hillsdale and on Saturday night they "jitter bugged'" it with the senior sponsored 50's dance. The class of '78 maintained their champion reputation by edging away with the victory position. They had also won the 1977 Winter Festival as Juniors and the 1977 Homecoming. They were followed closely by the Juniors, the Sophomores and Freshmen last.

Screwing around in front of the book store before the Spirit Festival assembly are Scoti Sargent, Lori Beattie, Forrest Tabor, Colleen Quade, Stacey Mundey, and Lori Llewellyn.

Childhood

Fantasies

Come to Life

Childhood fantasies came to life in May for seniors and juniors and their dates. The 1978 J -Hop, under the theme of "A Night of Mystical Magic," was an incredible reproduction of the fairy tales we've grown up with and adored all our lives. Conversing amongst Alice in Wonderland and the Mad Hatter, dancing beside Cinderalla's carriage, and strolling through a magical mystery, or the looking glass, were only a few of the fanciful things to do at the hop. After daydreaming in tuxes and gowns at the dance, dates could take in the movie "The Sting" at the Bogar, or get into a game of bowling at the Marshall Lanes. The juniors spent many hours of their evenings with staple guns, paints and paper in order to make their presentations for the senior class a memorable experience. Memorable it was, as we reminisced the characters of our past.

later

Hey folks, we sure are glad you're here, to share in the end of our senior year. We'll fill your eyes with sighs tonight so stick around Filled eyes they did, as the senior class produced 'Class Night 78' and made it one of the best ever. This year's production was made to entertain the community audience, not just the senior members involved in the production. But let it not be said that the seniors did not have a good time!

One will never forget the high that the class as a whole received while walking out on stage for the final number, singing arm-in-arm for the last time after hours upon hours of hard work.

Just one turn of a tassel

There's nothing more beautiful than an outdoor graduation under a pinklined sky, and the class of 1978 was the first in history to walk with pride in its red and black robes down the stretch of turf in the new football stadium.

A sense of very divine dignity swept over the graduating members as class representative John Robison spoke in behalf of his fellow classmates, and the assemblage had a moment to relax and enjoy itself as guest speaker Art Fettig contributed his fun filled speech.

Redskin champs put Marshall on the map

"'Marshall Redskins? Who are they? Where's Marshall?" Who would ever think that a team that held a record of 2.7 would wind up in the state playoffs two years later with a conquering 9.0 record? The 1977 Marshall Redskins strove for a goal of Twin Valley Championship and ended up with some of the highest Class $B$ rankings in the State. Finally something had placed Marshall on the map.

The Redskins ran over all their contenders, except Jackson Lumen Christi in the first playoff game. The Skins racked up many accomplishments, including being the first team in the history of our school to win nine games, and make it to the play-offs. The "Electric (De) Fence" helped carry out four shut outs, three of those in a row, and only gave 77 points throughout the season to their opponents. The "Skins" scored the most points, 241 , which is the second highest amount ever.

End Bob Phillips, guard Mike Darling, and quarterback Larry Schuler were nominated as the team tri-captains. These three plus halfback Greg Weath. erly were named to the All- Conference offensive team, while Darling and linebacker Russ Penning were named to the defensive team. Phillips and Darling were nominated captains to the entirety of the All-Conference team, also.

The Redskins not only captured the Twin Valley title but they were ranked second in the State by the Detroit Free Press, fourth by the Associated Press, and sixth by United Press International.

During the Awards Banquet, Roy Shepherd was selected Most Improved Player, and newcomer Kirk Brummler received the Oil Can Award for spirit, while Bob Phillips was named Most Valuable to the team.

The team's maturity and ability to work together well was what pulled them most of the way. According to Coach Labadie, "The greatest thing we had going for us in 1977 was the players. They believed that when they stepped on the field on Friday night they were going to win." Win they did, and they had the whole state talking about it.

There was nothing stopping the J.V. squadron this year as they maintained their perfect record. This team, last year as freshmen danced away with a fantastic rookie record of 6.0.1 and they kept their slate clean by defeating all eight of their contenders this year. ## Netters maintain reputation

Holding on to their victorious reputation, the girls tennis team continued to produce a satisfying season, with a record of 10-3. Like in previous years, they displayed their fine skills and their tough ambition, led by team captains Diana Berry and Christy Klein, they contended together as a team, not individuals out for self. glory. They took second in the overall standings and a third in the Twin Valley Meet. In this contest the first doubles team, Diana Berry and Helen Selee, won the entire event. The team came in second in the Regionals, with freshman Jenny Burns winning third singles. This high placement by the team qualified them for State Competition in which they ranked 17th in Michigan.
The Racquet team's Most Valuable Player award was graduating Diana Berry, and Martha Glotfelty received the Most Improved Player Award.

Swimmers splash on

 . againAgain, like in the past couple years, the girl tankers found themselves splashing against Class A and double A schools throughout the fall. And, again, this left the female fish with little discouragement for they came out with a tough 9.5 record at the end of the season. School records were broken during this year's strong demonstrations of speed and skill. Junior Deb Peekstock stroked through with a new 5:49.2 time for the 500 freestyle, and junior Sandy Irving set a new record in diving with 200.3 points.

Eight girls wound up in the State Meet at Central Michigan University, but only Deb Peekstock made a mark with an 11 th place in the 500 freestyle. Coach Les McCormick remarked that as a whole, the season was fairly successful. "We started as a young team and matured as the season went on. ## Ponies are looking good

The Marshall Cross Country ponies ended their fall season with a tremendous 11.2 record and some fantastic placings in state. They finished 2nd in the Twin Valley league behind Harper Creek who was 2nd in the state. They also placed 2nd in a tough battle at regionals which qualified the whole team for state. The Ponies finished in the top 20 Schools in the state with a 17 th placing. The team will be losing only one senior, but this guy was a great winner. Mark Blodger, who was Marshalls first all-state runner, has set four course records during his years on the team. He was all conference for three years, qualified for state three years, was regional champion in 1977 and he holds the school and course record at home at 15 minutes and 4 seconds. Although the team will lose Blodger, the future looks bright, for the upcoming J.V.'s won their conference. They also have Caroline Selee who is the first girl to run Marshall cross country, and she helped keep the team looking good.

On your mark, Get set, Go!

After a long and hard race, Dave Wood dreams about the Mountain Dew awaiting him.

Attempting to outstride his opponent, Todd Weidner kicks to gear.

Winners on the ## inside

The girl cagers lost six seniors and their head coach from their ' 76 squad, and before their season was half over, they found themselves trying to rebound out of a very deep hole. Under the coaching of their new head coach, Tom Duffy, and the leadership of their senior tri-captains, Wendee Karcher, Lori Jelinek, and Rena Laut zenheiser (who was also the team's Most Valuable Player), the team produced a sorrowful looking 3.13 season record. But their record says nothing of their enthusiasm and winning attitude. They may not have held a high notch on the Twin Valley ladder, but they were proud of their team and the school they stood for. They may not have participated in the excitement of the Districts or Regionals, but in all the games they did play, every girl gave 100\% effort for the team and made the games just as sensational as tournaments. The cagers may not have had outstanding records and statistics to show for the year's season, but they were still winners on the inside.

Successful

Both the boys and girls golf teams proved to be very successful this year, both having winning seasons.

The boys golf team ended their season with a $4-3$ record. They placed third in the league and ninth in regionals. This year's Most Valuable Player Award went to Jim Barr who also received the E. Lean Kay Award. Most Improved Player and the Marsh Nowlin Award went to Bob Thompson.

The girls team completed an impressive season with a $5 \cdot 1$ record. They placed third in the regionals and seventh in the state. The Most Improved Player Award went to Gloria Potter. The Most Valuable Award went to two girls, Deb Smith and Teresa VandenHeede. Deb was named to the All.Conference Team and Teresa took an Honorable Mention in the Twim Valley.

Both teams proved they too, are a part of what makes it happen at MHS.

confidence

Prospects looked very bad for the Redskins at the start of basketball season. With the loss of 4 graduated seniors and number one man Steve Heidenreich, things looked pretty dismal. The basketballers started out very slow, winning only one of their first seven, but after Christmas the squad proved that they could play real team basketball and won 3 of their last 4 . In districts against Comstock, the Redskins lost a close one, on the buzzer in overtime, 57.55 , and they ended the season with a 9.12 record. They grabbed 4 th place after battling Harper Creek and Pennfield for the position with a 7-7 T.V. record. They ended their season more confident than they began it.

Looking into the futureUnder the direction of the new head coach Tom Sowles, the J.V.'s got off to a fantastic start. Winning the first 4 of 5 games, the young 'skins showed how they really were. Made up primarily of Sophomores, the J.V.'s should prove to be a valuable asset on the Varsity squad next year. Completing the 1977.1978 season with a 12.8 record. Sophomore Brad Huffman placed second highest of all area J.V. scores.

The Marshall Freshmen didn't start off quite as well. Completing their first season of High school basketball, the freshmen attained a record of 4-9. With the guidance of coach John Walton, the frosh proved how much they wanted to learn. Improving all season long, the freshman hustlers should maintain Marshall's record of excellent J.V. teams next year.

Experienced wrestlers fight for spot in T.V.

An experienced wrestling squad finished their season with an even record of 8.7 under the head coaching of Ben Armstrong. Losing only two senior wrestlers to graduation, the Marshall Grapplers had the skill of an experienced team, yet they had problems going far in such a tough Twin Valley league. Nominated to the Twin Valley all conference second team were Ben Goodman, Terry Mahrle, Joe Rameriz, and Larry Mees, and at the Winter Sports award banquet Ben Goodman was voted Most Valuable, while Terry Mahrle and Henry Ramirez were awarded the Most Improved Players. Ron Falk deserved honors for the Fastest Pin which he made in 17 seconds.

Voted most valuable player was senior Lori Llewellyn, and Most Improved Gloria Potter. Senior Colleen Quada was named an all. tournament player at the Union City Tournament.

The Redskin JV's were more fortunate, winning and losing. Placing first at the Union City Tournament was the climax of their season. The JV's should prove to be even more valuable in the future.

1978 was a very good year for the Marshall swimmers, with their many outstanding accomplishments. The team only had a 4.7 record, but is was a young team, made up primarily of freshmen and sophomores, which gives coach Les McCormick a lot to look forward to. The fine men set seven new records and took a second placing in the Marshall Invitational, which was the high point of the season. Marshall sent Steve Ruch, Darrell Sims, Mitch Glanis, Roger Bedford, Carl Augustine, Alan Tribby, and Ben Harrington, to state. Harrington made waves by making a 6th in the 100 yd. back stroke, and being Marshall's first ALL-STATE swimmer. The swimming team has a lot coming its way in the future.

Last year, Barney Roy remarked that, "'the future looked better," and better it was for the boys track team raised their 1977 record of 5.6 to 1978 record of 9.4. The much stronger ponies sent not just one runner to state as last year, but eight, including John Robison, Mark Blodger, Dave Meade, Ed Wilbur, Jim Bredice, Craig Petty, Mike Whitney, and Russ Penning. The team built upon its strong points, primarily the 880 relay, the 1 mile relay, and the 2 mile run, and went far. The high point of the season was when Blodger set a record in the 2 mile by running it in $9: 36$. The ponies grew over the last year and promise to grow fur ther in the future.

Sophomores show outstanding performances

Coach Paul Rauth said that weather was a low point in the boy's tennis season this year, but there were good points, and a good outlook for the seasons in the future.

As far as high points go, Rauth said that beating Hastings was truly a victorious feeling. They never expected to beat Hastings by such a large margin. "Three of those matches split sets and all of those ended up going our way."

Mike Petroff showed an outstanding performance when he had the chance to play Bob Blaskavek. He expected to lose the match but it was an honor to play him. Petroff received the most improved player award for the netters.

Coach Paul Rauth said that he was looking forward to a good season in the next two years. He said there were many good performances by the sophomores who should contribute to the team and give them a winning season in the next years.

Concentrating on putting the ball in the right spot is John Wuori.

While trying to control his game in the strong wind, Dan Trubac volleys it low at the net.

Cheerleaders

 get us "fired-up"What is spring without flowers? Winter without snow? Redskin games without cheerleaders? How dull would an athletic event be without the chants of "Hey Gang"' and '"Warpath Beat'" crying from the sidelines. Cheerleaders are the ones who keep us fired up during those chilly football games and keep our toes tapping throughout basketball season. And it's the cheerleaders who keep the enthusiasm organized during class competition in assorted pep assemblies. With a little extra effort, the cheerleaders sponsored a dance after the victorious Homecoming game over Coldwater in order to maintain the high spirit of the student body.

Giving it what she's got. Connie Clifton urges the seniors to "'get rowdie.'

Sprinting his fastest during varsity competition, this redskin looks determined to reach base before being called out.

Phil Lasky gives a shout of joy after reaching home plate.

Sluggers improve quickly

The Varsity baseball team got off to a slow start, losing their first four out of five games. Under the direction of new head coach John Walton, the sluggers improved quickly to win the next four out of five games. With the guidance of seniors Gab Rivard, Bob Phillips, Greg Manke, Russ Smaston, Greg Weatherly, Eric Flynn, Marty Lasky, Chuck Curran, John Blagi, Darrell Sims, and Rick Yaudes, they ended the season with a 5.15 record.

Most Valuable Player was Gab Rivard with Junior Matt Delaney taking the most Improved Player Award.

The Redskin J.V. players had a better start. Made up primarily of sophomores, the junior varsity team showed a lot of potential. They should prove to be a valuable varsity team in the years to come.

In the pelting rain, varsity Redskins hide under the protection of the dugout's roof.

Band and Orchestra Featured in Festivals

The Orchestra started the year off with the solo and ensemble festival at Western University. Everyone who competed in this received a one or two division rating. Next came the District Band and Orchestra festival at Harper Creek where the Orchestra received a two division rating. This rating did not qualify them for state competition and did not entitle them to take the trip to Traverse City. To compensate for the loss of the trip, the Orchestra took a weekend to venture to Chicago where they visited the art Institute, Museum of Science and Industry, and the Chicago Symphony.

Tammy Hicks and Ariel Constantin received a 95\% proficiency level at State Solo and Ensemble. This high level proficiency contributed to Tammy being named to the honors orchestra.

The band also competed in the Solo and Ensemble and Harper Creek festivals. At Harper Creek, they received a first division rating and qualified them for Traverse City where they stayed at a ranch.

The band showed the Redskin spirit by playing at assemblies, basketball games, and football games, and marching in parades. The marching band is going to camp this summer in Crystalaire.

Choir travels to Washington

Choir, under the direction of Mr. Phillip Clissold, highlighted their year with a trip to Washington this spring. The various choirs sang in concerts and festivals. The Marshall singers were kept busy by singing at Schulers during Christmas and other places through the year.

The choirs ended their singing careers for the year with the annual pops concert. This concert is where each student puts his own special interest in music into a show and then they present it to the parents, students, and community.

Proving that they, too make it happen in the MHS, the music department is a large group of students who have attained outstanding achievements throughout recent history of the school year. The different sections, Band, Orchestra, and the separate choirs have achieved one or two ratings throughout the state in different festivals, and have entertained around the entire community. The band marched in parade and fired up the crowd at home football games. The choirs sang at various restaurants, and meetings. All three groups performed in the Christmas and Pops concerts. The Music department had a piece in the action that made it happen.

Let's give them the business

President Coolidge once stated,
"The business of America is business," so what better business is there to do business with than business? The entire nation is organized through it, and Marshall High's business department gives students the basics in office type work that are needed in the financial world. They can learn the prevalent facts of General Business, the rules to running office machines, the organization of Accounting and the necessary orderliness in Typing. They can even experience the atmosphere of a mock trial during Business Law class. The business world will never run obsolete, so getting involved in its classes is a fine decision.

Mark Casey disgustedly glances at the stock reports for Business Math.

Jill Craig, being her usual crazy self, takes time out of typing.

They have

 it all
for you

Whether you're interested in reading about space ships, speaking with precise grammar, writing poetry, studying psychology, or preparing a term paper, the English department has it all. All grades have Survey English which is divided into three levels - Academic, Survey, and Basic - where the students learn the basic concepts, like grammar and literature.

But there is also a wide variety of other courses to suit the individual's fancy. The pencraft courses include primary writing, which is an introduction to writing good papers, expository writing for preparing college-bound students, and creative writing for a more imaginative way of expressing oneself. There is also much reading taking place in classes such as Horror, Mystery and Science Fiction, and English or American Literature, Speech and General Psychology.

Figuratively speaking math's a way of life

There is one department at MHS that the entire world could not do without. The numbers and figures of the Math department are necessary in almost everything in life. What would a quarterback yell out before a play?

How could your mother do her shopping? Where would the whole male population be without it's 36-24.
36 ers? In the Math department a student can take classes from a slow pace of Algebra in Tech Math all the way to Trigonometry and calculus in MIA, and keep in touch with the dimensions of the world.

Sherri Flesner racks her brain in Mr. Elyea's Math class.

Russ Smaston gives Mike Maisner a helping hand in 4th year math.

Working hard on Algebra IV homework is Carol Sayers.

Asking for assistance with a complex math problem, Mitch Crank consults his teacher, Mr. Triece.

Without disturbing hard working Deb Anderson, Jody Hodoval helps Elaine Kresling out with a tough math problem.

Preparation for the nationIt would probably be impossible to carry on anywhere in this nation without some pre-graduation information about our country. But then on the other hand, it is almost impossible to pound history dates into every student's head each year. But the MHS Social Studies Department tries to make their classes not so dismal. Along with the required American History course for juniors, there are a variety of individual state, nation, world, and ancient history classes offered.

Senior Government and Economics prepares the graduating class for their steps into the world, whether it be on electing the president, or buying a house. The classes are also enlivened by interesting guest speakers from around the community and state.

The Social Studies Department does have variance. Where else in the school can you be burned, as in Roy's class, or gonged, like in Smouse's Gong Show? The department sufficiently prepares you for the open arms of the outside world.

Mr. Wuori assists Lori Cole with a note from the office.

Forest Tabor tries to be Mr. Smouses monkey as Ben Goodman looks on.

Eric Johnson beams as he prepares to enter History class.

Seniors take notes while discussing buying a house in Economics.

Escape from dullsville

Everyone experiences those moments during school when they just can't take it anymore; when they want to be anywhere but in a classroom with grimy books and dusty blackboards staring them in the face. In a language class, a student can retreat from the boring world of school and participate in countries across the ocean. Of course they do work, starting out with the basic grammar and vocabulary skills in their first year of Latin,

French, or Spanish, and then developing these skills with more intensified studies in courses after that. But language students can become part of the history of their foreign language classes. They cannot really escape from the reality of the classroom, but they can step into a more dramatic world that seems much more interesting than the school atmosphere filled with the grinding of pencils in sharpeners and the squeaking of chalk on the board.

Debaters

record

Maintaining their very good record, the 1977-78 debaters kept themselves rolling into district competition with Dale Fox, John Leblanc, Robin Gary and Phil Frye. Dale and John used their tactics and finished (first and second respectively) in the John S. Knight contendings and went on to State, where they closely lost a 2.1 decision to Warren Woods and placed 3rd. The novice received a hard earned 2nd place trophy at the Lathrup tournament.

The prospects toward the future look good for the Forensics team, for they did very well this year and they consist primarily of underclassmen. There were many trophy winners in the group. Laura Brown won 3rd for the first time in Kalamazoo. Cindy Myers made progress by reaching semis at three different tournaments and she finished 5th in one. At regionals, Jamie Brazas, Greg Robinson, Robin Gary, Javene Maurer, Jay Scovie and Lisa Langridge made alternate, while multiples placed 3 rd and 4 th. Randy Lake, Chris Miller, Laurie Lautenslager and Dave Chamberlain made it to regional competition, and Chris and Randy advanced to state, where Randy placed 11 th in serious speaking, and Chris finished 6th in informative speaking.

Finding your corner of expressionThere is a corner in MHS for the fantasies, dreams, and imaginations that are a substantial part in everyone.

In room 144 dreams immerge on paper, emotions pop out of weaving looms and adorations are formed in clay. No, this isn't a laboratory of aphrodisiacs. It's the art room, where a student can display self-expression during the first two years of Studió, and later in advance courses of their own desire. They can even learn to appreciate art and music history through the new Humanities class.

A different kind of expression can be utilized in the maintenance of the household primarily after a student leaves home. The Home-Ec department prepares it's students by giving them the preliminaries in cooking and sewing, coordinating home furnishings and child care in Design for Living. Then there are more advanced classes, such as foreign foods and child psychology, for the students who want to further their knowledge of revealing themselves within the hearth.

Essential

"What's wrong with the yearbook staff? They've got Driver's Ed. smooshed on the same page as Gym!'" Sure, these two departments may seem as diverse as cats and dogs, but they have one very mutual factor: they are both a MUST. Driver's

Education is necessary in order to drive before the age of eighteen, and all freshmen must take Physical Education, while seniors need two years of it to graduate.

Somewhere in their four years of schooling, seniors must have a two year combination of various Physical Ed. courses in order to complete the requirements for a diploma. The classes offered range from football and soccer to gymnastics and archery, figure analysis to Redskin Fitness. Freshmen must also take a manditory Health class during their year of Gym.

The Driver's Ed. class is offered to all students fifteen years of age or older for a semester. Although the students have six hours of driving time in neighboring cities and spend some class hours on "The Range," Driver's

Ed. is $85 \%$ knowledge based on the reading and required materials brought out in class. MHS has organized their program so well, it is one of the top ten in the state.

So the Yearbook Staff didn't blow it. They just placed the bare essentials together.

Just open a magic door

Like the fun house at the fair, the Industrial Wing has a manifold of doors in which almost anyone can open and discover a variety of elements that can be beneficial to his futurity. The courses are mostly for dexterious students, male or female, and are divided into two departments: General Shop and Agriculture.

Shop is based on construction and is broken down into four groups
Students fuse metal projects in Welding, learn carpentry skills in Woods, discover the concepts of electrical equipment in Electricity, and draw architectural layout designs for a home in Drafting. All these groups begin with primary classes in which a student works his way up to a more technical and progressive course. In the Agricultural classes, which are involved with the Future Farmers of America, there is a deep appreciation for the environmental surroundings. There are special classes in certain parts of the agriculture society, such as livestock science, landscaping, plant and soil science, and florticulture and gardening. So the Industrial Hall can be just like the fun house. Just open a magic door, and step into your destination.

Living ouł daydreams

When you were younger, were you one of those little kids who fantasized day in and day out about one day constructing a gigantic laboratory and working under the occupation label of "mad scientist?"' The science department can help fulfill those fantasies. After studying the basics of geology and astronomy in Earth Science, learning the concepts of living things in Life Science, or acquiring developing techniques in Photography, you can proceed into more progressive classes. Boil up chemical compositions in Chemistry, conquer the Universe in Physics, or catch an insanely "high"' in Aviation. Live out those childhood daydreams. Take a trip into the Science department and grasp a piece of those reveries you never executed.

Bob Goodman checks out a specimen that might conquer the universe.

Looking into the future

Although no year is an easy year in high school, the junior and senior years are the more brain busting of the four. It is in these two final years that students must really begin to worry about what their future holds. The Student Placement Service, which is run by Mr. Bill Josephson, is a program that helps students find employment through four different departments: 1. Co-op, which is learning and training for a job in a specific work field; 2 . finding fulltime job placement for graduating seniors; 3. gaining work experience from a particular job; and 4. locating part time jobs for students who would like to work.
The other program is Vocational Education (or Vo-Ed), in which through the counselors a student can obtain information on certain vocations while attending the vo-ed center in Battle Creek. There are general subjects such as Health, Construction and Communication, which are broken down into more specific fields. So, through these programs a student can take a look into the future and begin preparation for a better experience in life. Though many people don't realize it, MHS has two successful programs that help students prepare for their destiny.

Working

through the good and badSmoking in the restrooms, broken glass in the parking lot, teenage drunk driving - these are all real problems at any high school that can't be taken care of with the signature of the principal. It needs student involvement and awareness. So the Marshall High School Building Council was established two years ago with the idea of having representation from the entire school system.

The Council consists of six representatives from each class, six teachers, a counselor and an administrator. With Larry Schuler and Cindy Johnston as Senior and Junior cochairmen, Brian Burns as faculty chairman and Sharon Cubbons handling the secretarial duties, the Council has proved to be a great success. Of the problems that they dealt with, they took care of restoring the damaged restrooms at the school and they sent students to other schools on Exchange Days to help the council get cross-views on problems that our own school has. The Building Council also takes charge of the organization of Homecoming and the Winter Spirit Festival. These activities and the support from the administration, teachers and students have made the Building Council a very successful governing body.

Rewarding without payments

Communication is one thing that makes it all happen and we have a club at MHS that is far from deficient in getting their message across. The Marshall High Amateur Radio Club or informally, the Ham Radio Club has been in existence for four years and its purpose is to get students interested in radio operation, repairs, and functioning under emergencies. The club attended a Cross Roads Swap Festival on March 4th in which they sold and swapped new and used equipment with clubs from five different states. There is another club that helps us remember the way we were, and doesn't get nearly enough credit for the rough hours they spend during and after school working. The Photographing Club worked hard and did a tremendous job on color memory sets of athletic teams, undergraduate color pictures, and all the senior pictures in the Dial. They did a great job in all their work and didn't expect a pat on the back.

JA gives students

experience

Junior Achievement is an organization that gets high school students involved in the business experience. The entire body of students in JA are divided into several groups which are sponsored by local businesses or organizations, like State Farm, Eaton's, and Progressive Dynamics. Through these sponsors the separate groups capitalize, incorporate and manage their own business while they design, manufacture, and sell their products.

The organization meets once a week for two hours at Pierce School, which is where they do all their enterprise type work. Members attended Showdown ' 78 which is a trades fair where members from all over the South Central Michigan region check out the products from other companies. They also have awards for outstanding members at the end of the year. Even the members who do not accept awards receive a spirit of confidence.

Students receive

recognition

An organization that works to bring the achievements of outstanding high school students to the attention of their classmates, their parents, their community, and the colleges they plan to attend is the National Honor Society. By evaluating potential members on the basis of leadership, scholarship, character, and service to the school. Teachers, counselors, and administrators selected the 1978 members of the National Honor Society. The students obtained high grade point averages and showed devotion towards their work.

Leaders

amongst leaders

One thing you need to have to make anything happen is leadership, and The Future Farmers of America organization is one of the most conveyance developing programs in the school. Not only does the FFA build leadership, it promotes cooperation and citizenship as well. The Marshall Chapter has been successful with its ninety four members and it has a fantastic reputation among the other chapters in Michigan. The organization has had citrus and pecan sales, and has sent members to leadership camps, and also to state and national conventions in which several students received national honors. The entire chapter recently received a National Award for being one of the most outstanding chapters in Michigan at the National Convention in Kansas City. So they proved that they were leaders among the leaders.

It happens in French and Latin

Indeed, the two clubs on these pages have one thing in common; they both are made up of foreign language students. But the purposes of the French Club and Latin Club are totally different. The main intention of the French club, which was sponsored first by Kim Brown and then Mary Jane Harting, is to make money in order to have and enjoy French cultural activities, such as plays, restaurants, and art museums. They also planned trips to Chicago, French Canada, and Lake Michigan.

Led by Kendra Galberach, the Latin Club had different goals. Its main purpose is to serve the community, not in a soliciting manner, but in ways which are kind and come from the heart of the group. Of course, they put on various sales, such as candy canes and "slaves" and they sponsored a dance and the money was not for themselves but to be donated throughout the school and city so that community could benefit from the Latin

Club's spirit and loyalty.

With a flap of her wings, Mrs. Galberach attempts to get her class underway.

Well deserved rewards

With all the time that the Marshall Varsity athletes consume with tough workouts and practices and mindbending games, they deserve a little more relaxed activities that still help them maintain their nobility. The M-

Club which is sponsored by Ben Armstrong, is the club which keeps the varsity letter winners together throughout the school year. The members work at athletic events throughout the year, took charge of the basketball games concession stand, and helped shovel walks during the snow storm in February. With the money that they earned throughout the year, they journeyed to Echo Valley in the winter, and Cedar Point in the Spring.

Enter

at your ## own risk

Strange rumors are often started about what dwells beyond the door of the Journalism room during 5th hour. The sign on the door projects "We dare you to enter," some have questioned what mysterious happenings are taking place. Dancing lessons or the Mafia? Neither, actually we really do work on the yearbook, designing the layouts, counting the copy, and cropping the photos. But sometimes we do relax after a deadline has been met, just like any other student after a big test - it's all the same thing. We spend a great amount of out-of-school time on the book, but we have fun doing it.

Printing the copy on layouts Barb Jelinek concentrates on her sports deadline.

Contacting the community is one job Cindy Conner takes care of.

Interchange keeps MHS informed

Just like people need to know the facts about their city, state, nation, and other foreign peoples affairs, students at MHS need to know what's going on throughout the school. The members of the Interchange newspaper staff keep the body at Marshall High informed about the happenings during school and around town. With academic articles, witty stories, sports info and excellent snap shots, the Interchange livens the school monthly when the papers are passed out at the bookstore. The staff also raised the spirits in the school by sponsoring two dances to raise money for the Journal. ism room.

 in the spotlightThe class of '78 finally had the honor of stepping into the spotlight, and that meant that they had subliminal exposure and influence to the underclassmen. The seniors had to lead the rest of the student body throughout the year, and they knew that they had to make their final year their very best.

Getting the hang of things

The first step the seniors took into MHS was four years ago, and it was an exasperating feeling for almost everyone. But they soon learned the special techniques of high schoolism, like the fact that the 100 classes and the 200 classes were upstairs and they began new friendships as they conquered the layout of the school.

Involved for the first time

Homecoming was probably the biggest, most exciting event our freshman year. We had always been spectators in the years before, but now we were finally involved. We carried a growing spirit and pride with us all week long, and though we didn't win the top placing, we were very sure of ourselves after getting through a marveling experience.

Builders of unity

We finally reached our sophomore year and now we had the opportunity to say 'Typical Freshman'. Although we were still considered underclassman, we began to organize ourselves and prove that we, too, had a say in MHS matters. We wanted to be noted as a class that helped build the school, also.

about

When we walked into MHS as Juniors we were ready for just about anything, because this year just about everything happened. Our Varsity football squad turned its record from a dismal 2-7 of 1975 to a sharp 7.2 record for 1976, along with the Twin Valley championship. The female species finally made waves by conquering the Twin Valley and District titles in girls basketball. That gave us something to commemorate about.

We had great participation in all our fund-raising projects. We were successful in selling our huge $2 \times 3$ feet coloring books for Christmas and right after that we were out peddling candy. It was successful, a great time and the divinity was divine for the members of MHS.

Another event we worked hard on was the J-Hop, the junior-sponsored prom in May. We wined and dined and danced to the 1977 theme of 'RAZZ-MA-TAZZ and ALL THAT JAZZ', which was a dazzling replica of the 1920's. After the dance there were activities, like a movie with Clark Gable or bowling. Then we all found our place in the sun as we headed for Warren Dunes on Lake Michigan the following day. The J-Hop was a beautiful creation thanks to the help of talented and hard-working students and two super class sponsors, Ben Armstrong and Pam Wingerter.

Making up our minds

Aptitude tests could be smelt in the air our junior year and we finally realized everything wasn't all fun and games. We had to get our acts together, start setting goals, and begin building toward our destiny. Sure, we had one more year to make decisions, but our senior year was bound to fly by fast, for our last three years were over before we even knew it.

Changing the ways of our lives

We made it this far, but now what do we do? When we stepped into MHS as seniors, we began to face an assortment of confusing feelings. We'd finally reached our fourth and final year, so we knew we had to make it a fantastic year. But we also had to face the future - do we need college, should we get a job, or should we just take time out to check the world over? Then again, most of us had a mean case of "'senioritis' where we just didn't want to do anything. But then reality would splash us in the face and we were once again making decisions that could alter our lives.

SENIORITY RULES was only one of our mottos as we entered our fourth year at MHS. We knew we were top notch, but we also had to assume responsibilities, for we were the leaders and we had a lot of examples to set for our fellow underclassman. Doing a fantastic job of keeping our class under control were Larry Schuler as President, Vice-President Wendee Karcher, and Secretary, Sharon Cubbon.

Fusion Into

Wholeness

May of '78 arrived and the days that we used to complain lasted too long were flying by like minutes. We realized all too late that the year was almost completed and there was no turning back. Suddenly, a few enemies began reconciliating, old friends started doıng more things together, and the class as a whole grew closer together than ever imagined. Throughout class night rehearsals and the night of the production itself, through baccalaureate and the all-nighter at Knottkes, through the endless hours of being together, enjoying together and reminiscing together, the class of ' 78 fused into a dynamıc, rowdy one.

Being a senior is a time for fun and games, as Dave Goyman distinctly proves in McDonald's.

Projects

way

The sophomores partook in many affairs and projects, with the help of their class sponsor, John Walton.
Their first big project was the business-like running of the football concession stand at the new football field, where they served fans a variety of refreshments. They also sponsored informal dances, and this was the year that they ordered their class rings as reminding tokens of their short years at high school.

Freshmen  pick up the ropes

The class of ' 81 soon learned how to manage at the high school. They had to experience the newness of the a la carte line in the cafeteria and the bookstore before school, along with the reality of letter grades. They caught on quickly though.

We can make it happen tooThe class of '81 at first found Homecoming a mass of frantic confusion, but they learned the ropes and began to slowly organize class unity for the fall activities. The freshmen did not make any outstanding placings, but they did begin to realize the need for joining together into one body and they proved that they, too, had pride and spirit for their school.

Their donations were sent to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation for Jennifer Kiessling, and to the Marshall Music Boosters for Ed Goyman so that their admiration for these fellow students could be appreciated.

Top drawer people

Our top drawer people proved to be behind us all the way throughout the year. They were always there to make the right decisions that would satisfy the entire community, not their own bank books. The School Board, and the administration, along with their secretaries were ever-producing a constant school spirit, and they participated in a fantastic pep assembly during the football season that made us realize just how lucky we students were to have a community that was so proud of their school. It was authority like that that made it all happen.

Helping is their job, too

During the year, members of the faculty were always helping to make the year the best. They volunteered their time for sports events, pep assemblies, Homecoming activities and other student involved material in order to help the body of MHS raise its spirit and collect confidence.

Spending her break correcting papers, Ms. Pam Wingerter keeps busy until her next class.

They're only human

"'Mr. Burns is in a restaurant! I didn't know that teachers ate . . . Mrs. Brown is pregnant! How'd she manage that . . ." Finally it began to dawn on the students that teachers really are human, too. They eat, they drink, they even go to the bathroom! And most of them lead legitimate lives, like any other Homo Sapiens.

The year came and went so fast that some of us didn't know what hit us. It seemed like there was never enough time to complete the work that had to be done. There was always copy to write, pictures to crop and final layouts to complete. Even though we were hardly ever in the room at the same time, the 24 of us completed the book and I hope it will bring back memories of a good year. A lot of hours, laughter, and tears helped to make up this book, it was handled with tender loving care and I know that the staff and school will be proud of it.

Right now l'd like to thank my staff for the time and effort they put into the book to make it what it is. Sue Jackson, who was managing editor, was one person I could have never made it without. She was always there when I needed her. Many times we would laugh and cry together over things that happened. There are not enough words to say how much I appreciated her help this year. Sara Day and Barb Jelinek handled the sport section and did a fine job. It was hard to handle sometimes, team pictures and such carried some problems but Barb and Sara really worked hard. Thanks a lot! Student life was a tough one. Kathy Patterson, Karen Holibaugh, and Beth Vogelreuter took over that section and worked dilligently all year. Congratulations should go to Cindy Conners who did something different with the senior section. Laura Schoenfeld also worked well and helped Cindy with the seniors. Organizations can tend to be boring but Amy Vogelreuter and Deb Peekstock made it quite interesting and I hope people will enjoy it. The people section had Mary Beth Herman and LeeAnn Zephro in charge of the Faculty Administration, and Underclassmen. Looked really good from the help of these two girls. Lisa Langridge and Wanda Arizmendi tackled the academic section the pages are really exciting and well done. I'd like to give special thanks to Wanda and Lisa because they spent a lot of their free time helping me with different things; their help was really appreciated and luckily they will be back next year. Both Michelle Dillon and Michelle Taylor took care of the community and filled the ad section with interesting ads. The two guys who handled all the photography were Tim McPherson and Mark Blodger. They really worked well amongst the good lookers in the back of the room. One person I can't forget is Stacey Munday. She wrote all the copy for the book and added her own originality and creativity to make the book well worth reading.
Congratulations should go to our advisor, Mr. Sturdevant. He did a fine job for coming in after school started. "Don't fret Chet," was one of the famous sayings in room 218, but Mr. Sturdevant had a lot to offer. Thanks! Another man I'd like to thank is Tom Hepth from the Marshall Evening Chronicle. He gave us many pictures that helped our sport section become exciting.

Well, that's the staff and I just want to say thanks for a job well done. This was the year we made it happen.

We look at the dreams

we had

For most of us, we've been setting goals all our lives. When we were little, tying our shoes for the first time or sleeping all night without the light on were real challenges. But as we place our dolls and marbles on the shelf we realize that life in itself is a set goal, so we keep making marks which we feel we have to reach - getting an A on that exam, running for that touchdown, receiving that rating of " 1 " in music. This year was filled with maintained goals, which shows that we had a very strong, very determined student body that dedicated itself to getting things done. With the undying help from our educators, families, and friends it was a year where almost all our set marks were met. So as the year closes, as we look over the exhilarating moments, and begin making goals for our future, we realize that 1978 was definitely the year we made it happen.

It's almost over and Jim Bredice seems to think that's alright with him.

Sharing in the end of his senior year is Greg Weatherly who played the piano for both the opening and closing of Class Night.

Russ Penning provided the school with music several times during the year. Here he is performing a number at the Pops Concert.

Part of the trip to Central Michigan University for members of the yearbook staff was a long two hour bus ride.

The breaking point, a ballet by several seniors in the class night was a real hit Sam Landers is shown helping his partner Lynn Searle back to her feet.

Saying Goodbye is hard
And starting again is harder.
But in leaving You begin.
And fresh starts are refreshing.
It takes courage to say Hello
And try to meet new people.
The old ones were comfortable.
But new people
Can become old friends Given the chance.

Don't be afraid to start again.
And don't look back too often.
Find strength in yourself
To face the beginnings.
Because they aren't new
For very long.
