"We came, we saw..."

We all know how to spell its name, what it looks like, how the place smells and how it sounds. We go five days a week, for seven hours at a time; we all know what we do there, who we will see and what life is like there. What is this crazy place? I'm talking about school, folks. But come on, how often do we really stop to think about WHY we're here? What exactly are we getting out of this whole deal? And is it really worth all of this time and dedication? With the help of some famous people, maybe this subject will become clear.

Sure, you might agree with American philosopher and educator Morris Raphael Cohen when he stated, "Wisdom is not to be obtained from textbooks, but must be coined out of human experience in the flame of life," but there must be some reasons why we're here every day. And, you might argue that it's true what essayist and humorist Clarence Day said, "Information's pretty thin stuff, unless mixed with experience." But the important part here is that success is virtually impossible without education.

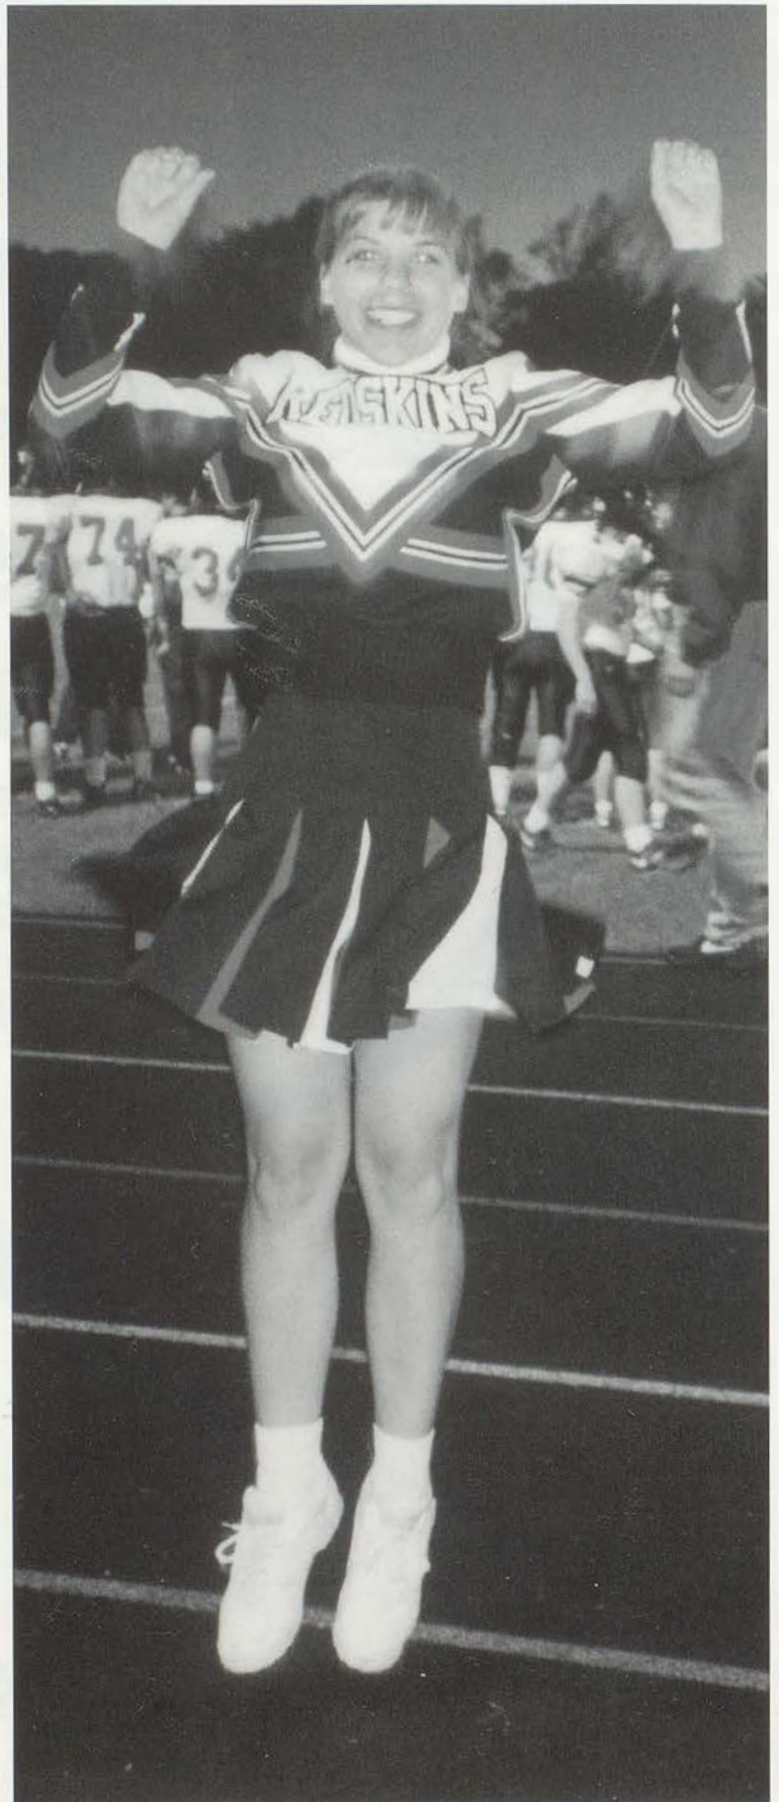

Martin Vanbee might have been on the right track when he said, "The kind of world we live in depends-not partially-but entirely on the type and quality of the education of our children today." Or, maybe you agree with the belief of English biologist Thomas Henry Huxley: "Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not." And for those of you who think that it's all useless knowledge that we gain at this institution, note what Roman writer Publilius Syrus thought: "It is better, of course, to know useless things than to know nothing." Remember, "There is no disgrace in not knowing when knowledge does not rest with you; the disgrace is in being unwilling to learn." (Benedette Varchi, Italian poet and historian) But, whatever the reason may be for our existence at this establishment we call school, the fact is we've got to be here, so, we might as well make the most of it. As Philip Dormer Stanhope, English Secretary of State, said, "Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well." And remember, as American clergyman Henry Ward Beecher stated, "Good humor makes all things tolerable."

So, folks, if the reason for our being here still makes no sense, just be patient. Maybe we'll understand WHEN ALL IS SAID AND DONE ...

"How are you going?"

-Ross Lukje greeting Ryan O'Connell

I've got spice, how 'bout you!?

Laura Gray, cheerleader and color guard member, was recently named honorary Spice Girl as Peppy Spice. Because of her busy schedule this year, Laura was forced to give up her cheerleader status. This enabled her to devote more time to twirling flags.

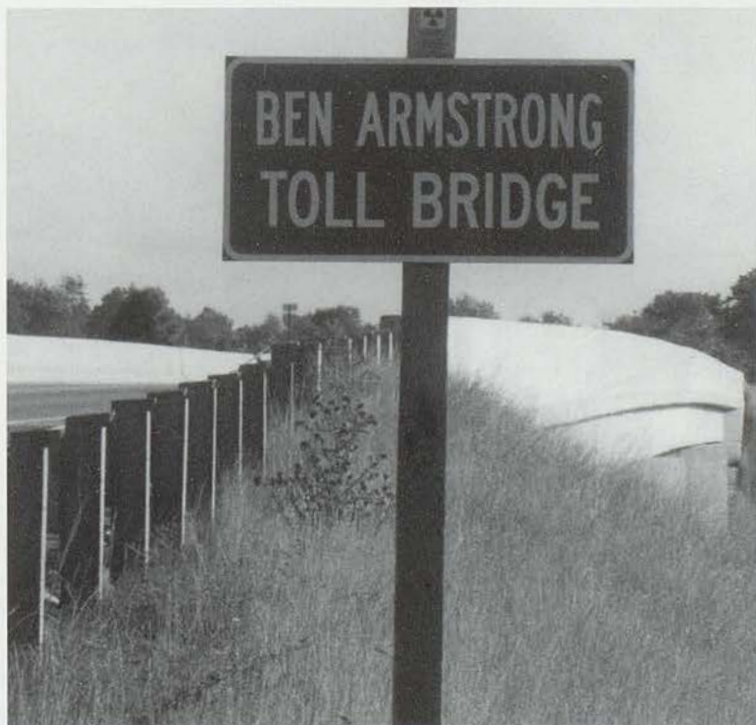

Hot For Teacher

Kristi Paavo rehearses the clarinet version of her favorite performance tune, "Hot For Teacher" by Van Halen. Other works performed by the band this year were songs from Star Wars, Indiana Jones, Phantom of the Opera, and Evita.

Mr. Sitkiewicz's Opus

This may look like Mr. Sitkiewicz, MHS band director, but in reality he is a mentor to many devoted pupils of music. He teaches these students how to befriend their instruments and play spectacular shows for home football games. He led his students so well this year that many football players mentioned that running through the band tunnel was always the highlight of the game.

Do you know Louis Gorganflyer?

Missy Lough affectionately refers to her big brother, Jim "Skippy" Hat, as she introduces herself during yearbook class to a new friend, Kate Weston. Missy has often used Jim's legend here at MHS as an ice-breaker because most people recognize his name. Currently, Missy reports, Jim is attending Michigan State University majoring in their rapidly expanding breakdancing program.

Maybe next year, Benny the Jet!

This official sight has finally been erected and eagerly awaits next year's showdown between Mr. Armstrong and another unsuspecting peon in the annual race. This year's victim, Derek Hoffman (Haus) helped Arn uphold his 30 year tradition of winning, last place.

"I am what I am"

Beeeeeeep! "I am now officially late for class," you think to yourself as you breeze down the hallway planning your tardiness strategy carefully. You could lie and say your stupid locker wouldn't open, but you can think of something more creative than that. Anyway, you might want to save that one for another day when your locker really won't open. As you round the corner on the way to class you start to panic, "What am I going to tell my teacher?" you say to yourself. Maybe you could just give your teacher the "I'm so innocent, please don't mark me tardy" look. Better yet, you could use the "quietly sneak into class, plop in the seat and pray that the teacher doesn't notice me" technique.

Inevitably everyone would handle this situation a little differently. Some people would choose the sneak, plop and pray method. Others would prefer to give the "I'm so innocent" look since they would never be late for class because they were talking in the halls with their friends. Please, be careful what method you choose. Don't choose something that's not right for you. If you have beautiful eyes use them to get yourself out of tardiness trouble. If you are a sweet talker, talk your way out of trouble, and if you're dependable just promise that it will never happen again. You'll have doubts about what will work for you. So when these doubts appear just remember the saying "I am what I am" and do what's right for you.

The point is not whether you are late for class and tend to make it a habit that leads to I.S.S. The point is that everyone is unique and would choose to deal with life's situations differently. What works for someone else may not work for you. Find your approach at life, or tardiness, and go with it.

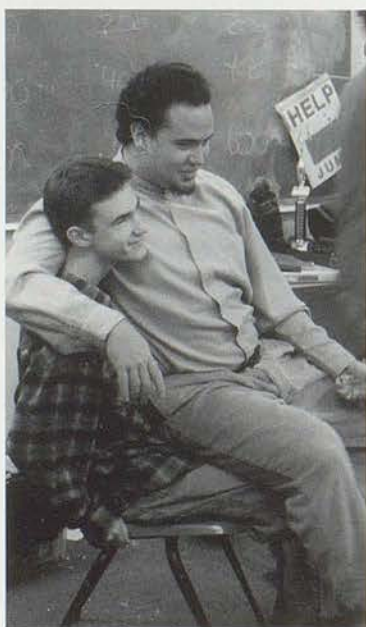

Just say no

Matt Blodgett finds it hard to say no to candy. Josh Bennett has just informed Matt that the basketball concession stand is getting dangerously low on Snickers. Matt needs to hurry before they are all gone because Snickers really does satisfy you.

Have a seat

Although the V.D. room has many other comfortable chairs, Dave Yang prefers the Matt Crowle chair. These specialized chairs are built for comfort, durability and are very hard to come by.

Joe Reynolds shows off his amazing athletic skills for his friends Ben Zuehlke, Ryan Rhodes, Rusty Hawthorne and Scott Davis at four corners.

Not even the rain stopped the Marshall J.V. soccer team's 3-2 victory over the Sturgis Trojans. After his third goal of the game Ben Brott celebrates his hat trick with Doug Rasher, Adam Hecox and Aaron Duckwall.

Who's the man?

Tim Williams thinks he's the man and has the shades to prove it. He tried to start a tie trend that unfortunately hasn't caught on yet.

Great game boys

Stats girls Amy Rosko, Liz Smith and Anne Kellogg spent hours creating ingenious locker signs, baking goodies and giving massages to wounded soccer boys. To be a stats girl for the boys' soccer team you've got to have heart.

Tell us what's bothering you

Dan Schroeder was having some problems so he went to see Nate Cox, Sarah Brundage and Sam Boyce. These three V.D. room counselors graciously donate their time and expertise to guide lost souls that need their help.

"A teacher is one who, in his youth, admired teachers."

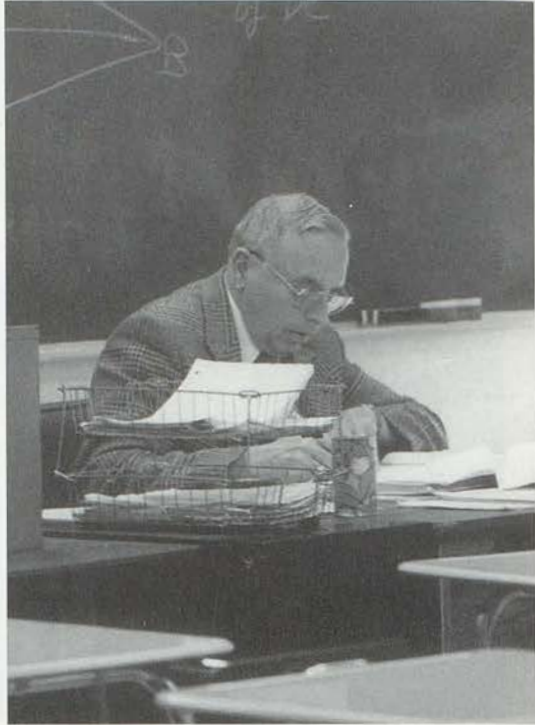

Thirty-eight years and still kicking
Spending several hours correcting stacks of papers, teacher Ken Machata has spent thirty-eight and a half years performing this daily routine. Most teachers use their vital planning period to do this tedious task.

It's your first day of your new job. You're excited, you're pumped, you're working with former teachers? This may not sound like fun to you but it was exactly what a few of the staff members at Marshall High School went through.

That's right Mr. Burns, Mr. Elyea, Ms. Zuehlke, and some other staff members had this fate and guess what? They loved it! Now it might not have been easy those first few days, but they managed. Ms. Annette Zuehlke was a student of teachers like Mr. Elyea, Mrs. Edwards. She is remembered as the bubbly little cheerleader who sat on the lab tables by Mrs. Edwards. Ms. Zuehlke recalls, "It was the middle of the year, but my former teachers were professional and ready to help."

So working with former teachers in the future isn't the end of the world, some find it the beginning of a long-lasting relationship.

Marshall High School teachers Tom Reynolds, Al Elyea, and Jess Engle enjoy a leisurely lunch in the staff lounge. Lunch is a great time for these teachers to discuss their golfing strategies.

 Teacher Tom Duffey spends most of his class giving notes to his enthusiastic class. This is a daily task in all of Mr. Duffey's many math classes.

Top Ten Excuses

- * The Governor caught me on the way to school and asked my advice.
- * The school's clocks are off.
- * I'm tardy? At 8:30?
- * I didn't think we actually had to watch Channel One!
- * I dropped my assignment in the toilet, and I had to let it dry.
- * My car wouldn't start.
- * There were these aliens that were in the hall ...
- * Bell rang early!
- * My dog forgot to wake me up.
- * My horse got out.

October 4th- A day many freshmen will never forget is the day of their first formal dance. From worrying about their dates to dwelling on the fact that their parents have to drive them, homecoming is a new path on the road of life. Whether it's road construction or smooth sailing, it's a time not to be forgotten.

For a freshman, attending a formal dance can be exciting but nerve wracking. When asked what he thought of the dance, Cody Burgdorf could only mutter one word, "Stressful." Others like Emily Taylor said simply, "I like to get dressed up and go out to eat." Many others agreed that getting ready for the "big" dance was half the fun. "Buying a dress, getting your hair done and going out to eat was fun, but the dance was a disappointment," said Erica Eash. That seemed to be the group consensus for the frosh, because none of them approved of the DJ's taste in music.

Driving to Homecoming was not the highlight of their evening. The majority of freshman can't drive, so they had to find other means of transportation. "It was horrible because we had to depend on a parent to drive us everywhere and we couldn't go out of town," Brad McCormack said. Arriving in style isn't everything, so they coped with the problem and got on with their lives. Most of them are now waiting for their licenses and a chance to redeem themselves.

"What was the difference between Homecoming and a Friday night dance?" was the question posed to the youngsters. "I thought it was different in a negative way," Christina Rough said. She continued and elaborated on how much easier it was to dance in jeans. Jessi Johnson agreed, "I think that I like going to regular dances better, because I feel more comfortable there."

"Friend or significant other?" Frosh face a tough choice on deciding who to go with. Many said that going with a friend just seemed to be more casual. When Stacey Roberts was asked which she'd rather go with, she said, "A friend because you'd have more fun with someone you're comfortable with." What Stacey said made sense, but Tammy Delaet said it best when she answered, "A good-looking friend."

"Progress flows only from struggle."

RING! "NO!" the freshman cried as the bell to start class rang loud and clear. "Not today! It's the first day of high school and already I have started out on a bad foot," he frantically yanked at his locker in order to open it. Finally it flew open, smacked him in the head and sent him flying. He got up from the ground and ran off to class. "Please let me get through this day," he whimpered as he walked down the hall.

The first day of school everyone wants to look their best and have things go their way. For some it is accomplished, but for unlucky freshmen a first day disaster occurred. One victim, Ian Root, was given the wrong combination to his locker three times. He was not alone though. Doug Rasher's disaster happened on the 2nd day of school, forgetting about the 8 block system. Doug stated, "On Tuesday I went to my 1st block class when I was supposed to go to my 2nd block class." This was the least of Doug's troubles. He is one of the poor souls who has an older sibling at school. Doug was tormented by brother Greg and his friends. "I was picked on all day because I was a freshman," he said.

Despite these freshman's traumas they rose above freshmanhood and managed to enjoy the beginning of high school.

"Nothing is really work unless you would rather be doing something else."

Freshly popped buttery popcorn, bagged and ready to be sold. Crunchy nachos smothered in cheesy cheese. Candy tasty enough to melt in your mouth. Selling all these scrumptious treats are all part of being a sophomore concession seller. One duty of sophomores on student council, and a few others chosen by Mr. Burns, is to help out with concessions for fall basketball and football. Mr. Burns plays an important role as the supervisor putting in many additional hours and is probably there the longest. "It was a lot of fun working with Burns; I learned a bunch about responsibility," raved Ryan Mead.

Many assume working concessions is all fun and games; however, a great deal of hard work is put in by the students. The preparation consists of setting up displays, popping and bagging popcorn, mixing up the hot chocolate, warming up coffee, and wrapping hot dogs. With the before and after work, the workers could end up being there for more than four hours. The hard-earned money collected during those hours goes to the sophomore class fund so the caps and gowns are free for the students. Katie Andrysiak sums it up well as she concludes, "Concessions is a good, productive fund raiser and is a good way to save money our senior year."

"WE WAS ROBBED!"

Wow look, there's my Grandpa Matt Blodgett stares admiringly at the Bill Holt Hall of Fame during Cardio. While vigorously training for this class, Matt gets more buff by the minute. At this rate Matt will have no problem filling his Grandpa's shoes.

In case any of you sophomores had trouble finding your lockers on the first day of school, don't worry; you probably weren't the only ones. In fact, some came to the conclusion that the lockers were even missing. In truth they weren't missing at all. Devastatingly, the lockers were back on freshman hall ... AGAIN! "I was disappointed but I learned to cope" were Elisa Brigham's thoughts on the matter. The sudden moving plans were a result of the relocation of the C.D.C., which opened a whole new hallway for this year's freshmen. Alas, the sophomores were doomed to repeat yet another year on the first floor. "I found it very degrading. Everyone else gets the superiority of the second floor," Jon Marshall complained. Although plenty of sophomores were disappointed, there were also quite a few who didn't mind at all. Matt Parker was one of those people, "I like the first floor because that's where it's happening." Others thought of it as a benefit to themselves. Tim Hecox said that he liked his locker's nearness to the door because he's always late. As for next year, many sophomores wait in anticipation of finally having a second floor locker. Or so they hope.

"Big brother is watching you!"

Do you ever wonder how it would be to be the only child? Have you ever wished it upon yourself? Or if you're an only child, have you ever wondered how it would be to have brothers and sisters? STOP right now and hear for yourselves the best and the worst of "Siblings in School." If you have brothers and sisters you know that there are many advantages. Shane Burns quotes on his sister Courtney, "She helps me with my homework or copies things down for me cause I hate writing." Living under the same roof also motivates those family feuds to erupt. When Court thought of mean, horrifying acts that Shane has done to her hundreds popped in her head. "One," she says, "was when he pins me down and hangs spit over my face." It's also important doing nice things for your brother or sister as K. Triece did. She states "I put on his shoes for him when he hurt his knee and could hardly move," talking about her crippled brother Ryan. "About having social lives, I asked Courtney, are there any affects he has on you?" "Social life? He won't let me have one," she informed me. Walking around with Bethany Weare she told me "Just because Justin is a.k.a. "Weare B" doesn't mean that I, Bethany am a.k.a. "B Weare," so leave me alone and call me Beth." I realized that her big brother Justin has an impact on how people look at her. Big Brothers always have that "eye" on their little sisters.

Excuse me?
Big brother Justin Weare watches intently as his little sister Beth is mobbed by all his hot friends. Sean Duffey, who decided to ride the train instead, missed out on all the fun.

You hungry? Yes, you?
Shannon Tucker and Jenny Kimerer watch on as the JV basketball team makes their way to another victory. Both girls play for the Varsity Basketball team and are showing some school spirit in this picture. Keep it up girls!

We won!
Shane Shubert, Ryan Van Dyke and Ben Gase celebrate after another senior victory at the Homecoming assembly this year. These three football players show their team spirit on the field and at the assemblies.

Am I cute or what?
Senior Jeremy Brown hangs beside his locker for a quick look into his planner. Jeremy set numerous records this year for the football team as the running back. Good luck next year, Jeremy.

Who did it?
Tim Williams makes that innocent face in Ms. Ward's room earlier this year. After an early season injury Tim rebounded his football career and became a big help to the football team and its successful season. Great job, Tim.

Yikes!!!!
Brenna McCauley shows how the girls on the swim team have fun. Looks as if they had this meet in the bag. Brenna had a very successful season and showed her stuff as a senior leader.

"YOU CANNOT CREATE EXPERIENCE...
YOU MUST UNDERGO IT!"

We grow up with knowledge coming to us from books, but it is when we go out and discover new knowledge in what we do that we truly grow. The exchange students have come to understand this as they are out learning through their experiences in the United States. There are many different countries and cultures in this world, but it is only when we go out and become part of the culture that we fully understand it. Marshall has exchange students from eight different countries (Anne - Germany; Patricio - Chili; Stine - Norway; Antti - Finland; Gaelle - France; Yoko - Japan; Bruno - Brazil; Mycam-Jessy - Denmark; and Astrid - Germany) and whether in athletics or school activities, they have been very involved and accepted. New people, new language, different foods, costumes, traditions, land, lifestyle, government, and much more surround our nine exchange students as they become part of the Marshall way of life. By choosing to be an exchange student these individuals are put in an experience that will develop them not only in their knowledge of other cultures but in their character as this is what they will take with them through the rest of their life. Life is full of learning, some things you learn you leave, while others stay with you and guide you through all your life. Through the exchange students may miss home sometimes, the experiences of their times in the United States will most likely never be forgotten, just as many will never forget the exchange students of the 1997-98 school year.

Buff and ready to conquer the U.S. To deal with the many challenges that they face in their stay in the United States Bruno Soares, Antti Kousmanen, and Patricio have worked hard in Redskin Fitness to increase their muscles. Aside from their weight lifting, these guys were all involved in both soccer and swimming, which has not only helped physically, but emotionally, as it has also built friendships.

I spy exchange students. Exchange students Jessy, Stine and Anne all support the Marshall football team as they play in the regional championship. Hint in finding them - they are sharing a white blanket.

Many new questions Gaelle raises her hand high for someone to answer her question. In coming to the United States the exchange students have experienced many new things, leaving their heads full of questions. Though everything is different and adjusting is a challenge, you would never know it by listening to them as they all speak English as well.

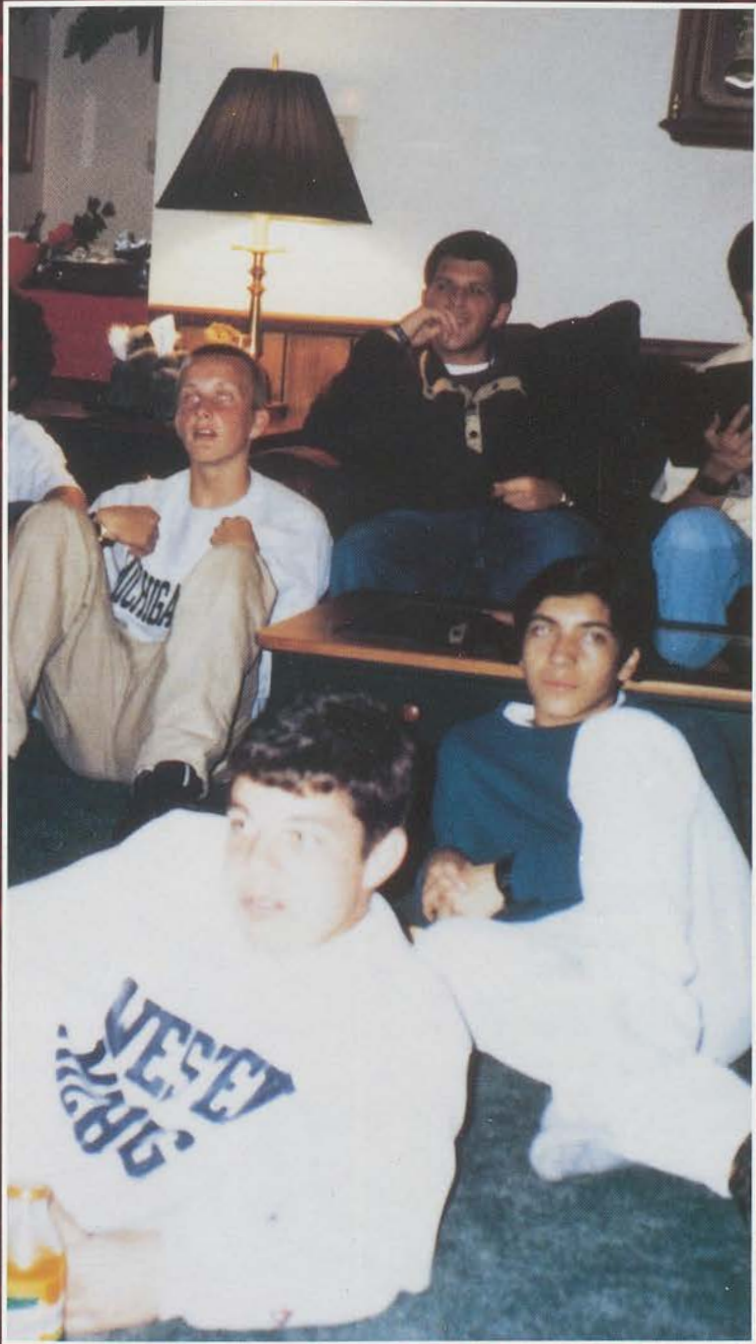

A taste of home
Bruno Soares gets ready to play a sport familiar to him ... soccer. Bruno was a member of the varsity soccer team. The coach mentioned that Bruno has good ball skills and is a great teammate.

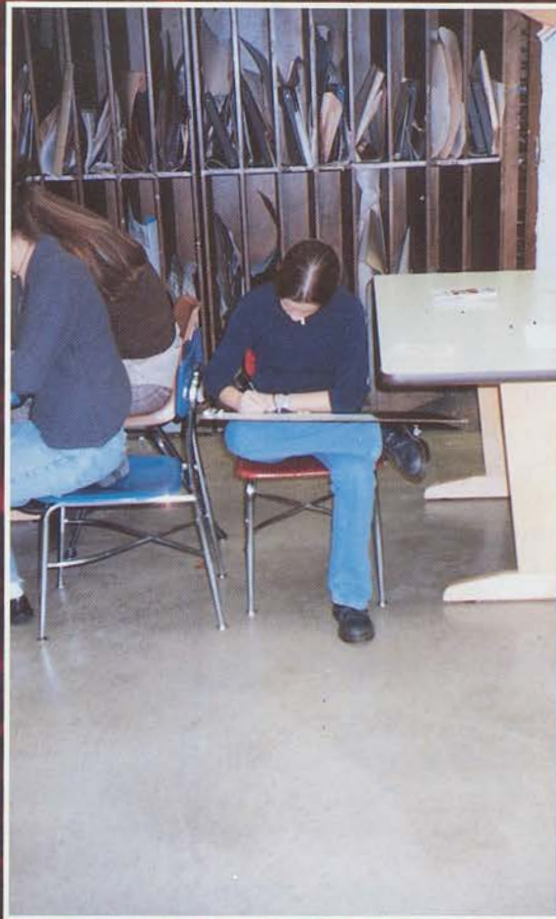

Taking the plunge
Yoko Shizuka is on a place where she spent many hours - the blocks. To start off her year in the U.S., Yoko participated on the swim team. Swimming allowed her to make many new friends.

Study time
 There are many adjustments required to be an exchange student. Antti, Stine and Gaelle work to become familiar with our ways.

Guy bonding
 Antti and Patricio enjoy some with the guys at a party for the soccer team. It is not only the knowledge and experience but also the friendships that make the stay here so worthwhile.

Drawing new lines
 Astrid gets into her work in art as she draws a fall picture. Astrid has Art Two with Mr. Walton second block. Astrid said the best part of her stay is the people, as she really appreciated them. She also wanted to thank the many people who helped her get adjusted and find her way around. In the beginning, things were very difficult for her like many of the exchange students, but once she got down the basics, things became a lot easier. Astrid is not only involved in her studies but also in helping her class as she contributed many hours to the construction of the senior float.

True colors

"Fall brings fallen leaves, but it also brings a wider horizon more clearly seen."

As the leaves begin to drift away, and the snow begins to fall, the Redskin battle cry still rings throughout the halls. We've fought our battles and paid our dues, and showed everyone we are number one at Marshall High School. We have the student body, staff, and sports teams that other schools only dream of. There are many activities that take place at Marshall High School throughout the school year. During the school year as the fall season slipped away our Varsity Football Team finished 10-0 and headed to the playoffs, finishing second at the Dome. Our Spanish club planned a trip to Spain for the summer. The Girls' Basketball team earned the District championship. Individual swimmers went to compete in State Finals. Marshall High School proved to be number one in athletics, but we are number one academically as well.

This year brought many new faces to our school. We welcome many new freshmen, as well as many new foreign exchange students. This fall the students experienced our annual Homecoming. On October 3, our Varsity Football team beat the Coldwater Cardinals 38-8, which made our Homecoming dance on October 4th a memorable one. Our Boy's Golf team went to the state finals and ranked within the top ten in the state. The fall season at Marshall High brought many smiles to a lot of people's faces, and it made a Fall to be remembered.

These girls are just sitting pretty. Becky Baird, Liz Smith, and Katie Gray are working hard on their school work and yet can still watch the J.V. Tennis match. These girls are supportive to their Marshall tennis team and enjoy observing how victorious the team is.

Do they look confused or what? It appears to be a crazy day in band class as Randy Scherer, Kirk Stephens, and Matt Hedges all have their attention focused on something different. Marshall High School has one of the greatest marching bands throughout the state. The ninety members work very hard to be the best and are they ever. The band participates in several activities throughout the school year in which they have done very well.

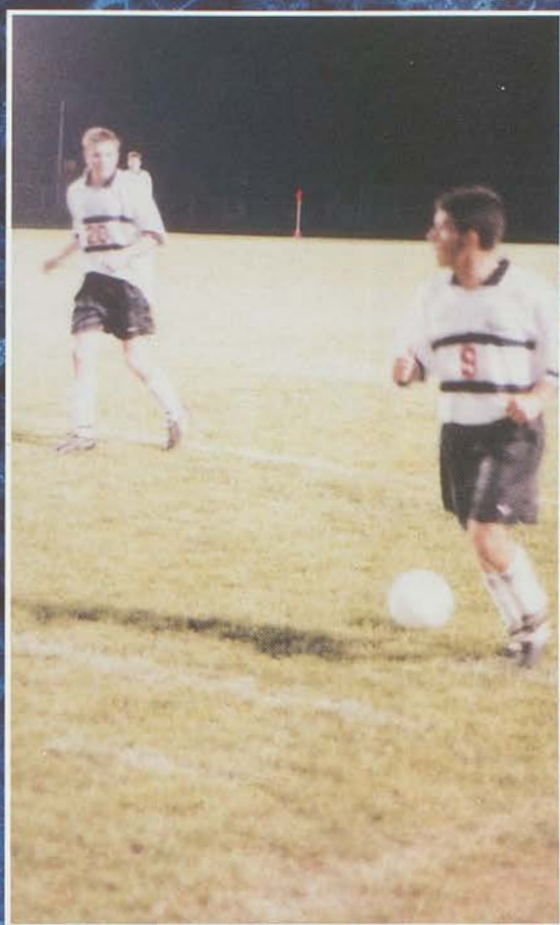

These girls have power of a Redskin. Catie Neidlinger, Jessi Petty, and Kari Searles showed Lakeview what it's like to play in Redskin country. They didn't make out to look like a fun day in the park for the Spartans.

The boys are back in town
 Matt Cline and Ryan VanDyke Marshall's very own Varsity Football players are seen here playing against Hillsdale in hopes of another victory and another trip to the Dome. That night the Redskins won 61 - 0.

Luke pass the ball: don't worry, Rob's on his way.
 Luke Peck and Rob Baklund are playing in one tough Varsity game, but don't fear; these guys are in it to win, and they did.

These four girls have spirit
 Cassie Treat, Sarah Amaro, Adrian Anderson, and Krystal Finch are cheering away for our Freshman Football team. It was great season for our freshman players as they finished out the season with eight wins and one tough loss.

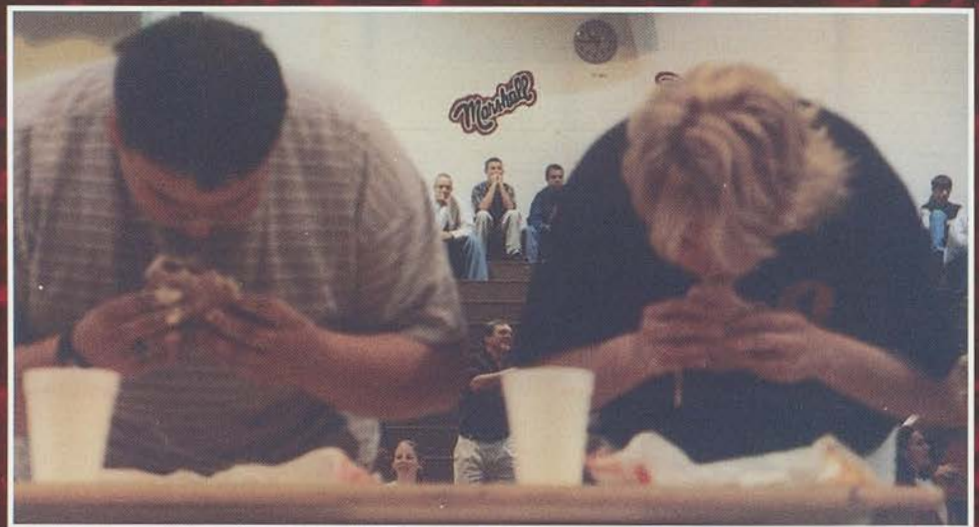

Four!!!!
 Kevin Hutchins, and Roy Adair are out on this sunny day practicing their moves for the boys' golf team. We caught Roy in action as he gets ready to send that ball zooming down the field. The boys golf team finished the year out by competing in the state finals. They ranked within the top ten in the state.

"There's no place

Return of the Mack
Andy McCormack and his posse-Ryan Cox, Jenilee Bischoff, Justin Weare, Matt Blodgett, Katie Gray, and Brian Zalewski-all dressed in the dark this morning. Andy spent a long time in his "closet".

With all the crazy events and dress-up days, who could help but to have fun? The dress-up days were clash day, pajama day, "blast from the past" day, class colors day, and Redskin pride day. Adding to the excitement of Homecoming week were the class games, which included the caterpillar walk, football hike, and the ever-popular arm-wrestling competition. Of course the arm-wrestling event is a great test of human strength, but the real endurance was shown during the Whopper-eating and Dew-chugging events. Participants had to dig deep, searching the depths of their souls for the courage and strength to rise above their own self-doubts and defeat submission in an epic and eternal battle of gluttonous superiority. At the end of the week, the seniors reigned victorious in the events category. But all MHS students came out on top after the football game, when the 'Skins defeated Coldwater 38-8. Overall, Homecoming '97 was a great success, not only for the football team, but for the whole student body.

Phil Shepherd and Jeannine Crouse don't have time to enjoy their delicious flame-broiled Whoppers, with loads fresh onions, lettuce, and pickles.

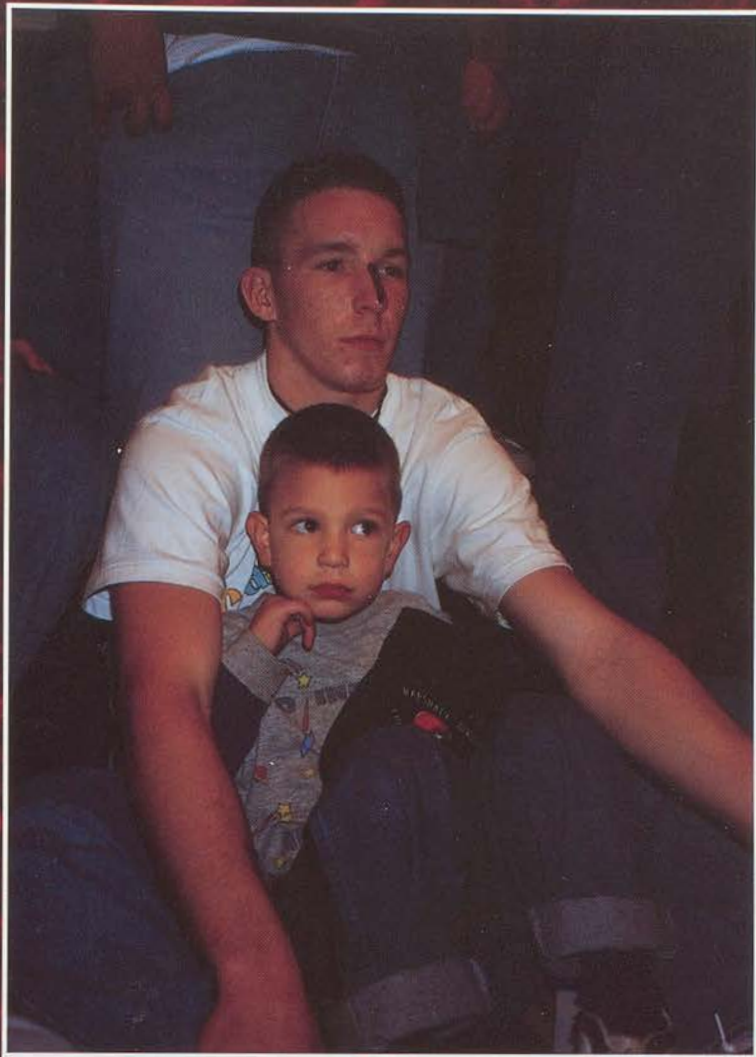

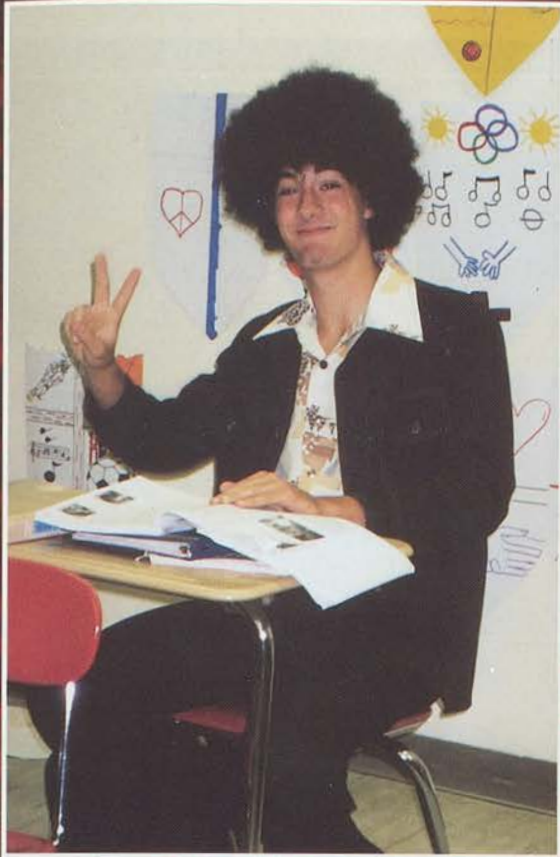

The Hunt For Red October
The sophomores didn't have a very red October this year. They failed to triumph in most events, especially the Homecoming float category, where they were barely edged out by ... everyone. But nevertheless, the sophomores tried their best. Way to "represent."

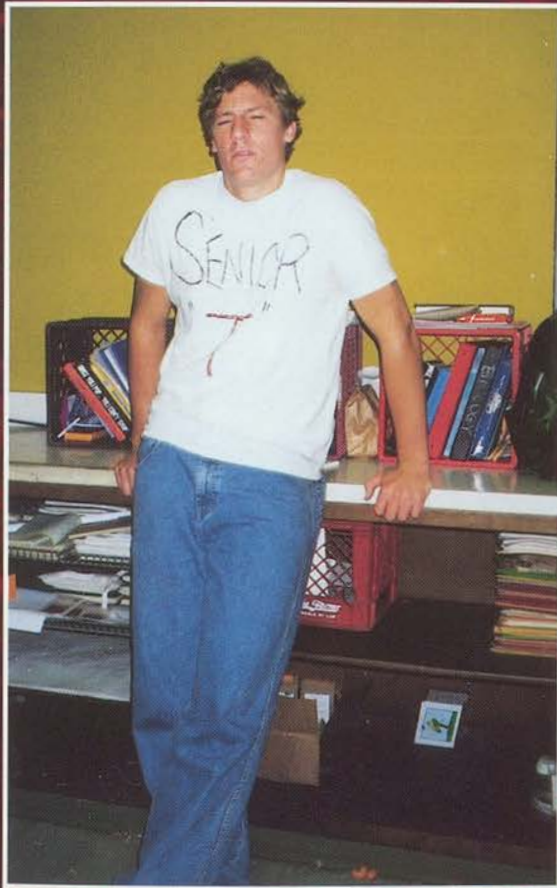

Always bet on black
Juniors lacked the Homecoming ensembles this year, but due to the occasional lack of underclassmen competition, there were several spells of boredom. Many passed the time painting their faces, playing "007," or trying to open their mouths really wide. Ethan Ebner decided to take himself on in a game of Paper-Rock-Scissors. So far his game is a draw.

How much was that haircut, Seth?
 Seth Palmer shows off his "pimped-out" afro. He was quoted as saying, "oh yeah" and "I'm a complicated man, no one understands me but my woman."

Chief Big Squirrel Doug Searles and his buddy, future Redskin Vincent VanDyke, check out the action from the bleachers. Doug is known for his great leg room and comfortable arm rests.

Put out the vibe, Lomez Andrew "Lomez" Neidlinger may look cool, but he's actually just tired because he stayed up all of last night making his senior "T". Work it Lomez, you 'da man.

Bow down Through the seniors did take first place overall in the events, most freshman failed to "bow down" to them. This disrespect caused an uproar among seniors and began what would come to be known as the "kill the frosh" campaign, an unfortunate turn of events that won't soon be forgotten.

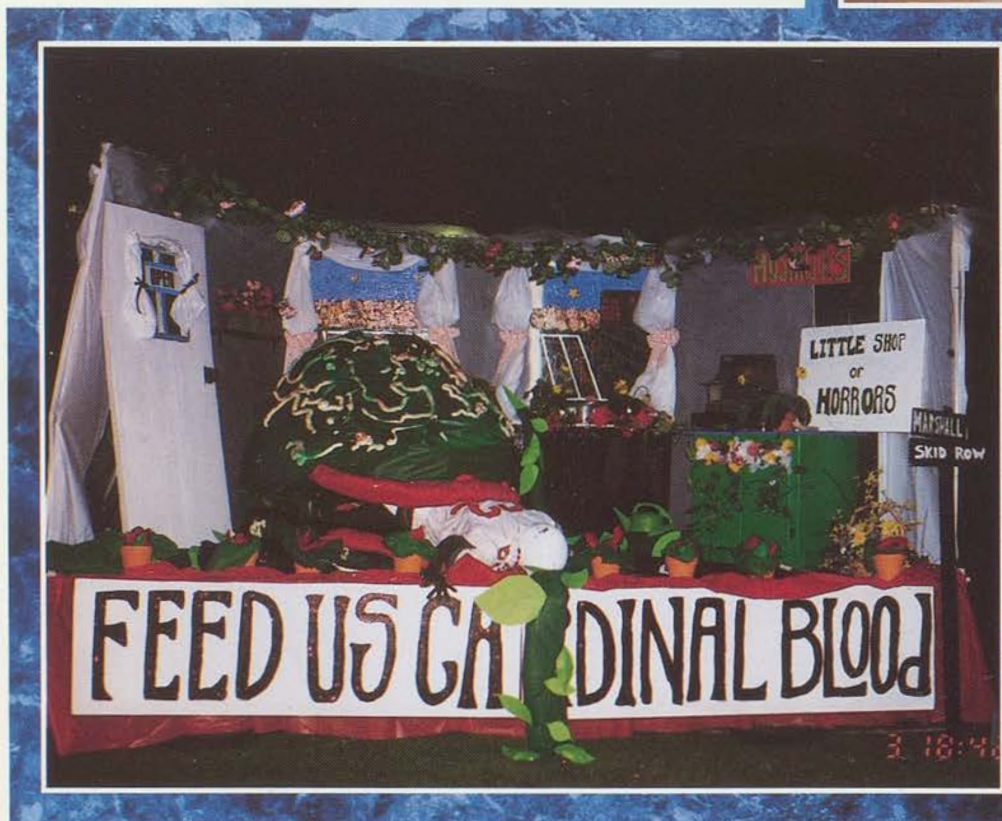

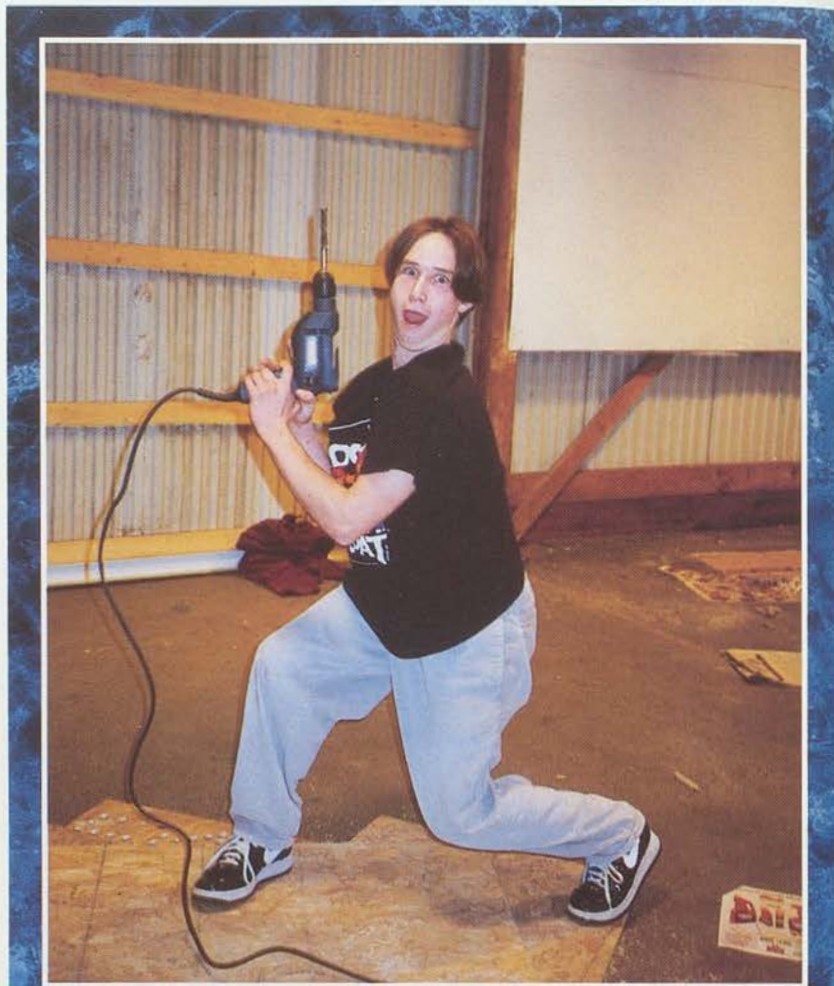

"THE ENGINEERING IS SECONDARY TO THE VISION"

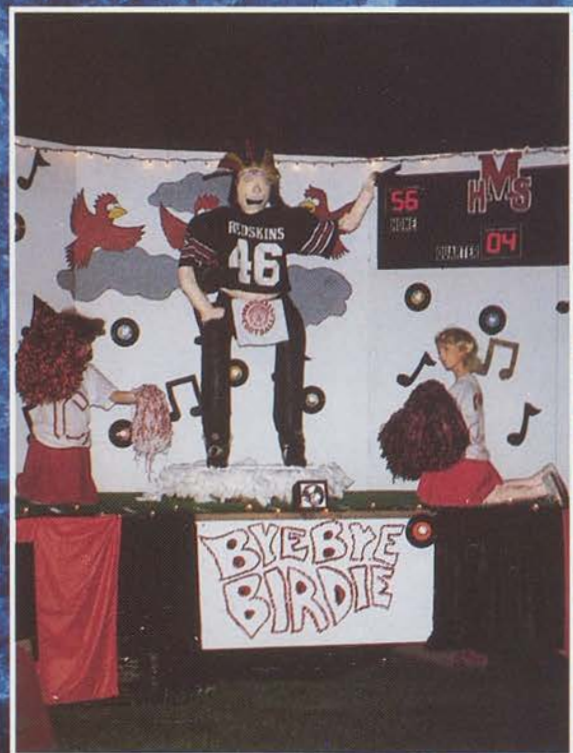

This year's Homecoming was a total success. The football players had a great win, and without counting the music, the dance was another success. Though one thing that really made the Marshall Homecoming '97 a very memorable experience was the floats. Each grade worked hard at creating a float to fit the selected theme. The year's chosen theme was "Broadway". The Seniors took first place with the Downtown New York scene. It included a built-in movie theater, moving objects and electricity. The Juniors took second place with their Little Shop of Horrors float. They also had moving objects and electric lights. The Sophomore's float was based on Bye Bye Birdie. Even though their's didn't receive third place, they worked hard on it. This year's freshmen float got third place and was full of action and numerous Broadway themes. A lot of the Marshall High School student body worked together, creating a Homecoming never to be forgotten.

Tool
 Ryan Mead discovers electricity. Shortly after this picture was shot. Ryan's tool was taken away, and he was escorted back to the insane asylum.

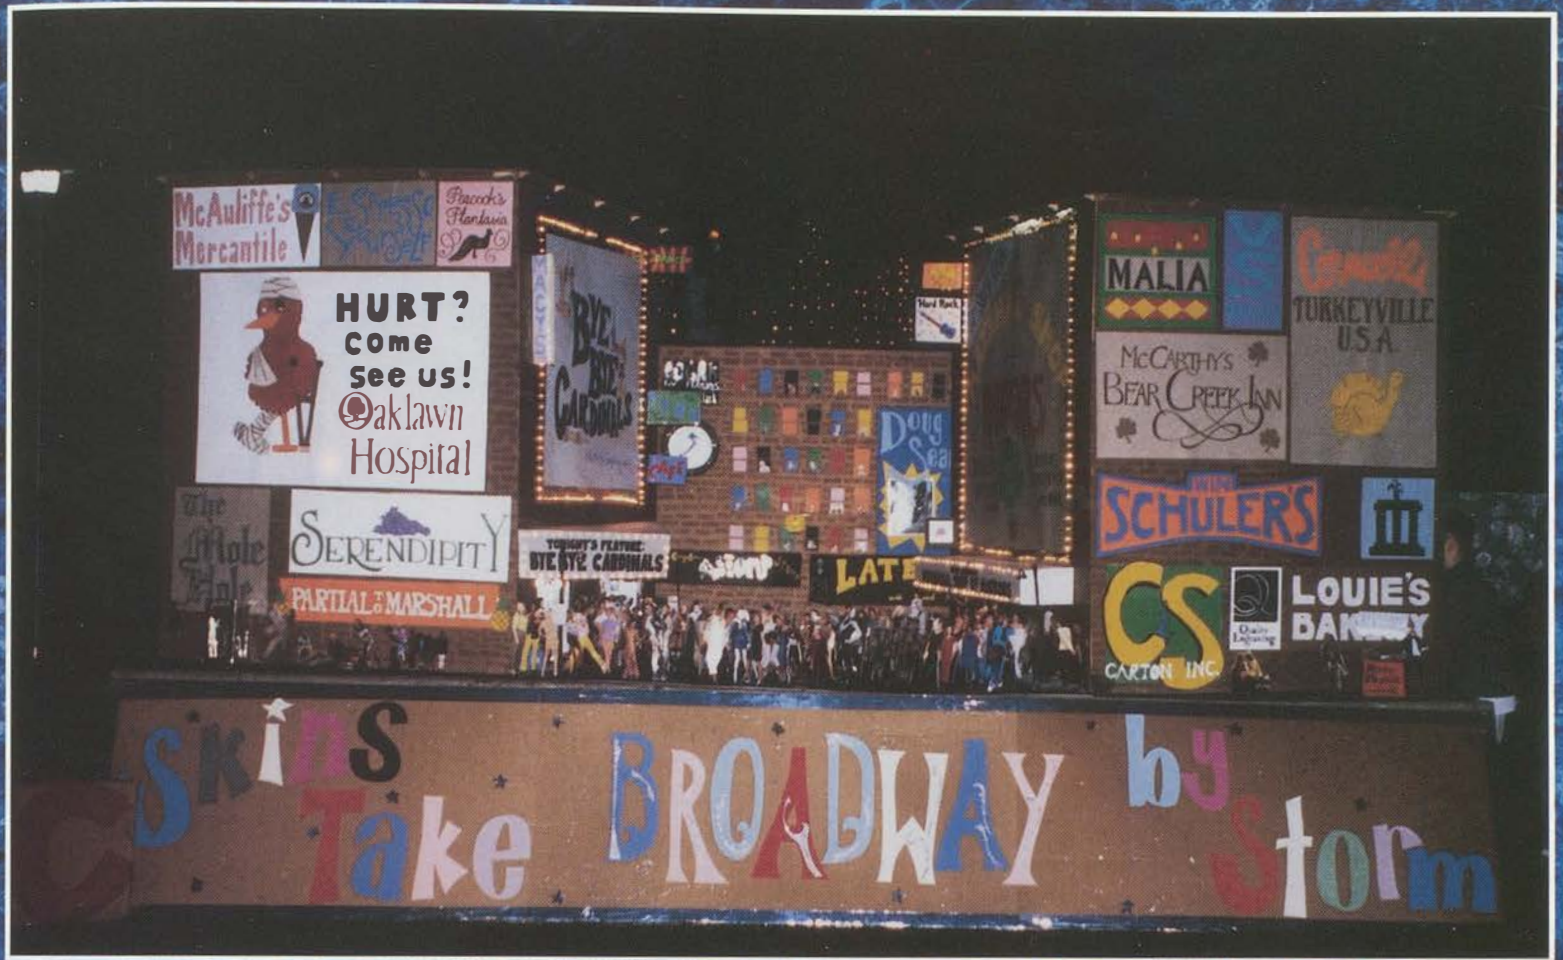

Feed us blood
 The juniors made it clear that cardinal blood was on their minds. They received second place and worked hard to achieve it.

See ya, birdie
 The sophomores based their float on the Broadway musical Bye Bye Birdie. Even though they were given fourth place, they had fun putting it together.

Seniors take it to Broadway
 This year the senior float took a lot of hard work, dedication, and pure determination. All of their work paid off, giving them first place.

Spread that news
 The freshmen float consisted of not only one, but many different Broadway musicals. Their float won them third place.

Forget the float, look at the camera!
 These sophomores decided to spend time getting their picture taken, rather than working on their float ... that explains it!

"I could have danced all night"

Is it dark in here or is it just me? Veena Narasimhan is stylin' as she makes her way across the dance floor. Veena had a pretty wild Homecoming night while cuttin' a rug on the dance floor.

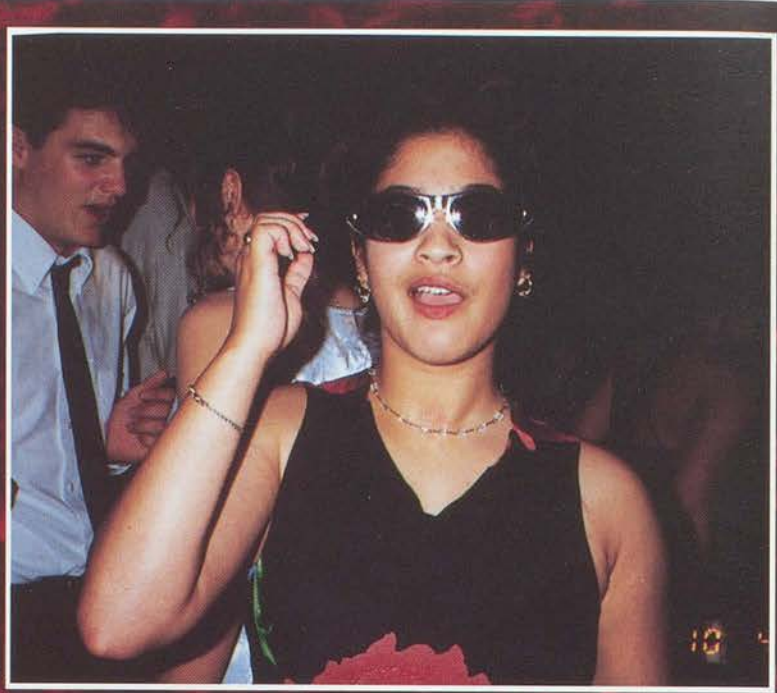

"I could have danced all night, I could have danced all night ..." That's what many of the people at this year's homecoming dance were thinking at the end of the night. The neon lights were a glowin' and the music was a blarin' for this year's "Broadway" Homecoming. Everyone danced the night away to lots of their favorite tunes and had a blast doing it.

Many special touches also added to the "Broadway feeling." Upon entering the door, the "guys" were given cigars (bubble gum of course) and the "dolls" a gleaming ring pop. There were also Broadway decorations all over the place.

With both the girls and guys looking their best, the night was full of pictures being taken, dances being danced, and as always, memories being created. The freshmen finally got to see what Homecoming was all about, and the seniors got to savor their very last one.

All in all, this year's Homecoming proved to be a great one. People not only have a great night to look back on, but great memories as well.

Smile
Jenny Bramble and April Evans took a break from their groovin' dates to capture the moment during this year's Homecoming.

Dancin' Duo
This twosome of Scott Feldpausch and Jodi Rodgers had nothing but smiles for the camera. Both of them had a great night getting their groove on, on the dance floor.

Flower Girls
Dana Wicklund, Katie Crowle, Elizabeth Leahy and Jenny Skidmore proudly display the beautiful corsages they received from their groovy guys. The girls all had a great time with their dates and rated it as one of the best dances ever.

We want you!
Justin Weare and Johnny Thompson wanted you to come and boogie with them on the dance floor. Both these guys are known for their moves, and definitely showed many others how it's done.

The latest dance
Andy McCormack shows how the latest dance craze, "the Mac," is done. Andy has created many hot dance moves; however, nobody can quite do 'em like the Mac himself.

And the winner is...

Shining through
King and Queen Ryan Vandyke and Amy Rosko couldn't have thought of a better way of topping off their senior year than by being crowned. Both have successful sports seasons in the fall, they look forward to the rest of the school year.

We match
Jake Gates and Anne Kellogg called each other the night before the Homecoming game to make sure their outfits were coordinating. Both were excited that the other was chosen because of their long-lasting friendship.

This year's Homecoming court exemplified the Marshall High School student body very well. The students definitely chose the best of the best. With a wide range of talents, this year's court showed the variety of extracurricular activities to participate in at Marshall High School.

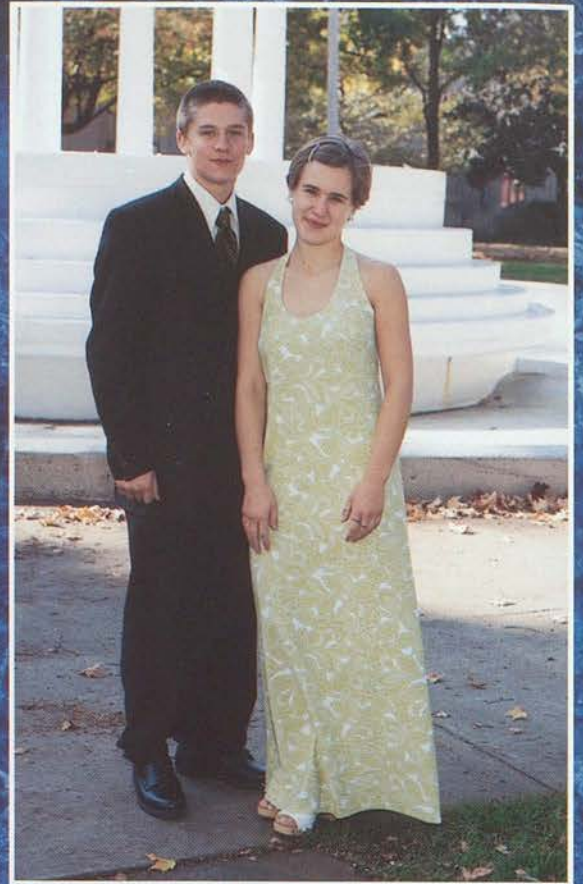

The Freshman Escort and Attendant were Mark Loyer and Stacey Roberts. Mark participated on the Freshmen Football team and Stacey participated on the J.V. Tennis team.

Noah Wilson and Brooke McKenney represented the sophomore class, not by height, but by stature. Noah was on the J.V. Football team and Brooke was on the Varsity Tennis team.

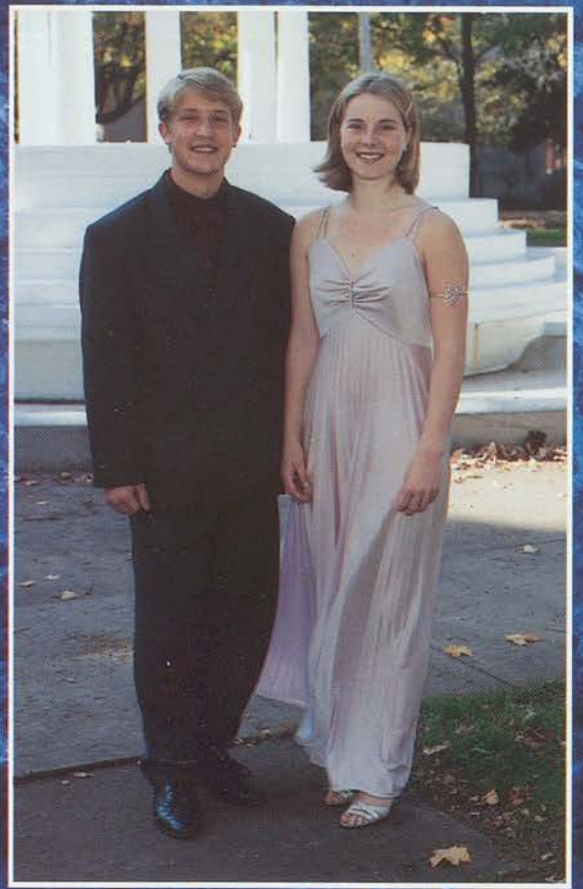

Escort and Attendant of the Junior class were Josh Eash and Melissa Hughes. Josh participated on the Varsity Soccer team and Melissa participated on the Varsity Basketball team.

Jake Gates and Anne Kellogg were the senior representatives for the Homecoming court. Jake participated on the Varsity Soccer team and Anne took stats for the Soccer team.

King and Queen for the 1997-98 school year were Ryan Vandyke and Amy Rosko. Ryan was on the Varsity Football team and Amy participated on the Cross Country team.

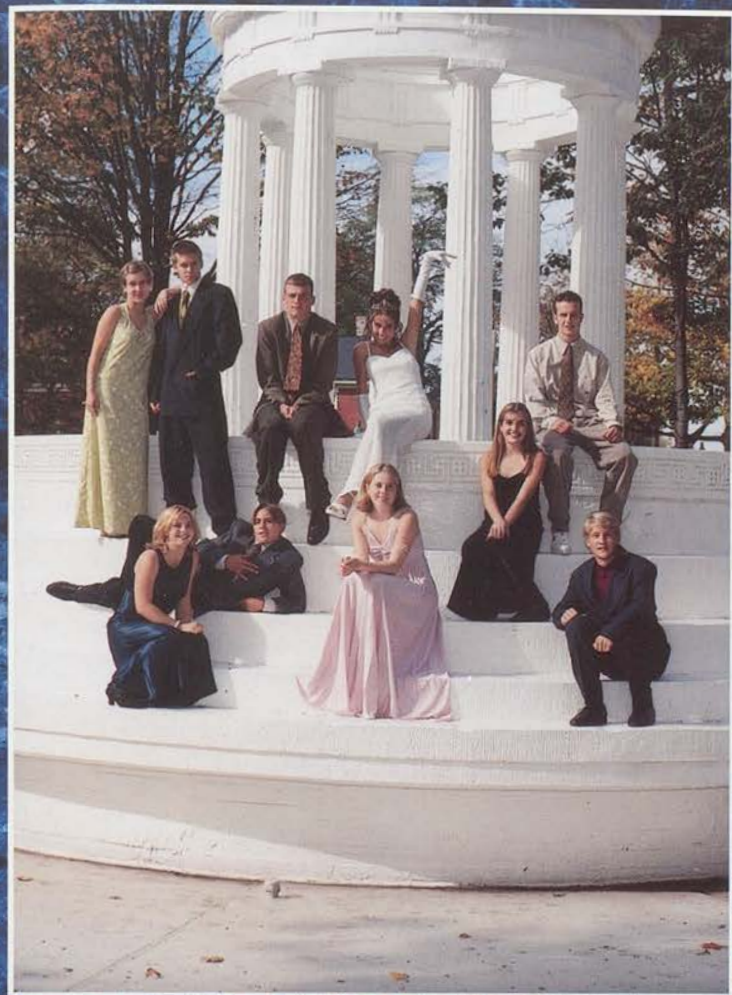

They thought they were hiding. They actually believed they were blending in with the leaves. After the girls got up, Amy realized she was just a few inches away from putting her hand in dog poop. You couldn't have imagined the joy she felt.

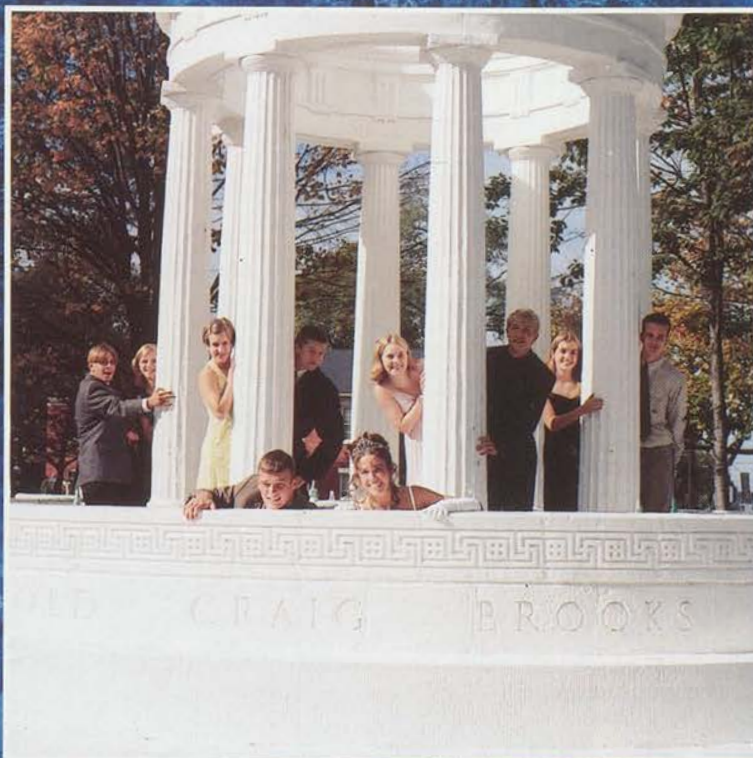

All smiles
Josh Eash and Melissa Hughes could hardly contain their smiles after receiving the junior class nomination. There were no complaints when the votes came in; everyone agreed they were a great choice.

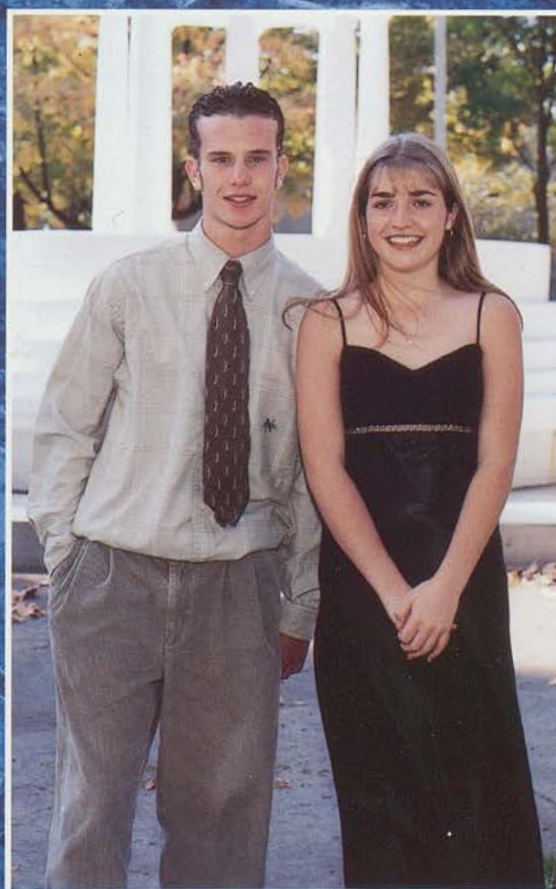

Strike a pose
The photographer wanted everyone to act cool, but all Ryan could do was try to keep warm. The rest of the group could only think about how cool they would look when the picture came back from developing.

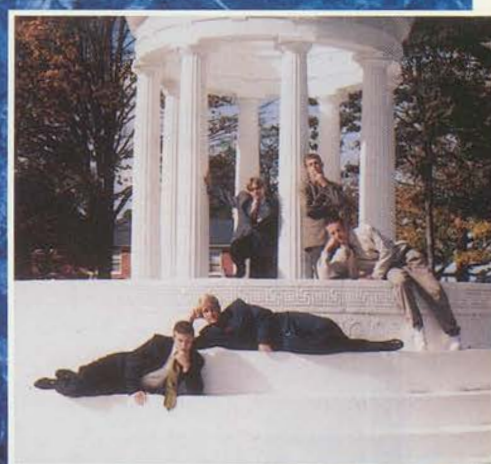

Peek-a-boo
Everyone decided to make it a game of hide and seek. Except they all hid and no one really wanted to find them. Noah told the photographer that he was just trying to keep warm.

Vertically challenged
Noah Wilson and Brooke McKenney stood as tall as they could to accept the honor of being on the court. Both Noah and Brooke were actively involved in the Homecoming festivities. Noah played on the J.V. Football team and Brooke played on the Varsity Tennis team.

We're not as goonie as we look
This year's Freshman Escort was Mark Loyer. Mark participated on the Freshmen Football team and in other school activities during the fall. The Freshmen Attendant was Stacey Roberts. Stacey spent most of her fall playing on the J.V. Tennis team.

Come on, we're tired
The girls tried to make them look more enthusiastic, but they just couldn't get them to stand up. After a few hours of taking pictures, the guys were ready for a nap.

"The whole world is a stage."

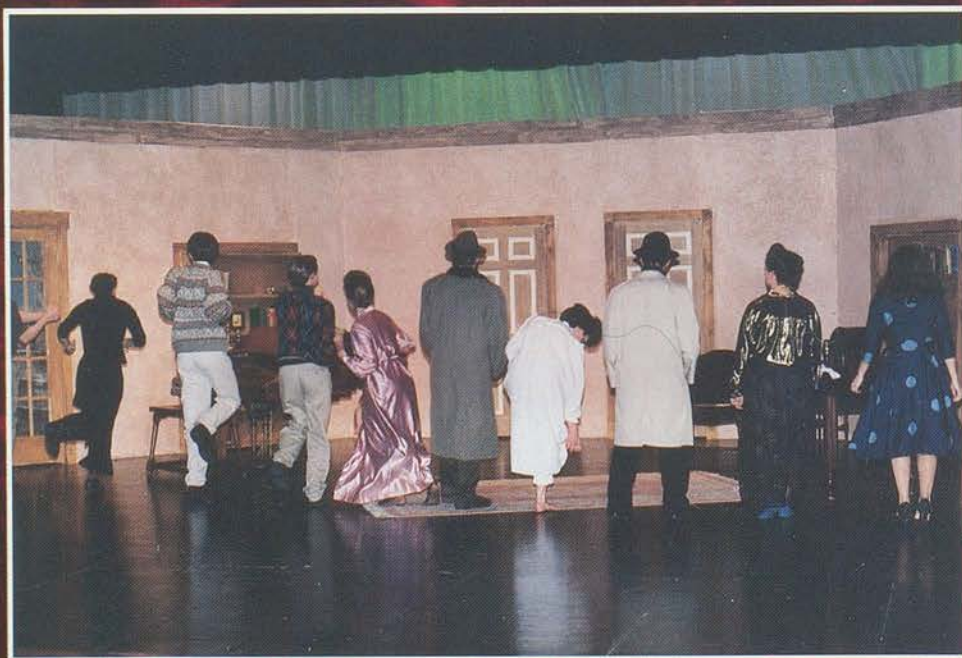

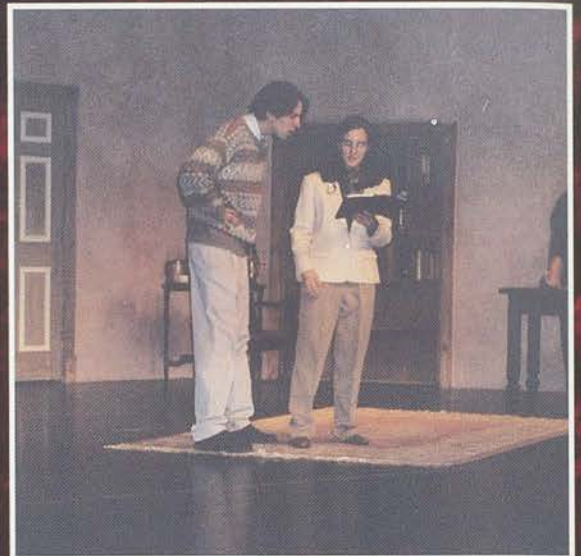

The lights dim, and the audience quiets down. The mood for The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940 is set. It is midnight in an old, dark mansion. The wind outside is howling as the snow falls heavily onto the ground. Helsa (Amy Laupp), the maid, steps onto the stage. She sets coffee on a desk just as the door behind her opens. Out of the door walks out what looks like the killer from Scream. It actually is the infamous Stage Door Slasher. Years ago, while a creative team was working on a play, many people on the set were brutally murdered. The killer's identity was never found, but was nicknamed "The Stage Door Slasher." No one had heard from it since. Helsa turns around to see this figure standing there with knife. Trying to fight for her life, Helsa does not make it; she is stabbed. The killer puts her body into a closet for some poor innocent person to discover. The cast soon finds Helsa's body and makes a rapid search to find out who the killer is.

Who did it? This was the main focus for this year's fall MHS play. This whole play was devoted to finding out the identity of The Stage Door Slasher. The cast did a wonderful job of keeping the audience laughing, but at the same time, filled with suspense. Since many of the characters in the show were from countries such as Germany and Ireland, some of the cast members had to work on acquiring an accent. Others had to over-exaggerate their characters through body motion. One thing was apparent through, this was not an easy play to pull off. Many hours of rehearsing, memorizing lines, and building the set were put into this play. The cast showed this through their excellent performances. Due to football play-offs, their opening night did not have as many people come as anticipated, but the cast performed! The following night on Saturday, this cast presented their show to nearly a sold out crowd, so it was worth it! Not only has this group of very young actors and actresses showed their talents that they can act, but also they got the chance to do a really fun play. Many hours of hard work were put into this show and it was shown through the very last line. Great job and we hope to see you all in many more shows to come!

The Killer is ...
Danielle Vining used clues and codes to determine who she suspected the killer was. She is seen here telling Nate Cox as he listens attentively. Danielle's character actually turned out to be an undercover detective.

I did not do it!
Amy Laupp tries to explain to Kevin Rayner, Nate Cox, and Danielle Vining that she is not the killer. It turned out that Amy was telling the truth. She did lie about something though, that she did indeed kill somebody! Amy used a heavy German accent to fit into her character, Helsa. Great job, Amy!

Stage fright
This is not opening night, and the cast did not get stage fright. What is actually happening is this is a warm-up before a dress rehearsal. Stretching out, various activities, and loosening up were all part of warming up for this group. Doing this not only relaxes, but it reduces being tense and nervous on stage.

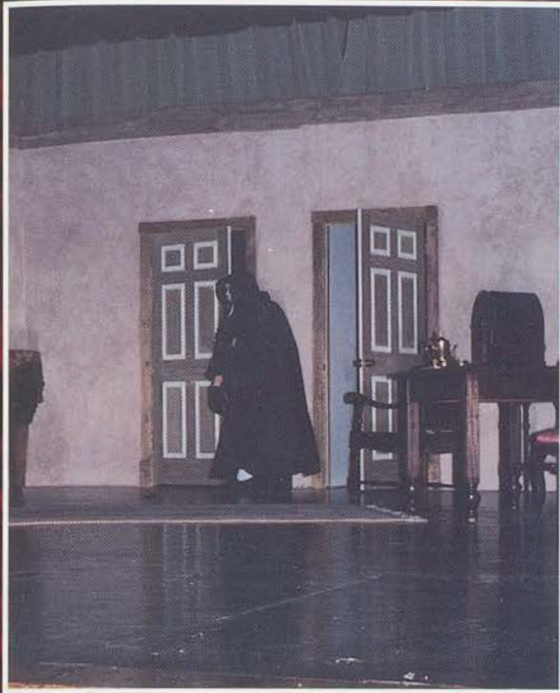

What are you saying?
Nate Cox tries to explain to Ann Loomis and Justin Judd what exactly the killer looked like. David Saber and Emily Feeney look on while trying to make sense of what Nate is saying. He must not have been doing a very good job since he looks pretty shook up.

Isn't this Scream?

No, this is not an excerpt from the movie Scream; it is actually the Stage Door Slasher! While The Stage Door Slasher and the boyfriend from Scream have very similar outward appearances, the Stage Door Slasher mainly killed ballerinas. Who was it you ask? It turned out to be Ken De La Maize played by Kevin Rayner!

I found it!!! While Justin Judd goes off looking for a secret passage, Ann Loomis realizes that there is one by the desk. Ann and Justin both did a great job opposite each other. Both of them have exceptional acting resumes and this is shown very well in this play!

Who did it? David Saber, Emily Feeney, Kevin Rayner, Nate Cox, Amy Laupp, Justin Judd, and Krysten Sanford try to figure out which one of them is the Stage Door Slasher. Every single one of them did an excellent job. It is not very often that MHS does a murder mystery play. With the help of the director, Mrs. Ralston, this show was a hit! Congratulations to the actors, stage help, directors and anyone else that helped to make this show possible. Great job!

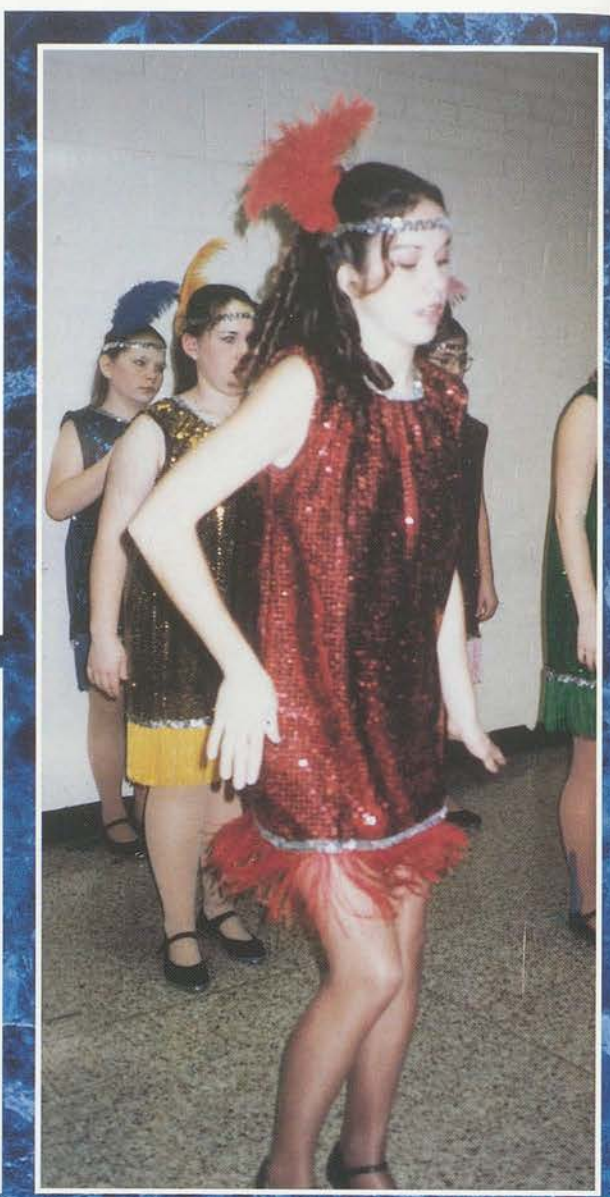

"The sky is the limit."

Tap it girl! Senior Amy Rosko practices her tap steps before performing in the Marshall Community Follies. This is Amy's third year performing in the Marshall Follies.

It's true! School and school-related activities are extremely important. Yet, we often times forget that there are limitless opportunities for students to participate in outside of school.

Many students enjoy the everyday activities of life such as walking, reading, playing sports, and spending time with friends. Others may enjoy different activities such as church-related youth groups and clubs. Whatever the activity is, MHS students are very involved both in and out of school. These out-of-school activities made life interesting for many people. Through community service many students get a feeling of contentment as they help make the community a better place to live. There are also clubs and activities that give students a chance to explore many opportunities not available in school. Work is another out-of-school activity many students are impacted by as they raise money and prepare for the future. Some outside activities do not involve an organization, yet they are just as important as those that do. No matter what, the out of school activities the students are involved in should not be overlooked. Just because a person is not involved in school related activities does not necessarily mean they are not involved in anything!

People of the sun
These stars of the Marshall Civic Youth Theater summer production of Little Mary Sunshine use the intermission to the fullest as they warm up their smiles for the second act. These girls had to stick together as they were greatly outnumbered in the predominately male cast. Many believe the summer play is a good way to improve your acting skills and spend some times with friends in the process.

Fine Bovine
Tina Rewa spend some times with her steer as she prepares it for the 4-H competition. Tina Rewa said that she is a part of the 4-H beef club to help raise money for college. She also said that she felt that this experience makes her more responsible as she has to care for her steer. Tina is not alone in her 4-H involvement, as many high school students are a part of 4-H. Rather through their steer, rabbits, chicken, gardening, or other ways the students that are involved in 4-H say they greatly enjoy the experience.

Warm it up Kris

Krysten Sanford and Carlee Lukje stretch it out and warm it up before the travel over to Battle Creek for their jazz debut.

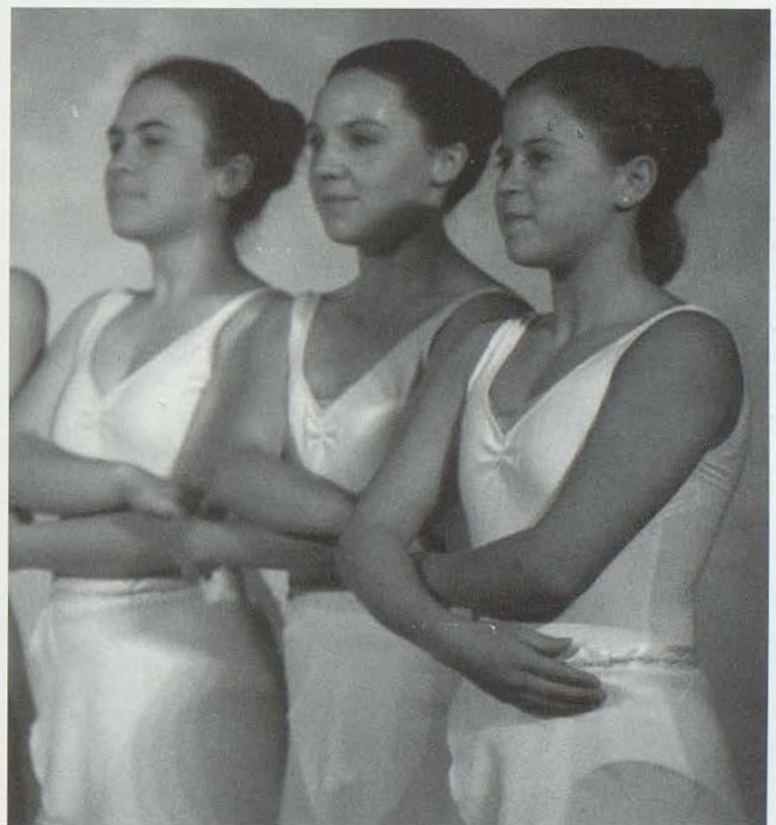

Mava skills flowing like lava

The girls drink Java to wake up for early morning Mava. Coffee is a drink favored by the elite squad, for the AM workouts are often most displeasing.

Suds up

Kelly Tiece and Elisa Brigham put some power behind their brush stroke as they scrub Elisa's steer for showing. EB is very devoted to her steer as she spends much time with them.

Dancing in the clouds

Elizabeth Kane, Liz Smith, and Abby Bedient join hands as they take their dancing to a new level. These girls dance together through a new studio in town, Taylor's School of Dance.

"Winning isn't everything, but wanting to is."

Impressive! ... That's an understatement. This year the Varsity Football team slaughtered every opponent, winning all regular season games by a huge margin. The guys accomplished many goals this season, including going undefeated for the first time since 1977 and ending Harper Creek's winning streak. Another accomplishment was making it to the Silverdome for a second time. After they beat the reigning class "B" state champs in the first game of the season, Jackson Lumen Christi, they knew the season was bound to be great.

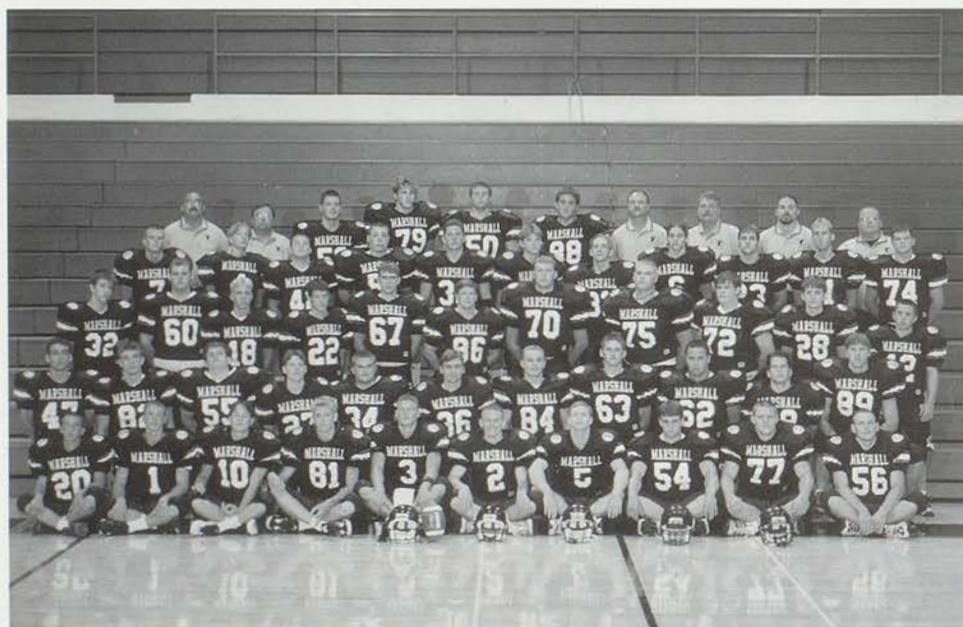

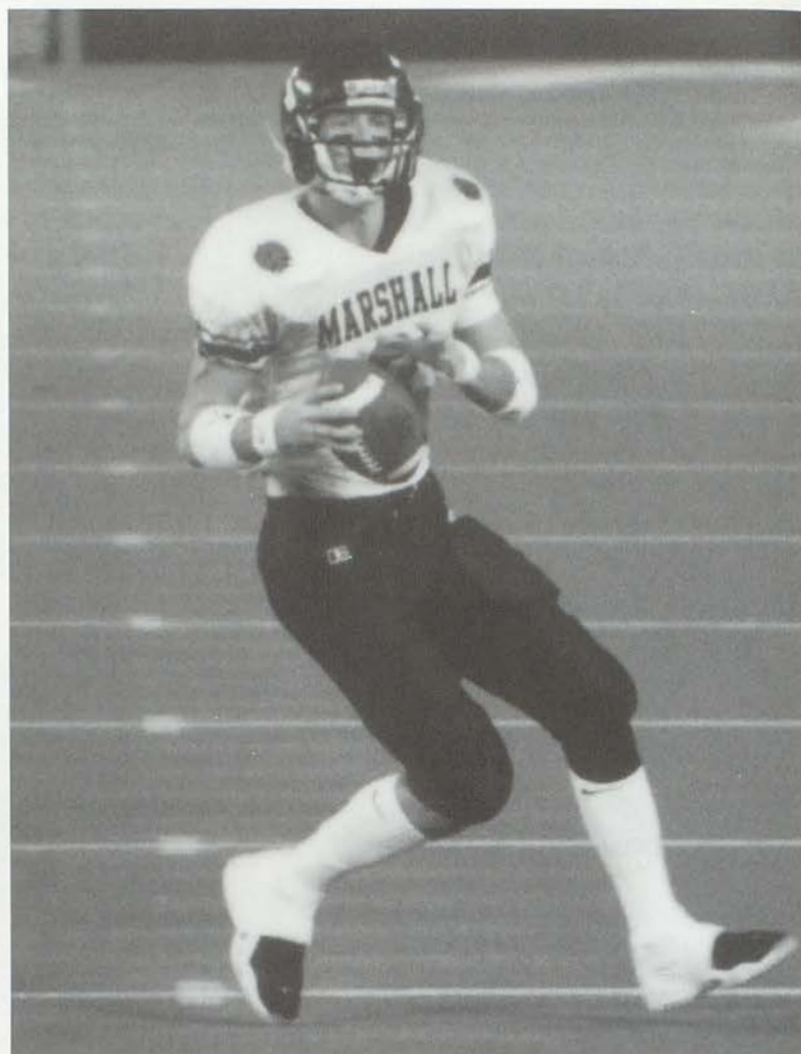

This year the 'Skins were led by captains Jeremy Brown, Ryan Van Dyke, Doug Searles, Justin Murphy, and Tim Williams. The captains did a great job leading the guys to another State run.

After finishing their perfect regular season, the 'Skins advanced to the playoffs. They continued their winning streak by defeating Fowlerville, Ortonville-Brandon, and Allen Park. After beating Allen Park, our mighty Redskins advanced to the Silverdome. In the Silverdome they faced the Falcons of Ogemaw Heights. The Marshall High Redskins gave their all, but unfortunately came up a bit short. "We accomplished a great deal over the past two seasons, a lot more than most people will in a lifetime. One loss won't ruin the memories that I have acquired over time with these guys," stated senior defensive end John Turner.

Ready, Set, Hike

Ryan VanDyke and the Marshall offense prepare to force the ball down field. Throughout the season the offensive unit had no problems moving the chains.

Here Jeremy "Batman" Brown uses his incredible speed to outrun Ortonville-Brandon defenders. Marshall's passing game was highly praised throughout the season.

Doug Searles may think, but we know he can catch the next pass. Doug had an outstanding season setting numerous receiving records.

"When you win,
nothing hurts"

The seasons for both the Freshman and J.V. Football teams were very impressive in 1997. There was a great deal of improvement shown over the course of the twelve weeks of football. The future for Marshall Football is looking very bright after watching these two teams put together lots of hard work and determination to have a successful season.

The Freshman team finished their season at 8-1 and were crowned the Twin Valley Champs. Their solid mix of running and passing caused opposing teams many headaches. Also, the defense for the freshman was very tenacious. Many teams struggled to cross the goal line against them, which allowed them to win a few crucial games.

This year was a rebuilding year for the J.V. team. After a great start to the season, the team lost a heartbreaker to Sturgis. They came together after a few losses, regrouped and came out with a respectable 6-3 record. "Our team's chemistry started to help us in the end of the season," stated Seth Shubert. "Next year is what is going to be the test for us, we've got some big shoes to fill, but I've got confidence in our team."

Get off me punk!!
Wide receiver Seth Shubert talks a little smack to a defender that he has just run over. Seth's size and speed helped him to be the leading receiver for the J.V. team this year.

"If I have to I can do anything, I am strong, I am invincible, I am woman."

You can call 'em young and inexperienced, and you can even say they're not tall enough, but don't ever tell 'em that they don't have a heart, a "scrappy in your face" defense, or a dazzling fast break offense which gives opposing coaches traumatizing headaches. Yes, it's the mighty Redskin legion of hoopers led by their mentor Dan Stulberg.

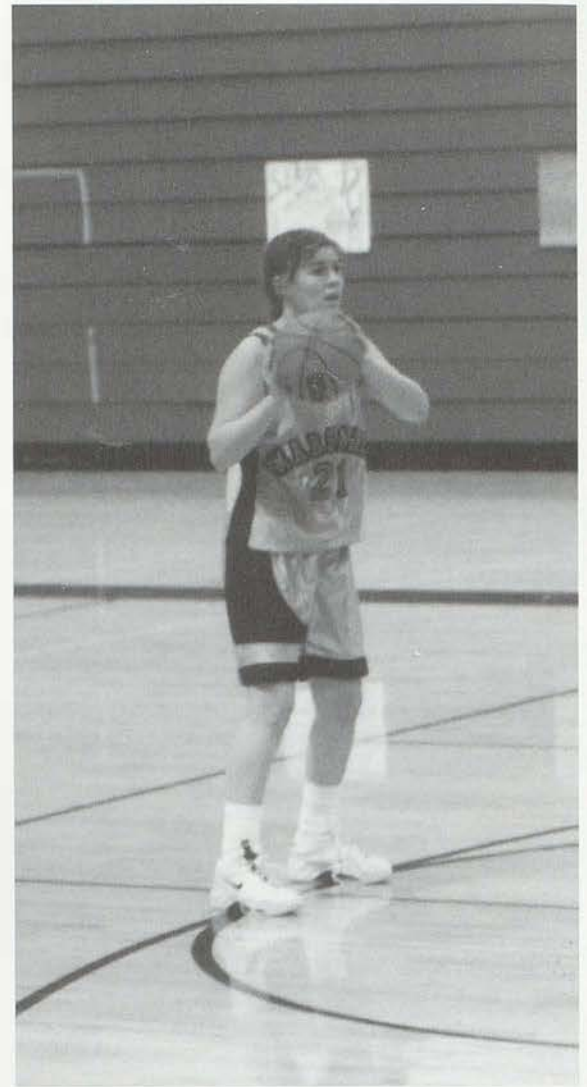

This talented Redskin juggernaut combines the skill of three grades. The team meshes together in a ballad sweet, capable of almost anything. Though much of the team has seen what the pressures of the playoffs are like, it is also true that the team has a few "younger players." Well, these "super sophs," as we have come to know them, accepted the challenge and helped the team to a respectable 16-8 record. It's hard for one to think of just one quote to sum up this year's extraordinary team. We must go back to the 80's, a time of great rock-n-roll. I'm talking of course, of "The Boss" Bruce Springsteen when he said, "You can't start a fire without a spark, this gun's for hire" It was that special "spark" that found this team second in the Twin Valley, number one in their district, and second in their entire region. Our own "boss," head coach Dan Stulberg, gave a summary on the season when he said, "This was the most balanced team I've ever had, in terms of talent. It made for some very competitive practices, but never seemed to affect the high level of comradery that existed between the girls. I thought we had an admirable league season, finishing second, but the girls played their best during the tournament which made for an exciting finish."

As any faithful Redskin fan would do, one must look back on the season to recall the memories. A thrilling double-overtime game with state-ranked Lakeview was definitely a highlight. The overtime win against Albion in the playoffs had fans on the edge of their seats. The girls proved to be headstrong as they rolled in the districts and made it to the regional finals, only to fall in overtime to a strong Niles team. Thanks for the ride, girls!

Missy, you're not point guard!

Though the Lough's have a history of point guards, Missy is not one of them. A voice from the crowd echoed, "Missy, get down low, post up, box out, and get physical!"

Hit me off

Laurel McKenna calls for the "rock" on the baseline. She often took her game outside the arc in hopes of burying a "J" in her unworthy opponent's face. She is fortunate enough to have a game of grace and style mixed with the grit and will to get by.

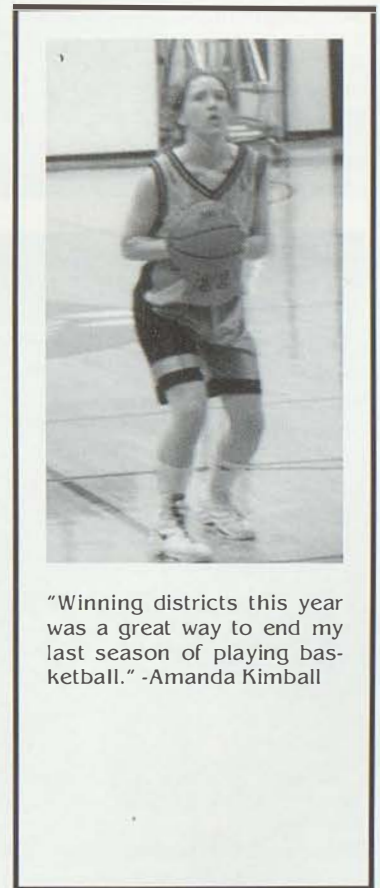

A little bit of the "D" dance

It's too bad that this Beaver is unaware of the "Nite Prowler" Melissa Hughes. The prowler often comes in the night when no one can see her. Obviously it works, as she is about to steal the ball like a thief.

"Winning districts this year was a great way to end my last season of playing basketball." -Amanda Kimball

I'll dunk when it's worth 3 points

All attention is drawn to Tonya "the P-Train" Purcell. She is a force down low, shown by the three defenders needed to guard her. Tonya got the ball, drop-stepped, and dunked on a Beaver. Well, she could of!?

"Victory belongs to the most persevering"

One win after another, the Girls' J.V. Basketball team was cookin'. A lot of ingredients were needed but there was no doubt they had them all: love, heart, and intensity like no other. One special ingredient the girls supplied was team work. This was a key to success for the team. They weren't a one person team like many, but instead all eleven girls played a major role in retrieving such a memoorable season.

The freshman team also had a great year with a record of 16-2. Each victory racked up more points than the opposing team could handle. Their first loss was against Lakeview, but they got revenge when playing Lakeview again, winning 37-25. Another tough loss was at the end of the season at Portage Central. The girls lost by one point in overtime. Both teams have a future to look forward to.

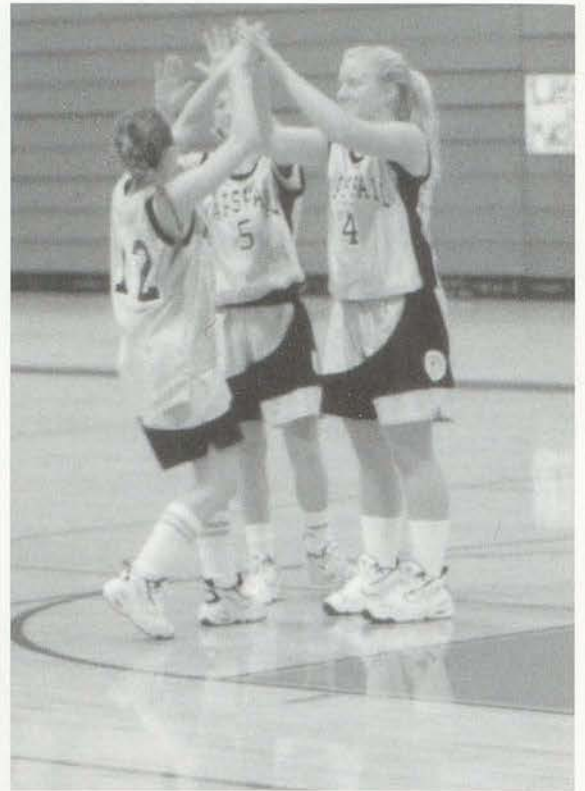

It's pay dirt time!

Emily Lynn Kleinschmidt looks closely and carefully for Anne Rebecca Stulberg. The play was set up so Anne would have a chance for an open dunk, but unfortunately she tripped and slid off the court. Both Emily and Anne helped out the team with their nothing-but-net shooting.

Christa South tried this great line out on a Eaton Rapids Greyhound defender. Christa was instrumental in the team's success throughout the season. The sad kids from Eaton Rapids, though, don't like having a diesel-powered bus for their mascot; but hey, it beats having to be a Beaver.

"CHALLENGE YOUR RESOLVE."

"We gonna rock down to Electric Avenue, and then we'll take you higher."

Yes, I know, it's sad that none of us know where "Electric Avenue" actually is. This year, however, the Boys' Varsity Soccer squad found it and walked down this famed avenue, their mullets flowing in the fall air.

This season held many treasures unforeseen as the boys held a number one ranking in Division III and dominated nearly all their opponents. Goalies Sean Duffey and Brian Woods were spectacular, holding nine shut-outs between them. The former allowed a little under one goal per game. "I am a goalie," stated Sean. "I am a general out there, my defense is my army." Indeed they were an armed force. This season's defense was led by seniors John Thompson, Ryan Traver, Jake Gates, and Karl Kowalske. "Hey, all we did this year was our jobs," said Greg Rasher. The super seniors got some support from a rather unlikely source- the freshman class. Rookies Rob Backlund, Brad McCormack and Andy Rosko were the babies of the bunch. They weren't as tall as the rest of the gang, but they rapped to the beat just the same.

The mid-field and forwards also proved to be a point of strength. "We were a rock, we were an island," Justin Weare told me. Yes. Andrew Neidinger, a co-captain and all-area team member, led the team in goals this year with ten. He was, however, second in the assist category, which belonged to the eldest McCormack. As well as being a co-captain, an all-area team member, and first team at the Jackson Baptist tournament, Andy led the team in assists and was third in scoring. The third co-captain, Kevin Rayner, could not play due to van troubles, but was a point of great inspiration.

Although the season ended in a disappointing loss to Gull Lake, the team and the season will always be remembered as one of the best MHS has ever seen. With a final record of 14-2-2, the boys proved to be good. They could never have done it without the help of two awesome coaches, Mr. Barry Phillips and Mr. Ed Smatula. This team challenged their own resolve, even when "their walls were to the backs."

Rally 'round the family

Andy McCormack, a tri-captain and first team all-area member, brings the team in for ritual breathing before the game. The team was known for raging against the machine and other opponents.

Pendulum principle

Someone somewhere (actually it was Newton) said, "For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction." Rob Backlund obviously knows this and takes full advantage of his knowledge.

Three's Company

After furiously assaulting the Jackson Baptist Tournament, the tyrannical trio of Andy McCormack, Kevin Rayner, and Andrew Neidlinger decide to go primal and take their shirts off. Neidlinger led the procession.

"Some people looked at this year as somewhat of a disappointment - I don't like that idea at all. This season proved to be a year of great success to us as teammates. I was proud of our accomplishments. I play soccer." - Brian Zalewski.

"Don't it make you wanna smile?"

After a simple victory at the Baptist Tourney, these young boys smile, acting as though it was a tough match. "Tough?" questioned John Thompson. "Our warm-ups were more intense, my brother."

No matter whether it was hot and humid or cold and rainy, the JV Soccer team worked hard at practice and in games, trying to be the best they could be. Coach Wayne Backlund worked the team very hard, doing drills and lots of conditioning. After the season was over, everyone agreed that Coach Backlund knew what he was doing.

This year's JV Soccer team was agreeably the best ever. They compiled an overall record of 9-3-5, giving them more wins and fewer losses than any other JV Soccer team in history. With a few games that could have gone either way, this team could possibly be the best the school will ever see.

A key player in the team's success was the goalkeeper Matt duBois. This was Matt's second year as starting JV goalkeeper and he was solid all year. While duBois tried to keep the ball out the goal, Adam Hecox, Ryan O'Connell, and Ben Brott tried to put it in. Adam, elected a co-captain, showed a lot of leadership and veteran skill, while Ben was busy scoring goals, and O.C. (as he was called by his teammates) used his head to do the same. The defense was lead by the other co-captain Doug Rasher and backed up by John Lambrix and Nick Kilgren. These players, along with all of the rest of the starters and the players off the bench, gave it their all every single day to accomplish their goals and to have such an unbelievable season.

Bring it in!

The '97 JV Soccer team huddles before a rainy home game against Sturgis, which they unfortunately lost. The team came together and yelled "Form like Voltron" to get psyched before every game.

Here it comes!

Nick Kilgren makes one of his long throws from deep in his own end of the field. Nick played mostly defense this year, but he was also one of the three goalies on the team.

Ryan O'Connell takes a shot on a free kick near the opponent's goal. Ryan was a starting forward for the JV team this year.

Shake-n-Bake!
Ben Brott puts one of his many moves on a defender on the way down the field to score. Ben was the JV team's "go to" guy and scored many important goals in the clutch this season.

"We had a great season. We improved a lot, had many successful games, and had a lot of fun. We learned a lot about having heart." -Doug Rasher, co-captain "Motivation will almost always beat mere talent."

This year's Girls' Varsity Tennis team proved that Marshall knows how to play tennis. Not only did the girls do better this year than ever before, they were feared by opponents throughout the Twin Valley and even managed to knock off one of Marshall's biggest rivals, Albion.

This great season could definitely be attributed to the fact that the girls worked hard day after day. The best part was that they had fun together, which made winning even better.

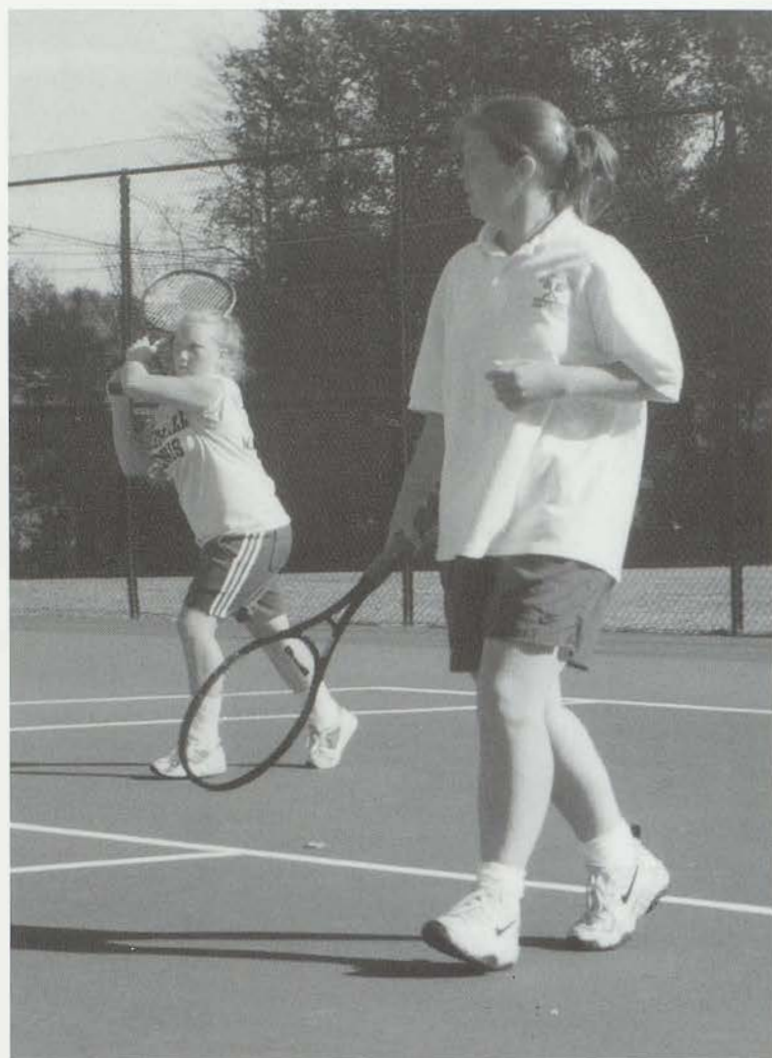

Singles players on this year's team included junior Meghan Wolf, senior Shiree Rochelle, junior Kayla Watson, and sophomore Brooke McKenney. Doubles teams consisted of junior Jamie Newman and senior Jessica Moffat, seniors Katie Crowle and Elysia Hecox, seniors Jessica Fitch and Rebecca Unterbrink, and sophomore Sunny Quada and junior Lynelle Johnson. Together these players not only had a great season, but they took home two first places (and trophies) in both the Pennfield and Charlotte Invationals. They also took fifth overall in the Twin Valley.

There's no doubt that this year's seniors will be greatly missed next year, but the winning tradition is sure to continue. After all, at Marshall we know how to play tennis, and we can only get better from here.

Got you back

Jamie Newman watches intently as Jessica Moffat tries to kill one back over the net during practice. These girls definitely prove that practice makes perfect.

Gold medals

Seniors Elysia Hecox and Katie Crowle proudly display their first place medals which they won at the Charlotte invitational. Together, these girls won almost all of their matches and were definite team leaders throughout the season.

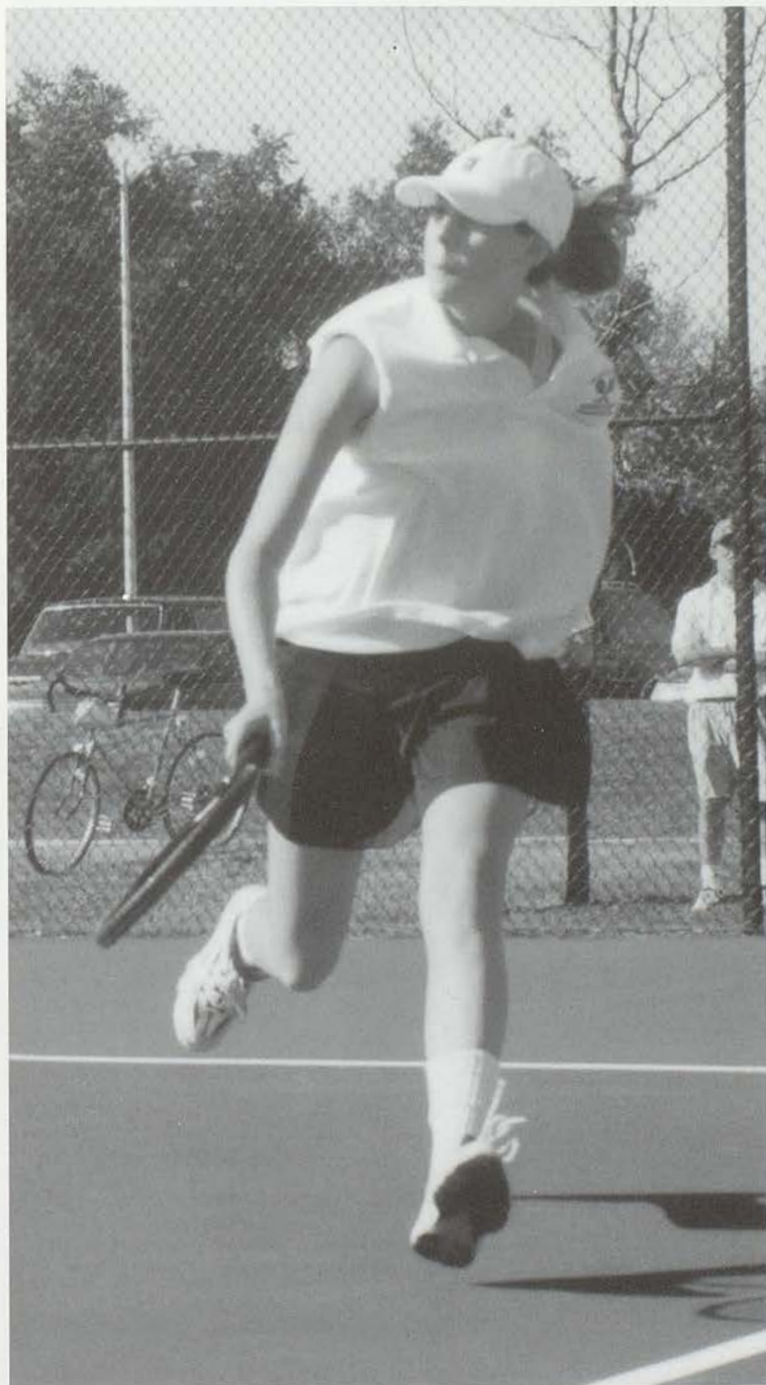

Second to none

They're number one! This year's team won the Charlotte Invitational and got a big gold trophy for it! They also won the Pennfield Invitational this year.

Full Speed Ahead

Junior Kayla Watson ever so gracefully runs after the ball in hopes of scoring, yet another point. Kayla was one of the top singles players for Marshall this year and hopes to keep the tradition going next year as a senior.

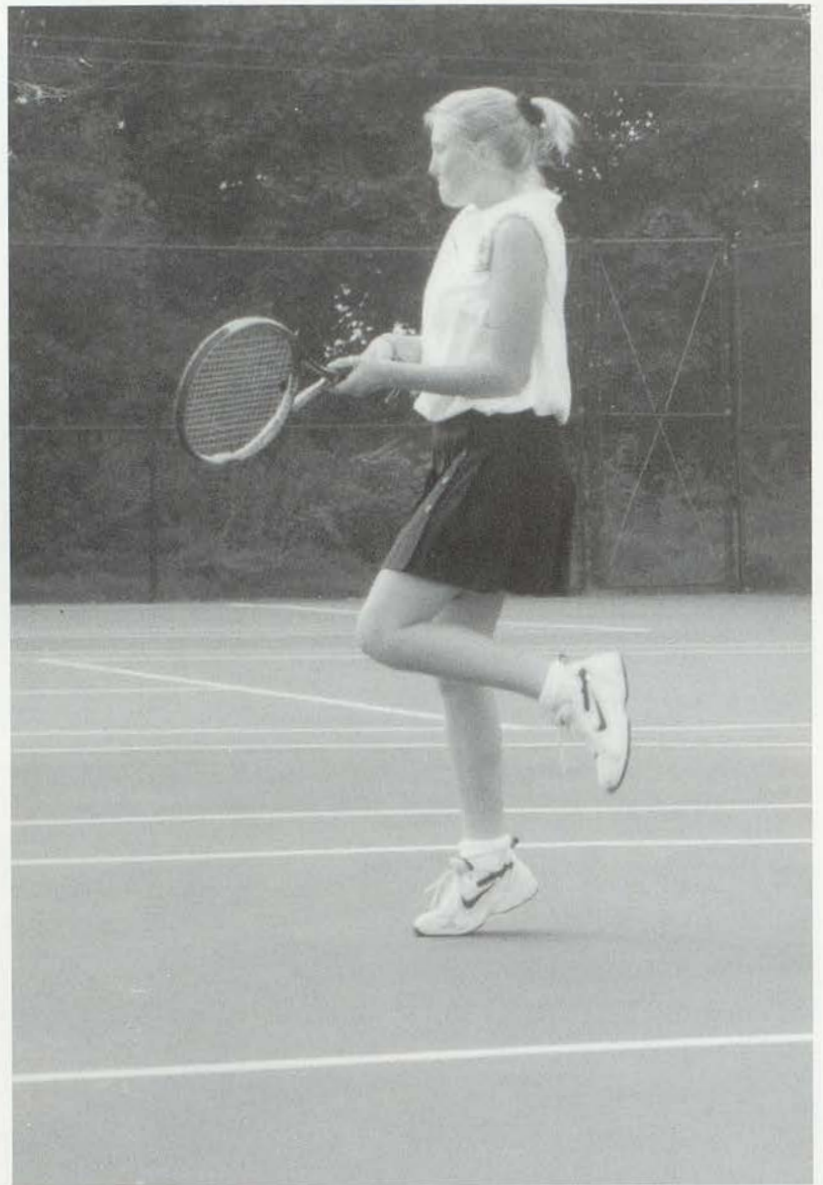

BEAT IT!

Brooke McKenney tries her darndest to serve up another ace. Serving is something that takes a lot of skill, which Brooke seems to have a lot of.

Hot! Hot! Hot!

Jamie Fry tip toes on the court, anticipating her next return by her opponent. This is Jamie's third year on the J.V. Tennis team, adding much help to the team.

From the pep talks at the fence to the giggles during practice, the J.V. Tennis team wound their season up with five losses and five wins. A couple of great wins against Comstock and Coldwater along with a few tough losses. The team achieved a few of their many goals throughout the season, one being to have a great season with a little laughter here and there, along with a little concentration from the team.

Although there were many teammates returning on the team again this year, many newcomers were introduced to the game of tennis for the first time. With sixteen players on the team, practice, coaches and court space sometimes became a struggle, but the team always managed to make the best of it. "There's a lot more team spirit, with so many people, which helps the team out very much," stated Emily Davis.

When asking Kate Weston what her most memorable time of the season was, she stated, "This whole season has been my most memorable fall experience."

Hopefully, all of the improvements made by the girls this season will carry on through next year to obtain the same great record, if not better!

Take That Girls!

With Kelly Triece and Kate Weston trailing behind at the base line, they're concentrating intensely on their match. This is Kate and Kelly's first season on the J.V. Tennis team. Being a strong first doubles team, their many wins helped the team tremendously!

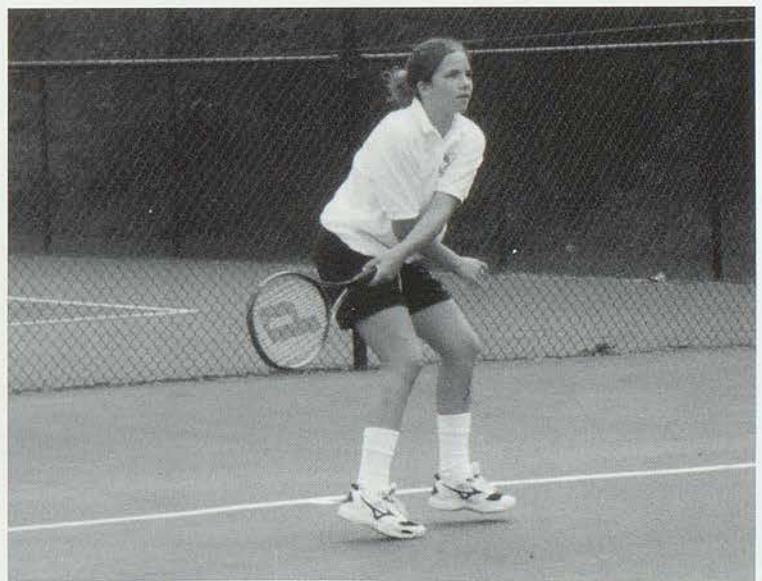

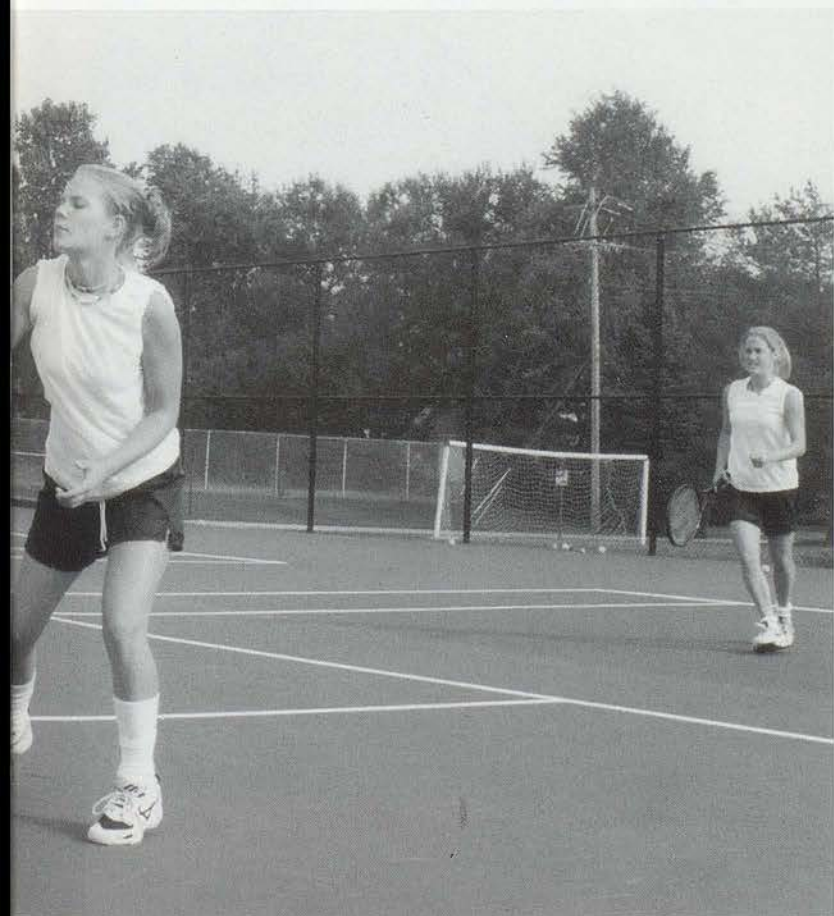

Please don't hit me!

Playing as a doubles team this match, Emily Driver and Amber Leonard play hard together. Emily and Amber both have played for the J.V. Tennis team for two years, also playing singles as well doubles.

Elisa Brigham finishes with a smooth, strong follow through. This is EB's first year playing on the tennis team. She's added much help to the team, showing many big improvements.

"Keep your eyes open before you swing, and half shut afterwards."

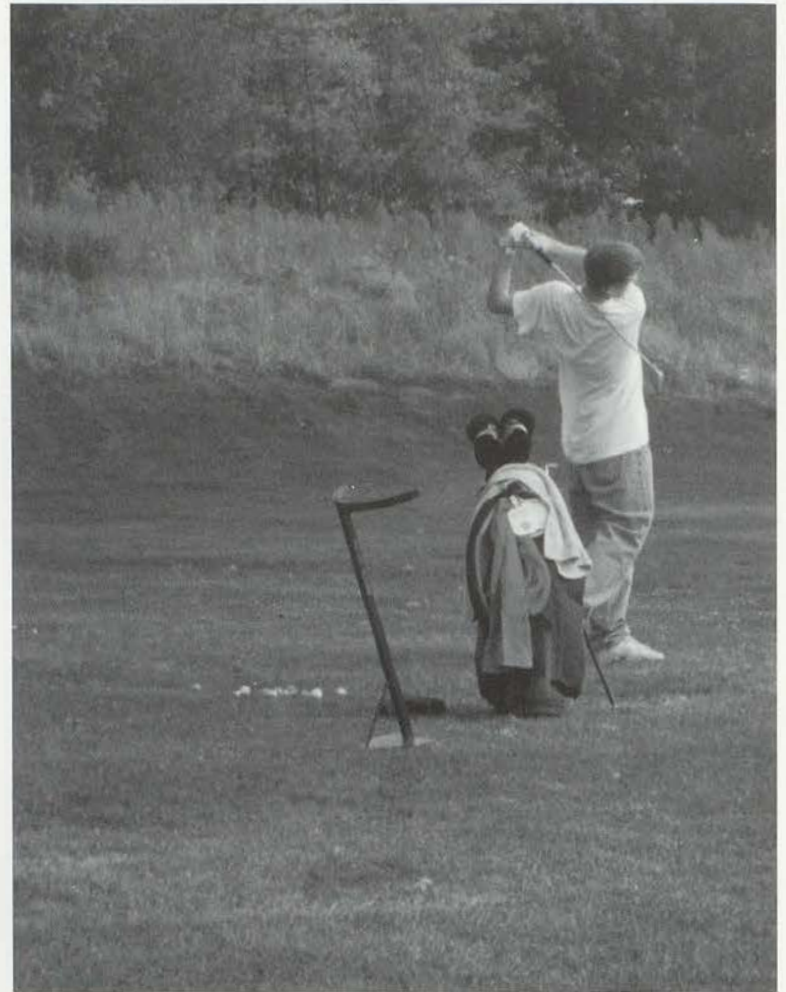

The Marshall Boys' Golf team, who is coached by Mr. Tom Reynolds and Mr. Al Elyea, had an outstanding year. Going into the year, Coach Reynolds and the boys stated that their 1996 State Championship is theirs until someone takes it away. The team was extremely young with only one senior on the team this year. Roy Adair, All State First Team, comment on the season "I was satisfied overall with our average and performance, although the state meet was disappointing. I wish I could come back for another year."

The team ended with a 3-1 dual meet record, placed third in the league, qualified second in Regionals and tenth in the State. The team received many trophies and plaques. The boys were each given medals for qualifying second in Regionals.

The Junior Varsity team ended their season with a 8-6 record in dual meets. The team does not really compete like the Varsity; however, they get the feel of competition and being a team. They put in a lot of hard work to get ready for the Varsity level.

Ready, set, practice

David Albaugh positions his golf balls as he gets ready to continue warming up before practice.

"Some take their mark...others leave it."

"This was the best girl's team I have ever coached," head coach John Hamlin commented. And indeed it was. There were many record-breaking performances this year, including the 200 yd. free relay (1:41.5), the 400 yd. free relay (3:42.6), and Sophomore Maureen Palchak broke the 50 yd. freestyle (25.2).

All the hard work started in the middle of August and continued through the end of November, with an impressive 3rd place finish at the Conference meet. "The talent and support displayed by this team was uncanny," stated assistant coach Dave Karns. For example the Lady 'Skins took 13 girls to the State meet at EMU in Ypsilanti. Those scoring points in Ypsilanti were Brenna McCauley, Jen Stevens, Jessica Bassis, and Maureen Palchak in the 200 and 400 yd. free relays, Maureen Palchak in the 50 and 100 yd. freestyle, and Jessica Bassis in the 100 yd. backstroke. The girls finished 8th place at this year's State meet.

The girls kept their spirits soaring through the season with an impressive 7-2 record. The lady swimmers swam the extra length this year (literally)!

The girls pecked at over 8000 yards (5 miles) in one day. Then they all tapered back down over the next two and a half weeks. In the end, all of their hard work and dedication definitely paid off. The best of luck to the girls next year!

Perfect Form

Senior Tina Rewa performs one of her more difficult dives with ease. This was Tina's second year diving; her improvement has been remarkable.

I can fly!!!

Sophomore Carol Wooley reaches for the wall during the 100 yard butterfly. Carol showed her versatility this year by swimming many different events for the Redskins.

I swim, therefore I am.

Senior Co-Captain Lissy Umphrey shows her determination to win the 200 yard freestyle. Lissy also swam the 500 yard freestyle and the 400 free relay.

Reach for the sky.

Senior Co-Captain Jessica Bassis kicks her way to the finish line. Jessica was also part of the State team all four years of high school.

"WE RUN."

"You mean those guys like to run? Seriously?" "They do this because they want to? How peculiar. How utterly peculiar."

Hey, we all know running's not a whole lot of fun most of the time. Some of us fight that norm, though. Some amazing young men fight for the freedom to run without fear. These pages are our salute to these gentlemen: those who are the members of the Boys' Cross Country team.

Coached by Mr. James Unruh, the boys of the team this year were like a stick of old dynamite, their wick to greatness burning short. No, no, please allow me to correct myself. They were a veritable crate of explosives in a burning warehouse. Next to oil drums!! That was the intensity with which our boys ran this year.

And run they did. The kids came through with driving force. Like El Niño on a rampage, they knocked down the grass huts of other Twin Valley teams with ease. The team consisted of a list of all-stars, from Brian Wirt to T.J. Wilder. With added coaching by Adam Cox, this season was a spectral one indeed.

Although no one attended the state meet this year, the boys put forth a great effort, giving their all to running. Running liked crazed men, escaped convicts with the dogs on their heels, the young men worked well together. We are all quite proud of them. So, the next time you ask yourself why you should run or who would ever want to run, you think of our boys. Think of them and then smile.

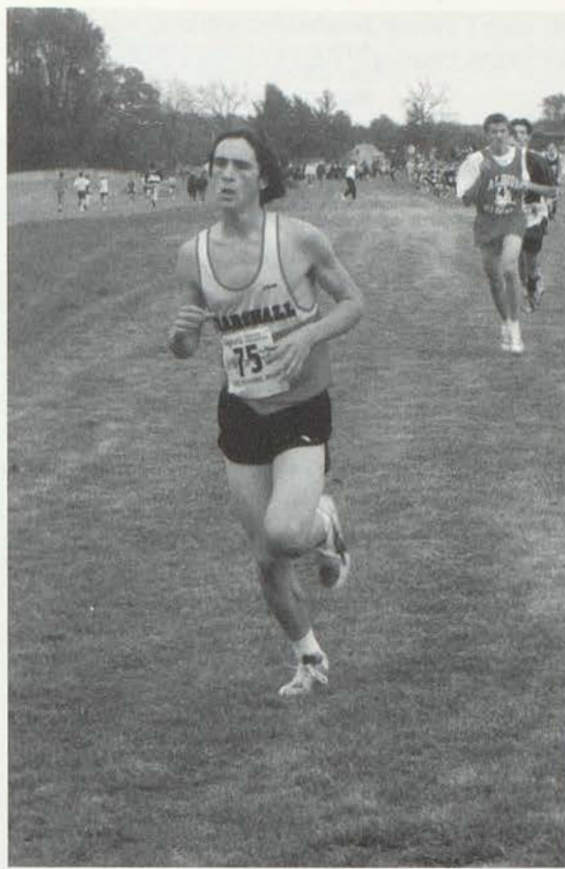

Field Of Dreams

Here we see a young but eager boys cross country team, running across the lush green fields of fantasy. Run boys, run for those lofty hopes which you deserve.

Randy the Quick

Randy Scherer was a powerhouse runner this year, dwarfing the competition. Randy obviously has no fear.

"No pain...no gain!"

What an awesome season! These words will forever be associated with the Girls' Cross Country team. This year the girls' team had their best season ever in the history of the sport at Marshall. The girls went undefeated in their non-conference season and finished a stunning second place in the Twin Valley. At the Twin Valley conference meet, Marshall placed four girls on the All-Conference team for the first time in the school's history. Seniors Amy Rosko and Jodi Rogers and juniors Sara Dillman and Meghan Marquoit were chosen for the All-Conference team. This was the second year Meghan and Jodi were honored on the All-Conference team.

The girls also captured a first place finish at the Coldwater Jamboree, placing nothing below third place at all Jamborees. The team was led by the elite seven of Amy Rosko, Jodi Rogers, Lora Sommers, Sara Dillman, Meghan Marquoit, Jenny Bramble, and Heidi Bramble. These girls also represented Marshall at the Regional Meet. The girls ran a strong race, finishing fifth overall in the Region. History was also set when two girls, Amy Rosko and Sara Dillman, qualified for the State meet. Needless to say, the '97-'98 Girls' Cross Country season set a new standard in women's running at Marshall High by finishing with an unprecedented season.

Amy Rosko pushes herself to the limits at every race, including the Allegan invitational. Amy fulfilled her goal of qualifying for State this year and set a personal best course record of :20.10.

Wanted

If you can identify this girl, immediately report her to the authorities. She is considered explosive and dangerously fast by her opposing cross country runners. Do not try to catch her yourself. She sometimes goes by the name of Jodi Rogers.

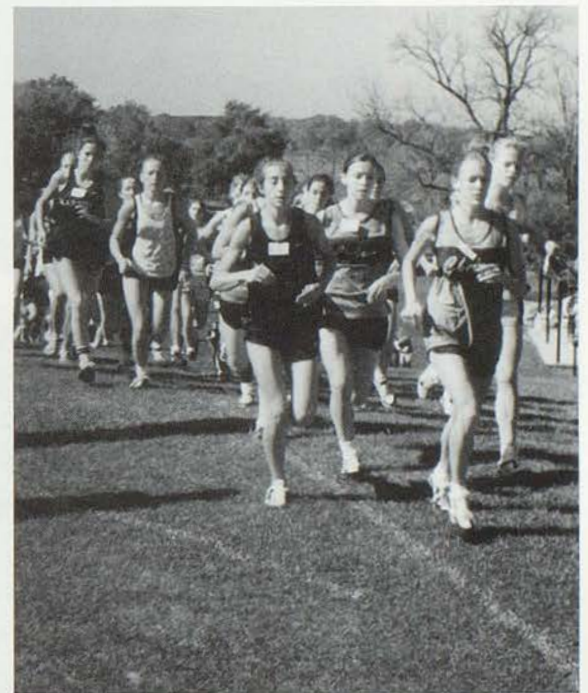

Andalé, Andalé

Jodi "Speedy Gonzales" Rogers leads the fast flying Cross Country Team to an overpowering victory over Eaton Rapids. Marshall had a perfect score at this meet, finishing girls in all top five places.

Sara Dillman makes her move during the Ostego Invitational. Sara was one of the top runners for Marshall. Sara qualified for the State meet after only her first year on the Cross Country Team.

Simon says, put your right foot out.

The Girls' Cross Country team used a fast pace game of Simon Says as a pre-game warm-up to mentally prepare to the race. Abby "the enforcer" Bedient checks to make sure no one on the team is cheating; she takes all games of Simon Says to the limits.

"We do not give victories with just one cheer!"

"What makes a champ" is just one of the new cheers that the crowd heard this football season. The girls didn't want just an ordinary season as any other. Kristina Rewa commented on the season, "This was my first year and it was a neat experience to be involved in. We worked hard for the guys to have a different and fun season," which they did. They kept a lot of the same things for the football players, like the candy and locker signs. The last thing they gave the guys were pillowcases with the saying "Sweet Dreams of Victory" including the guys name and number. The other fall sports were also given locker signs and posters.

Some girls went out of their way to give the players a new sign each week, and some teams received candy.

Besides just doing the normal game preparation for the season, the girls competed in a Twin Valley competition. The girls placed 3rd in the competition. Christie Bramel was the only girl who came home with an award. She received an Individual Award for one of her jumps. The Varsity and Junior Varsity squads went to a camp this summer to learn how to work as one team. With their new uniforms and big smiles the girls were ready to conquer the exciting football season.

"Happy Trails to You"

The newest addition to Marshall High School sports is the Equestrian team. Coach Pamela Weakly organized and created this special team. Last year the team went all the way to State with a top finish in districts, beating Harper Creek. In their second year they won districts, a second victory over Harper Creek, and proceeded to gain an unprecedented seventh place out of sixteen at State. This year's captains were Jill Treat and Mindy Weakly, two returning seniors.

This year's team consisted of thirteen riders; Jill Treat, Mindy Weakly, Cassie Treat, Ann Loomis, Molly Lazar, Anna Bastobbe, Corey Paradine, Becca Gray, Harmony

Johnson, Christi Stinebaugh, Jenny Yang, Wendy Hamilton, and Joe Weakly all competed with remarkable team spirit, even when competing against each other. Ann Loomis commented, "This is the first time I have ever been able to participate in a school sport because all my life I have worked extremely hard to be the best rider I can be. I was very surprised when I won my first class at a meet. I've never felt so much a part of a group achievement in my life."

Overall the team was very consistent and worked hard all the way through their winning season. And with this effort, the team is sure to be successful for many years to come.

Ride 'em cowgirl

Molly Lazar canters around the ring during a ride this season. Being a sophomore Molly has two more years to show her stuff. Congrats on a great year.

Hey horse, you hungry?

Junior Harmony Johnson prepares her horse for a show this season. Harmony ranked many times and won many titles. Not only is Harmony a great show rider, she is also a very successful rodeo rider.

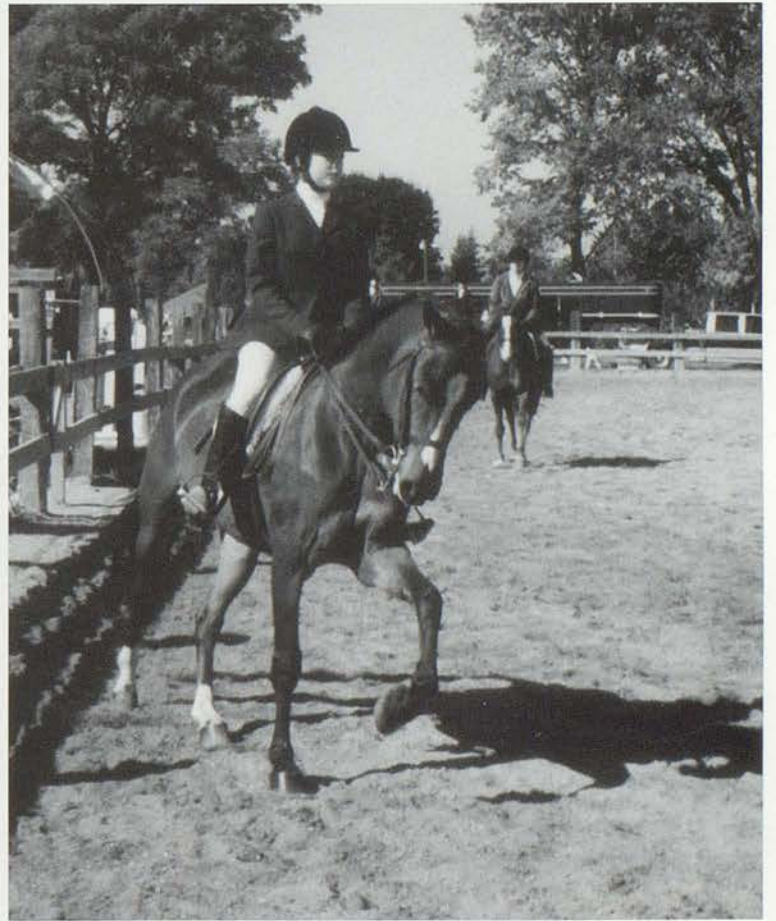

How's that taste?

Corey Paradine and horse Bo take a little walk before their next show. Corey is a junior and a veteran horse rider. Her best finish this year was a third place in Huntseat bareback. Great work, Corey!

Whoa horse!

Becca Gray shows off her horse while on a break during rides this season. Becca is a junior and has given an all around great effort toward the team this year. She also had the privilege of traveling to Oklahoma this year to work at the World Show. Great honor, Becca!

This way!

Molly Lazar shows off her stuff while in a show this season. It looks like this horse doesn't want to do what it's supposed to. Molly had a very successful season and will continue to do so for her remaining years at Marshall.

Buckle up and get ready to ride

Christie Stinebaugh poses for a picture before going on for a show this season. Christi is a junior and is a great addition to the team. She did an all around good job this year.

"Winter lingered so long in the lap of spring that it occasioned a great deal of talk."

We wake up in the morning to six inches of snow on the ground, and no school. When you look outside, you see kids sledding and snow men all over the place. This makes winter a good time to relax. Winter has always been known as a time for rest and relaxation. Snowboards and snowmen have always showed up at this time of year, and that was the basic instinct to doing things. It's has also been known as a time to "hibernate" and settle down. Since in Marshall there is always a ton of snow, one wouldn't think that it would be a time to go out and do things. Well, for everyone that was hibernating this winter season, you sure missed a lot!

One thing that was nice about this season was the two-week Christmas break. For most students, this is a time to lay back and catch up on their sleep. But since Christmas break was so long, it was hard going back to school and have to have exams.

This year was the premier of Winterfest. For the week before the Valentine's Dance, there was dress up days, such as Get out of bed, Think warm thoughts, and Red and White day. Then there was also events like those of Homecoming week. For the events, instead of it being class vs. class, it was the guys vs. the gals. For being the very first year, this was a big success! Everyone looks forward to next year's Winterfest!

Since the lack of snow, the ski club only got to go skiing for a couple of times. They enjoyed their choices of either snowboarding or skiing. This is a club that we are lucky to have, since not all states receive snow. Even though they only went out a few times, for the amateur skiers, that was more than enough!

The Valentine's Dance was a complete hit. The guys got a break from paying for dinner and the dance, and let the girls have a turn. The cheerleaders woke up early that morning and did a beautiful job of decorating. When asked about decorating, Kristin Milliken replied: "Getting up early wasn't much fun, and at seven o'clock in the morning none of us were awake. But seeing the decorations all put together at the dance made the day worth it!"

Just because there was lots of snow on the ground and it was cold out does not mean that people stayed at home and did nothing. Winter should be no different than any other time in the year, it is just much colder. Marshall High School was just as involved in the winter season though, as they are in the fall and spring seasons. This winter season is one that won't be forgotten by anyone anytime soon. Everyone went out of hibernation and gave everyone a great season full of wins, fun, and snow.

Girl Power

The girls kick some royal butt in the Volleyball Pass relay in the first annual Winterfest. The girls did not win Winterfest overall, but made an outstanding showing representing with pride. Winterfest was competed with high stakes, the winner won the rights to make their dates pay for dinner on the night of the Winterfest dance.

Feeling the beat

Letting the music into his soul, the funk masta Matt Blodgett lets all the people at the dance know who can really shake 'em down. Matt was later quoted as saying, "Well, I did work on the grind last year so you know I'm pretty good."

BE FUN"

Fun was exactly the word used to describe the first annual Winterfest dance and events. This year there were events and a court that accompanied the dance. Seniors on student council developed the idea and organized the events. Some of the events were Name That Tune, Cookie Decorating, a Drawing Contest, Lifesaver Relay, Chess, Checkers, and Hula Hoop Thing. At the end of the events the boys came out with the victory. Accompanying the events was a court. The court consisted of two seniors, the king Seth Palmer, and the queen

Jenny Skidmore. The requirements for the court were, they could not have ever been on the Homecoming court and had to be a senior.

The week of the festivities was filled with dress-up days and a Mystery Match school wide game. The Mystery Match was played when every person in the school was given a heart with a number on it, the girls pink and the boys white. Each student had to find the student with the heart that corresponded with theirs. The entire week was a fun-filled, unique way to celebrate the day of love.

The human pretzel

Contrary to popular belief Ryan Mead is not made of dough or lightly sprinkled with salt. His only similarity to a pretzel is his awesome physical dexterity, which made Ryan was a fierce contender in this year's Limbo contest. Ryan has always exemplified great school spirit, and this contest was no exception.

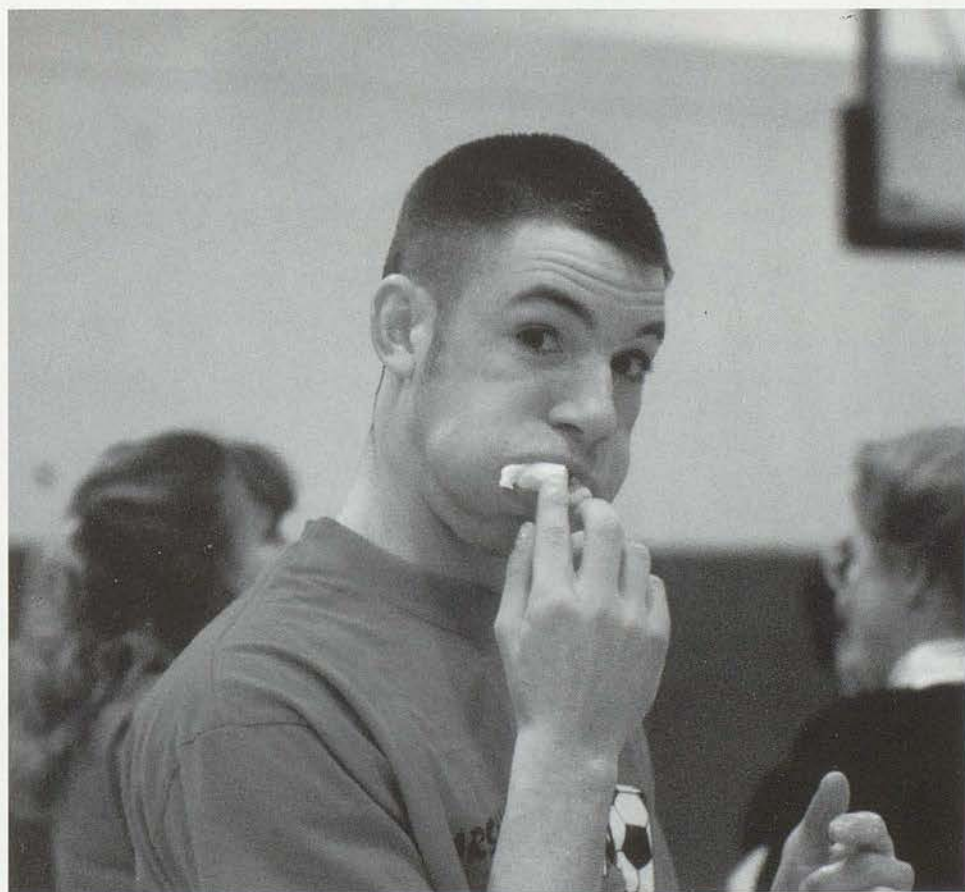

Brain Storming

Frantically writing an answer to a question in the Knowledge Bowl contest, Abby Bedient and Karen Smith compete in Winterfest, along with their teammates Christina Wright and Kari Searles. These girls used their immense intellectual abilities to answer almost all questions thrown their way. Although the girls gave a huge effort they came up short in this event.

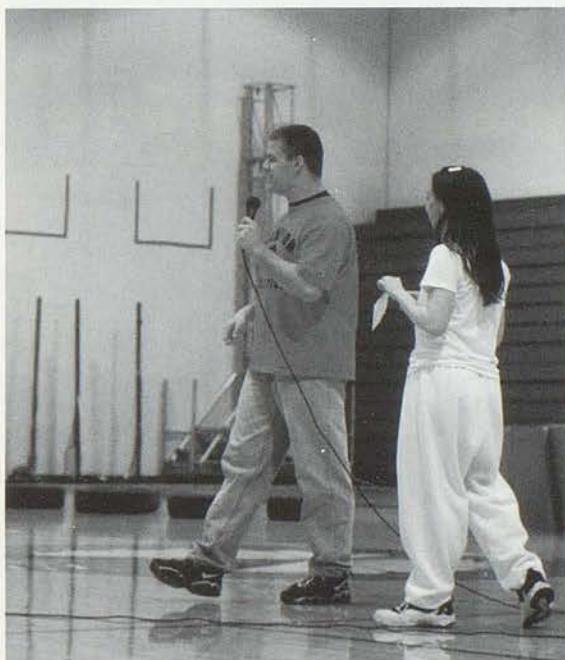

Getting close

Jenny Goodman and her date were getting in the mood of Valentine's Day during the Winterfest dance. This couple along with many others rocked the night away. The unique idea of Winterfest was provided by the seniors on student council, which will start a new tradition at Marshall High School.

Big Mack

Shortly after Andy McCormack's trip to the dentist for a routine check-up, he began to develop symptoms of a rare tooth disease, and his teeth began to inexplicably swell to the size of large marshmallows. He used his unfortunate situation to gain an unfair edge in the Chubby Bunny contents.

Summer Time in the LBC

Tim Williams serenades the crowd with his favorite song, "Summer Time in the LBC", during the down time of the Winterfest when the judges were tabulating the score. Tim, who is accompanied by Liz Smith, led the competition by keeping the crowd pumped.

"Cool as ice"

Skiing is more than a sport, it's an adventure! Skiing is a heart pounding, pulse racing, pure adrenaline rush! With the high jumps and the slick slaloms Ski Club has turned into one of the largest organizations at Marshall High School. Junior Christina Grable commented, "It was a blast! I especially enjoyed the slushy slopes and those oh so wonderful tow ropes."

With the unusually warm weather this year skiing was made even more of a challenge. Many dates had to be cancelled, but even on those days the skiers were there in heart. Junior Katie Gray stated, "Skiing is one of the only cool sports at Marshall High School." As one of the newest members of the Ski Club, Jeff Covert, said, "Ski Club is so awesome! Dude, I loved it so much. My only motivation on getting out of bed on Tuesday mornings was that I was going to have the opportunity to ski at one of the most stellar resorts in the country. Bittersweet is definitely my favorite."

Unfortunately for the Ski Club, all the snow this winter came after the scheduled dates. Oh well, there's always next year!

Hmmmmmm
Ethan Ebner scratches his head and ponders whether he should attempt the black diamond jump or coast to the bunny hills.

S@#$$%

Although a little shaky on the landing, Katie Gray swept down the black diamond slope in record time. As the years go by, Katie's skills improved tremendously.

I'm going as fast as I can!

Amy Dereski tries her hardest to catch up to her friend. Ski Club gave Amy a chance to get a feel for how exciting skiing really is. She wished that there were more opportunities to ski.

I wonder if I took cool?
Snowboarding is second nature to Brian Zalewski. Many newcomers to the sport patterned their moves after Zeus. This particular move was just a warmup for his half pipe action.

We're ready!

Ryan Mead, Jeff Covert, and Lizzy Smith showed up extra early for Ski Club to ensure themselves a good seat on the bus. These three plan to always make skiing a big part of their lives.

Bring it on!

The guys intramural participants enjoyed another eventful season this year. These guys show they have the skills and the will for that competitive attitude which makes intramurals as fun as it is. Many will be back to defend their titles next year. Many of the boys have decided that they would love to play a game against the awesome girls at the end of next season.

She shoots, she scores!

Catie "Neid" Neidlinger drives to the hoop getting past members of the Bolshiviks, Brian Zalewski and Matt Blodget. Catie, along with being an excellent intramural player, played JV Basketball, and Varsity Soccer. She loves to run around her house on the coldest of nights and enjoys attending all MHS sports events. Catie had an awesome soccer season and thinks next year will be even better.

"The breakfast of champions is not cereal, it's the opposition."

Intramurals is a time when people can get out and have fun without the worry of varsity sport. For many, though, it is just as competitive if not more competitive than a varsity sport. Many of the teams are composed of football players, soccer players, girls basketball players, baseball players, softball players, etc. and all play to win.

Among the teams there are the Bolshiviks, IZOD, Japanese Butterflies, Bushwackers, and Outkast. The teams all show their competitive attitude while on the basketball and volleyball courts. Each time the teams step on the courts it's all play and no joking around.

Member of IZOD, Catie

Neidlinger says, "This year has been awesome and I am happy I was a member of my team." With one co-ed team, the Bolshiviks, the boys and girls are split up and play on Mondays. Many of the kids that are playing this year will more than likely continue to play next year and defend their reign.

Intramurals is supposed to be a time for fun, and also a time to make friends and enjoy the social time. As like last year Marna is still charging down the court for team IZOD, and this is unfortunately her last year. Hopefully next year there will be an even better turn out, and many new freshmen to add to this year's excitement.

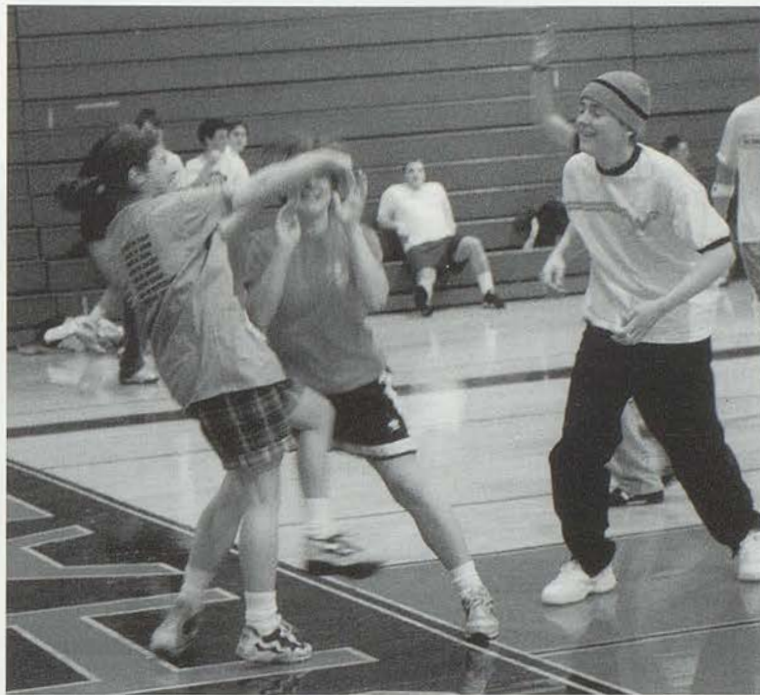

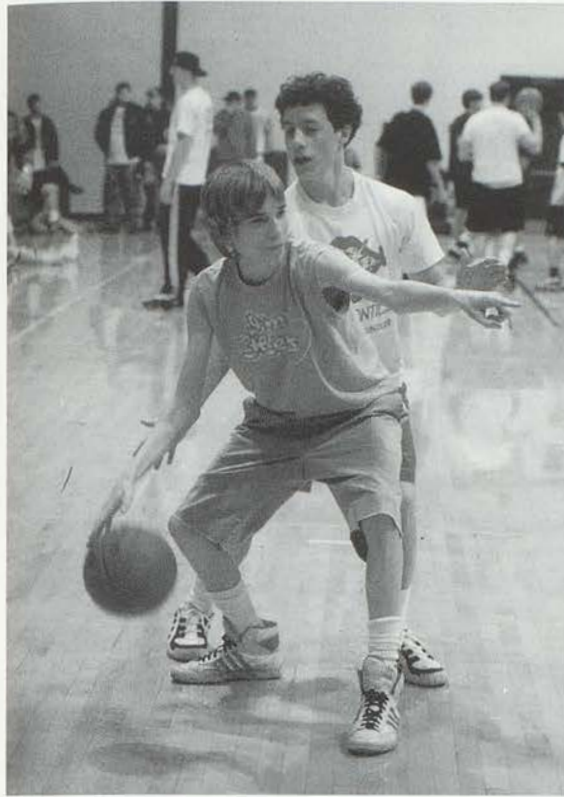

Drivin' to the hoop!

All-Star basketball player Stephen Paskett drives to the hoop during an intense intramural game against team IZOD this year. Stephen had no problem playing in the girls league considering he rocked the house each game putting up points on both courts for his team. Stephen is a hockey player as well as a rocking intramural maniac!

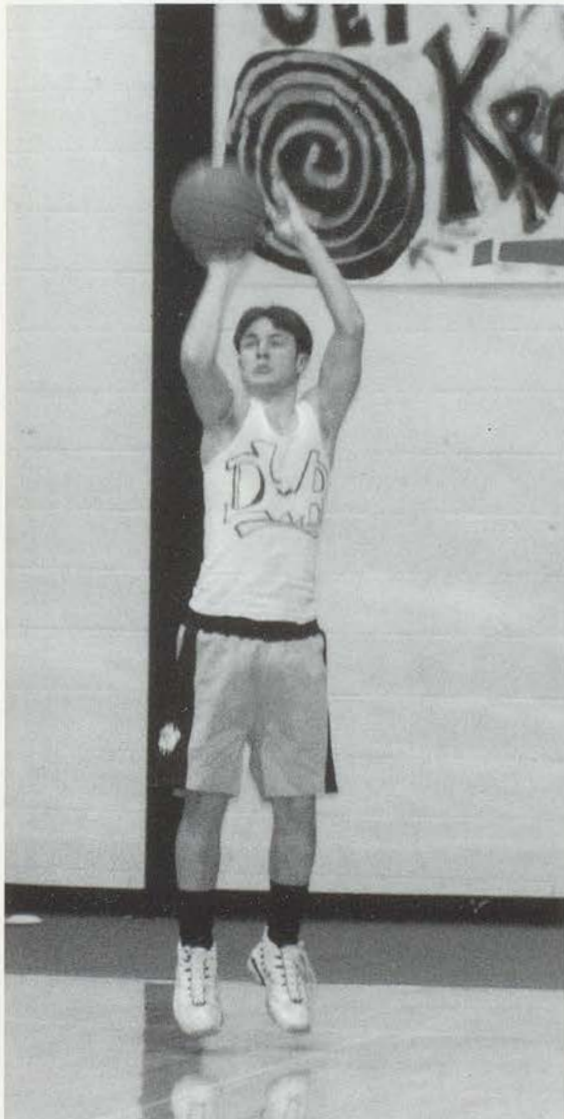

I'm gonna get it!
 Matt Blodget and Ryan Cox, although members of the same team, warmup against each other getting their skills ready for the game. Both guys were die hard intramural players and helped lead their team on the court. Ryan was a member of the Boys Varsity Soccer team this season and Matt was a member of the JV Boys Soccer team. Next year both boys hope to play varsity together!

Not getting past me!
 Marta Ringenberg and Brenna McCauley battle it out on the court while Andy Mack looks on as the referee. Marta's team gave Brenna's team no mercy during this game. Marta was a member of the Varsity Basketball and Soccer teams and Brenna was a Varsity State swimmer along with a track star. Intramurals is always number one in their hearts.

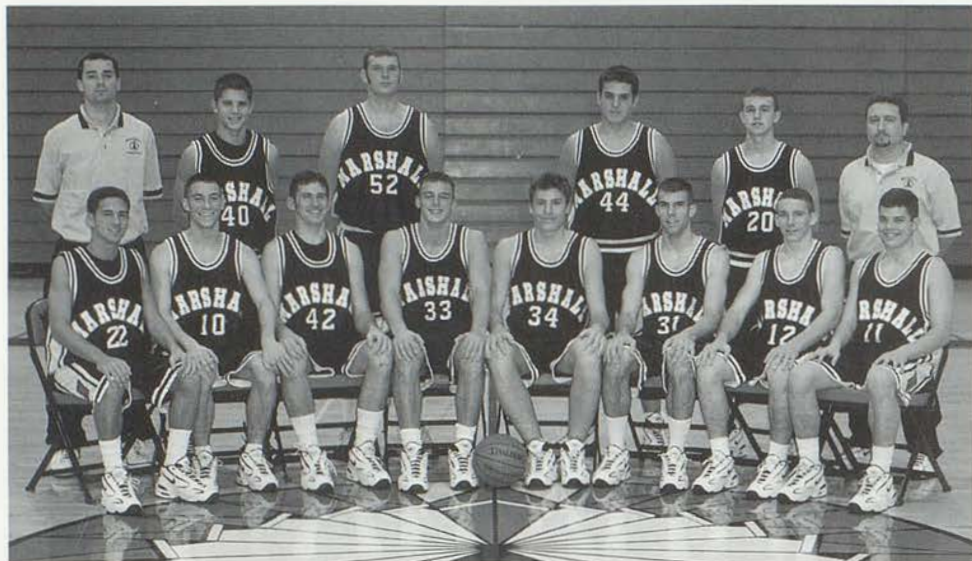

Ouch, my nose!
 Anne Kellogg took this hit from Jodi Rodgers during a heated match of basketball this year. Camm Rowland is on his way to rescue Anne, but sees she is in good hands. Later in this game Anne took a hard hit for her team and had to leave the court with a nice bump on the head and a bloody nose. "That little Kellogg girl sure is tough."

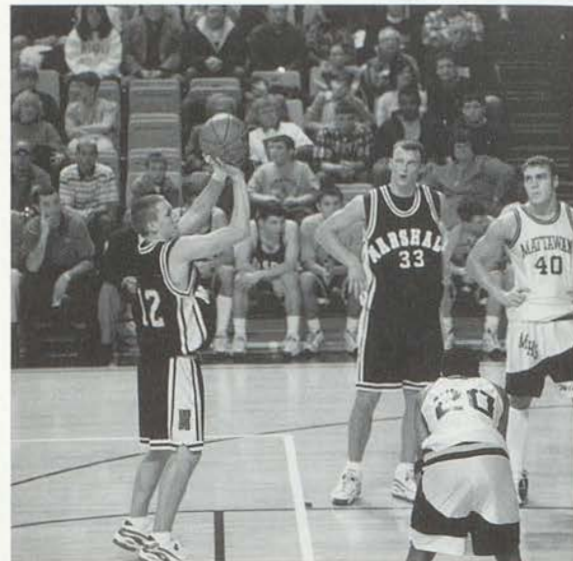

No boys allowed!
 These girls all showed the boys aren't the only ones who can play sports. Most of the girls play intramural on their offseasons for fun and to keep in shape. All girls are very competitive and show their team spirit on the courts. Many of the girls have also consented to a heated match with the guys next year!

Woowooooosh!
 Adam Kiebal puts up a successful three point shot which clinched the victory for his intramural team. Adam was an original "Codden Krazie" and here he shows he can play ball too. Adam and his team crushed nearly all their opponents and are going to miss the action next year.

So fine at the line Doug Searles squares up and prepares to sink yet another free throw. Doug was one of the Redskin's best free throw shooters this year.

"I don't meet competition. I crush it!"

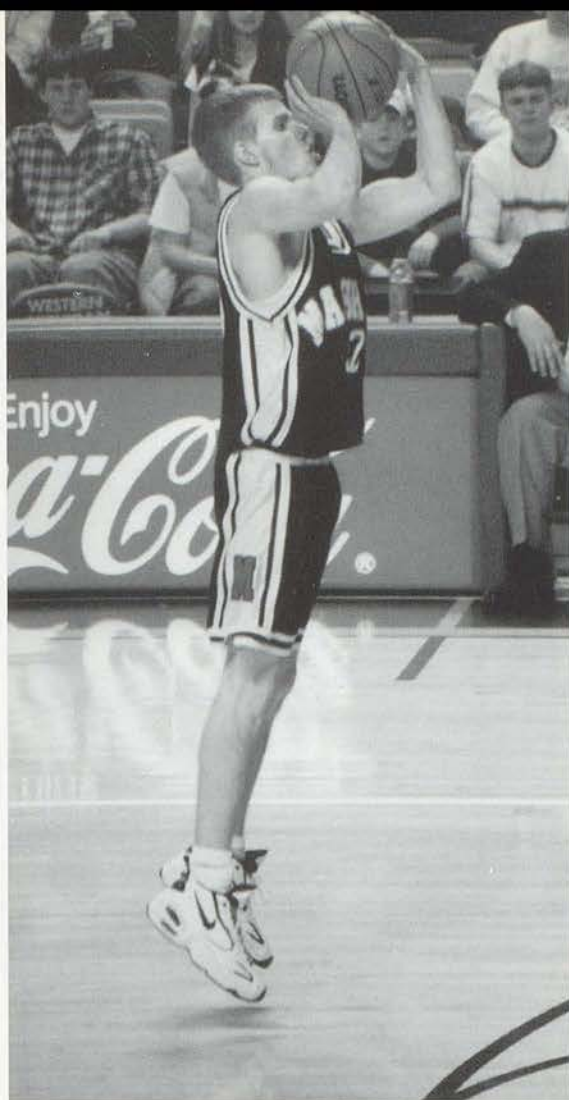

Crush their opponents they did! This year's varsity basketball team was nothing less than awesome. The Varsity Redskins not only surpassed any preseason expectations, they won the coveted Twin Valley championship, had a better record than any team in the regular season, captured the district and regional championships, and were the State Runners-up in Class B! Some may wonder how this year's team did so well, but the answer can be summed up in two words, skill and experience. This year's team was anchored by eight seniors who had a lot of help from their five junior counterparts. It also helped that almost every single one of the players was a member of either the state runner-up football team or our state ranked soccer team. Both of these facts showed that all of this year's players definitely had the experience that they needed to be successful. And what pushed them past the point of success to the point of greatness? That would be head coach Dan Coddens and assistant coach Nick Dent. These men pumped the guys up for every game and gave them the plays that they needed to run over their opponents all season long. The success, of this year's team was definitely a big surprise to everyone in the Twin Valley, except the team itself, "going into the season, we knew that we had the talent, it was merely just a matter of staying focused," said Senior guard John Thompson. Fortunately, the skins managed to stay focused all year long, however, they also had a little help along the way. This help came from a popular group of fans known as the "Coddens's Krazies". "The Krazies are the best bunch of fans in the state! It's a huge help to us when they get involved and the emotion they bring to each game rubs off on us. They turn away games into home games for us when they cheer louder than the home fans. I wouldn't trade them for anybody!" stated Ryan Trice when asked about his feelings on the Krazies. So, to the 97-98 guys Varsity Basketball team, Thanks! You not only gave yourself and your coaches great memories, you gave them all to us here at Marshall High too.

Get out of Neid's house! Andrew "Neids" Neidlinger demonstrates his super-human leaping ability during this tip off. Andrew not only was one of the skin's best rebounders this year, he was known throughout the state for his shot blocking abilities.

Never lost a step
Ryan Triece makes his first appearance for Marshall count as he sinks his first three of the season, after recovering from knee surgery.

Out of my way!
Brad Bigelow leaps over the opponent to bring down yet another rebound. Brad was one of the team's top rebounders this season.

Here I come
Johnny "the bullet" Thompson brings the ball down the court in one of the Skin's victories this year. Johnny's smooth moves really shined through this season, as he was the number two point guard, and proved that he knows how to play basketball.

You're it!

Kyle Kalinowski, number twenty-four, sprints down court to make his one of his most beautiful shots. This is Kyle's first year on J.V. adding tremendous help to the successful team.

but a habit."

The J.V. Basketball team ended their season 18-2. What a great one! Not many teams are capable of finishing a season with such a great record. Marshall had one of their toughest games of the season, against Lakeview, Marshall was able to look ahead into the season for many more victories to come. When asking Trevor Kelly what his favorite part of the season was he stated, "The best moment this year was when we beat Sturgis by 20 points when we nearly lost to them the first time. Boy we had a fun game!" This is the first time they have ever beaten Sturgis at Sturgis under the coach of Doug Riegel. That is something to be proud of.

The freshmen team had an overall pretty good season. They really pulled it together at the end of the season. Geno Kleisiak stated, "I thought we improved immensely over the season and played well together." One of their biggest accomplishments was placing respectively high in their season-end tournament. The boys are the next generation of the Varsity team. The boys pulled their resources together with the three point shooting of Brad McCormack, the high flying rebounding of B.J. VanDyke, and the tenacious defense of Ben Hughes. With that the boys pulled out a winning season. These young, fine boys should be looking forward to the future because it's going to be an exciting one.

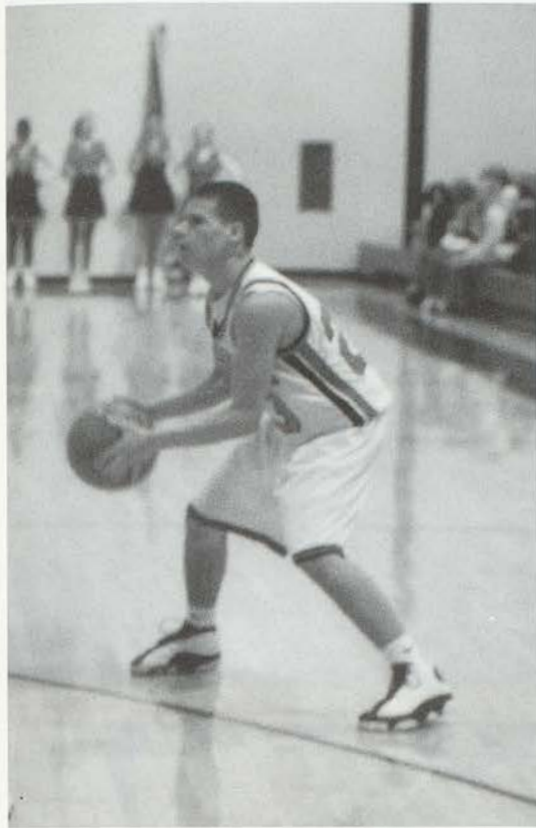

Somebody help me!

B.J. VanDyke attempts to start the offense to help out his team. B.J. is one of the leading scores of the freshman team and a big rebounder.

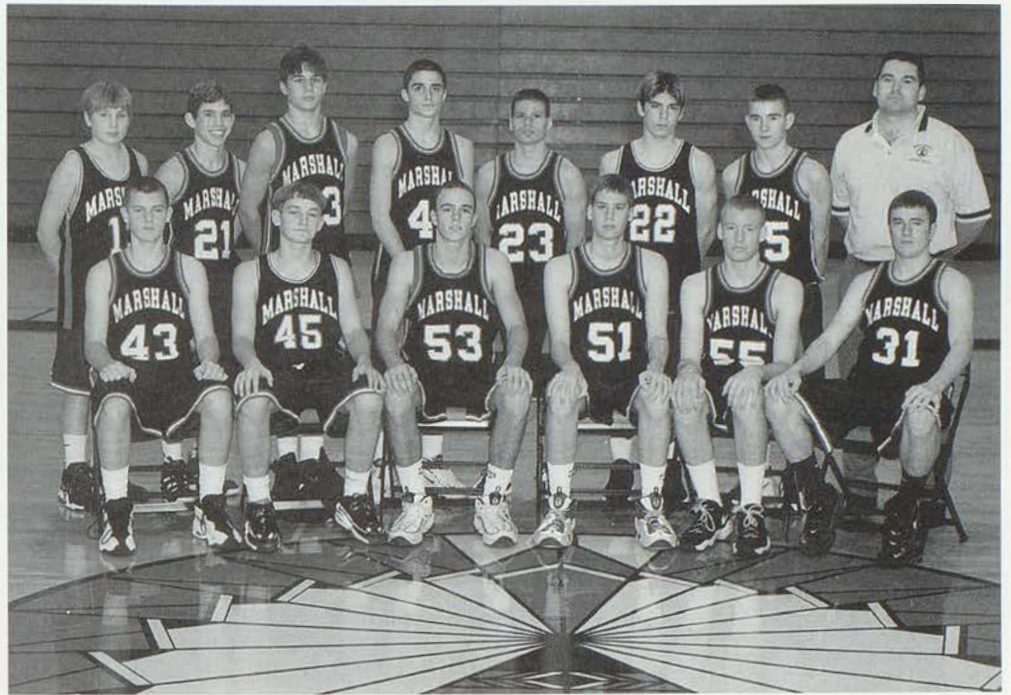

You think I'm going right:

Geno Klisiak stands in triple threat position to out quick the Spartans. He was successful in doing so. Geno is one of the quickest on the team. His quickness helped the 'Skins on both defense and on offense. He can steal, he can drive and boy can he dribble.

All Day I Dream About Soccer!
Trevor Kelly brings the ball up the court not with his hands but with his feet. Soccer is not his best sport but he's got the love for it. He loves this game! But in basketball, Trevor was a very vital and important part of this year Junior Varsity team. He started every game at point guard and was the leader of the court. He was then moved up to the Varsity level for Districts.

THE ROOF IS ON FIRE

Don't worry, the roof isn't really on fire. It's just a headline ... so put down that fire hose. Besides, this page is about the Varsity Volleyball team, and what a team they are. Under their expert coach, John Morris, the Lady 'Skins had another impressive season. Team captains Jessica Bassis and Amanda Kimball lead the team to a 35-16-7 season record, defeating such league rivals as Lumen Christi and J.C. Western. Every time they hit the floor, they come out with one thing in mind: chalking up another Marshall victory. And speaking of hitting, the floor, these Redskins aren't afraid to get down and dirty when it comes to blocking or digging a spiked shot. You won't often see a ball land on our side of the floor without a red black jersey diving for it. To put it simply, they all give it 150% from start to finish. Though the team fought valiantly all season, they finished with a frustrating district loss to previously beaten J.C. Western. A great season finished on a sad note. Well, there's always next year. Except for the seniors, it's all over for them.

Creep

Jen "The Predator" Stevens creeps up on her target. Depending only on her natural abilities and cat-like reflexes, she prepares to strike. When Jen steps on the floor, she transforms into a finely tuned volleyball machine, similar to the way Michael Jackson transforms into that sports car in Moonwalker.

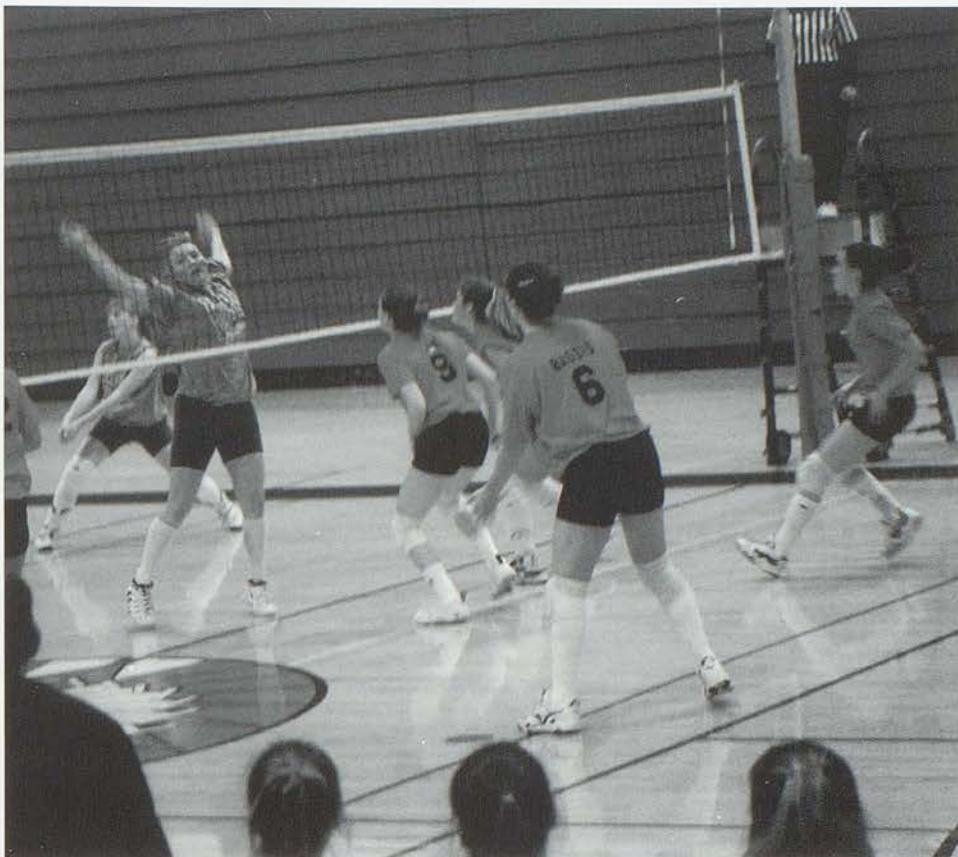

Stop whispering

Wendy Etue gets a little advice from "Coach Mo." With these key instructions, Wendy went on to win the Most Valuable Middle-Blocker Award.

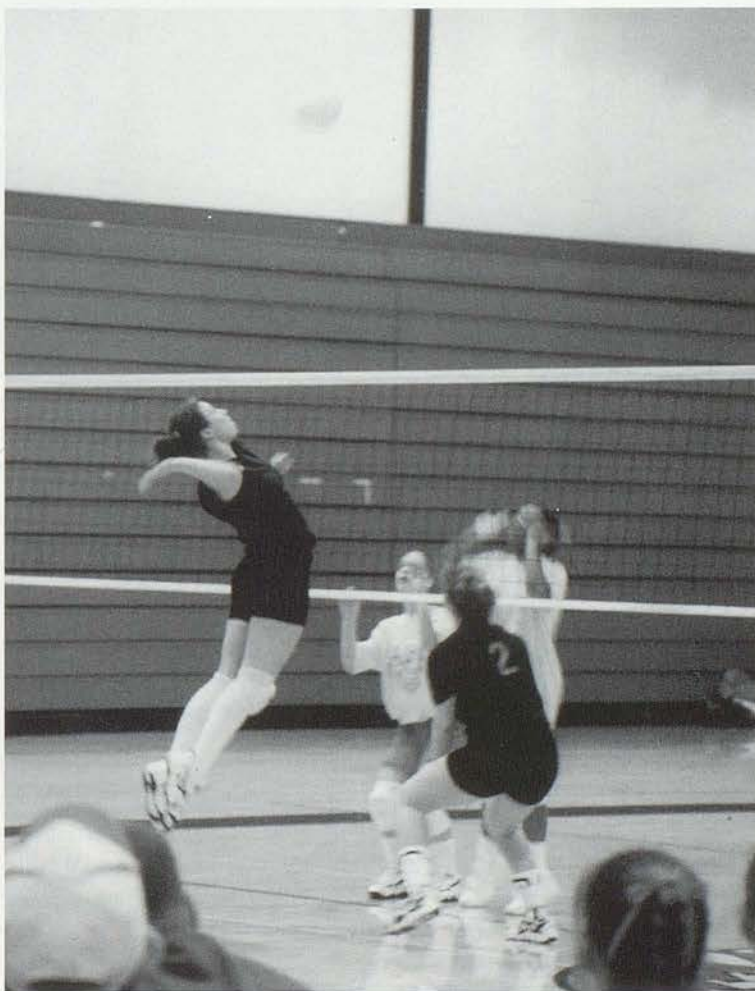

Say It Aint So

The Redskins are poised as a Jackson County Western player grasps for air after another airborne attack. Is she trying to fly? Or fan the crowd? Possibly she just forgot to watch the heartwarming NBC special, "Before Women Had Wings."

What's this dance called? To get stretched out and loosened in before the game. Kate Weston and Missy Lough usually like to do a little dance. This dance improves their play tremendously. Fortunately for Kelly Triece, she was lucky enough to be at the scene and was able to learn the little dance as well. Kelly was quoted by saying, "Dude, I have learned that this helps not only by soothing the soul but also by relaxing the over worked muscles before the game that I love." These three fun gals were not only leaders off the court but on the court as well. They busted theirs to kick yours!

They shrunk the ball! The refs should think twice about it if the ball is too small. Although Hailey Casarez is a great setter, she just missed it between her hands.

"Can you dig it?"

One might ask what a dig would be. One other might reply by simply telling the one to observe Marshall volleyball. This might be the only way of figuring out the one true definition of the dig. There is no better way to start a play than with a dig. The girls from Redskin Country know this.

They have shown how beautiful and creative the sport of volleyball can become. The back row is usually in charge of doing the digging. Following the dig, the girls like to spice it up just a bit more by passing the dig onto the setter for the beauty of a set. Then the denoue-ment of the action was a winning kill assisted by the one and only setter. Although the kill puts the finishing touches on the action, there would be no kill without a dig or a set. So, obviously it doesn't just take one or two players to have a successful team. The whole team is needed and that is what these Redskins showed. With all this riot coming about, both teams were able to come away with records to be proud of. To look ahead to the future, get your sunglasses out and put them on. It's going to be a bright one.

We are Family!

Winning by 14-3 these gals were allowed to listen to one of Kate Weston's jokes. Kate sure got a kick out of it! These not only teammates but friends had a really fun season together as a team.

Man in water, swims fast
Dan Schroeder swims to victory in the 100 breaststroke. Dan usually comes in first place and has caught the eye of many college coaches.

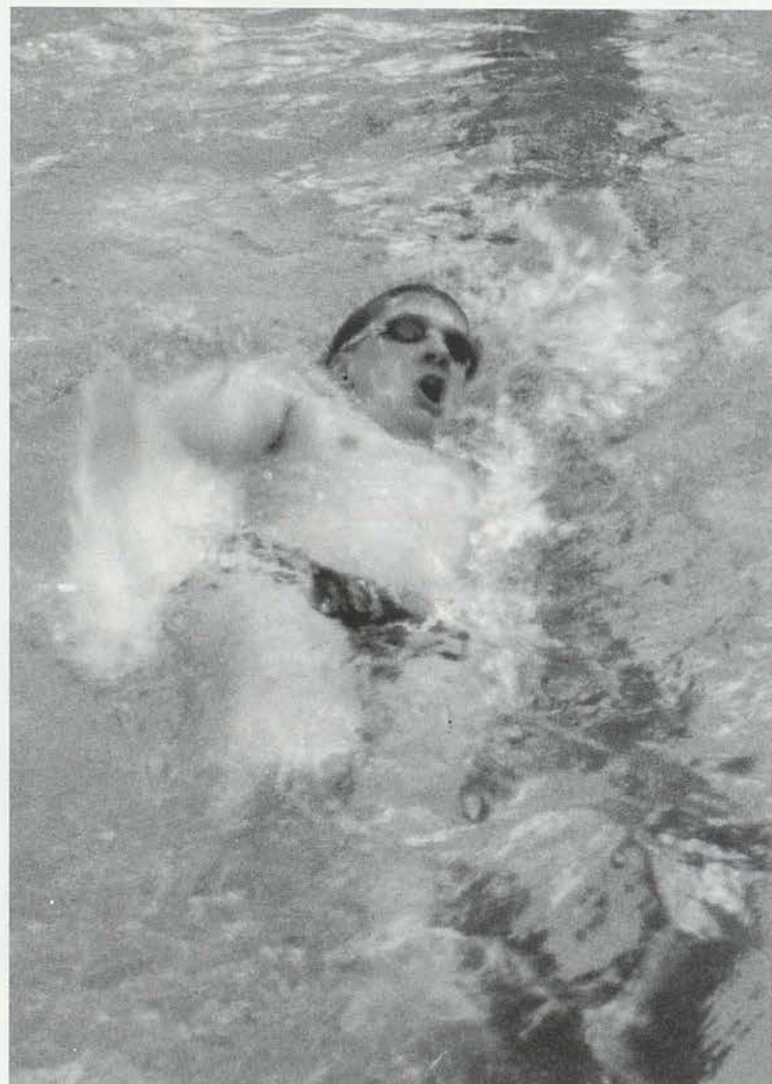

"Let nothing stop you until you get what you are set out for."

This year the Boys' Swimming, and Diving team was filled with talent. The guys went through the season being ranked eighth in the state. They finished with an outstanding record of 6-2 falling to their two rivals, Plainwell and Lakeview.

The team had a great season, but definitely a long one. The season lasts nearly three and a half months. Everyday they suffered through an endless three hour practice. As you can imagine, by the end of the season it gets very hard to drag your tired body to practice everyday.

With all this practice, the team qualified 12 guys for the State meet. Karl Kowalske qualified in the 100 free, and the 400 free relay. Dan Schroeder qualified in four events: 200 medley relay, 50 free, 100 breast, and the 200 free relay. Standout sophomore Adam Cook qualified in seven events, but chose to swim the 200 medley relay, 400 medley relay, 100 free and the 100 backstroke. Mike Weaver qualified in the 100 free, 200 free, 200 free relay and the 400 free relay. Billy Umphrey made the cut in four events, the 200 free, 500 free, 200 free relay, and the 400 free relay. Brian Mullen swam the 200 free, Greg Rasher, the 200 medley relay, and Ian Unterbrink swam the 100 breaststroke. Kevin Hutchins will travel as an alternate. This year Marshall also sent two divers, Adam Albrecht and Chad Thomas.

Fly, Back, Breast, Free
Mike Weaver swims to victory in the 200 IM. Mike has worked hard over the years and has become number one in the 200 IM at MHS.

Go Bobbo Go!

Amazed is how these six girls appear to be Laura Gray, Christa Morgan, Amanda Markovich, Christie Bramel, Kristin Milliken, and Nicole Stone. These cheerleaders have enough spirit to cheer our champs on all the way to State, and this group of girls are what gets the Codden Krazies and the fans pumped up as well.

"Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm."

The school's team spirit lies in not only the hands of Marshall High School students and staff, but also in the hands of a group of girls and guys that put the enthusiasm into us and the sports. The group of girls and guys are Marshall High school's very own cheerleaders. These are the people that you have seen along the sidelines cheering on our basketball team on to victory, and they are the people that get MHS basketball fans pumped up before the big game. They also sponsor a lot of things for MHS. This year the cheerleaders sponsored our Winterfest dance held on February 14th. The cheerleaders decorate the cafeteria and raise money that is used for them to have uniforms and different types of things that they need to lead MHS to victory.

These girls are doing their job Cassie Treat, Sarah Fitzpatrick, Shandra Thomas and Adrian Anderson cheer our own basketball team to the hoops and to a victory.

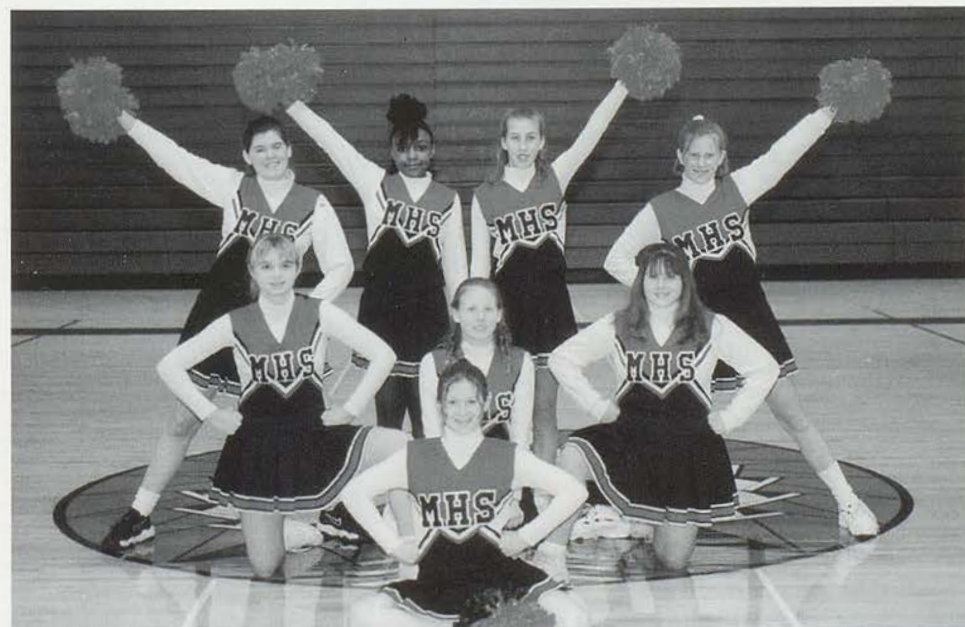

J. V. Front Row: Jamie Kendall, Elizabeth Crandal, Shandra Thomas. Back Row: Jamie Boone, Sarah Fitzpatrick, and Adrian Anderson.

I've got the spirit as you can see
Nicole Stone is full of life and enthusiasm as she cheers the basketball team on, and pumps up the crowd to cheer our team on as well.

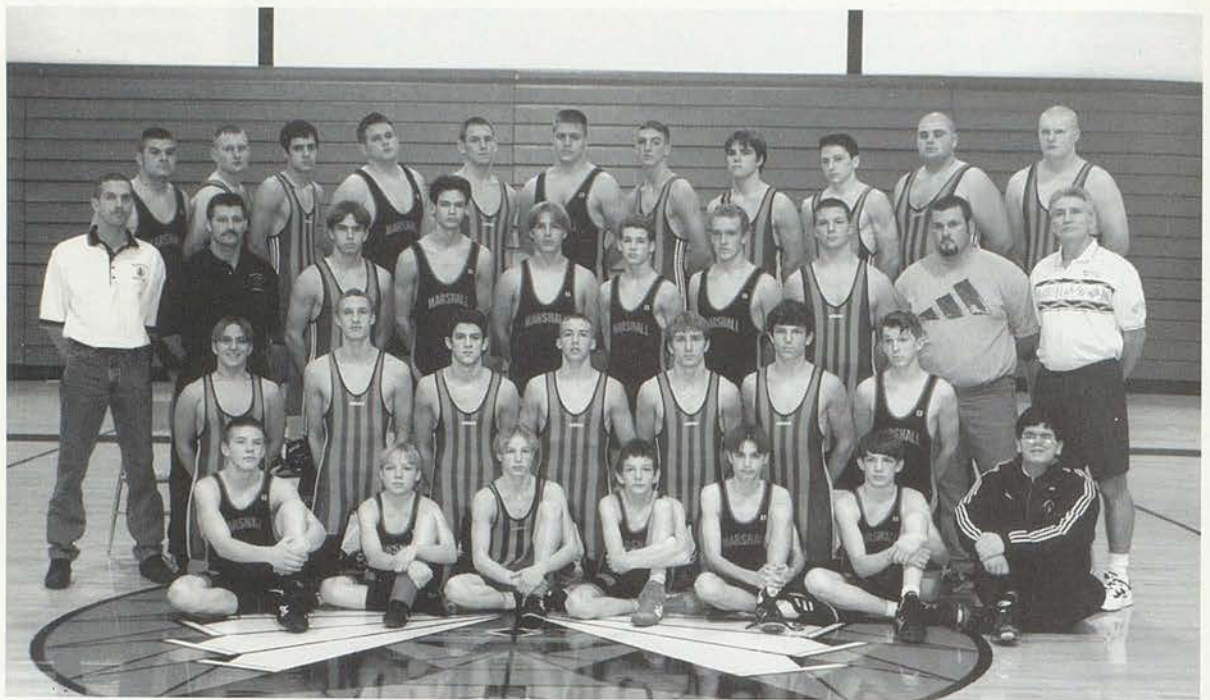

Pumping up the fans and cheering the boys on

'97 and '98 Wrestlers are: Nick Fast, Vaughn Kasdorf, Dustin Bogess, Carl Clemens, Doug Potter, Larry Weers, Scott Paschal, Noah Wilson, Nick Barnes, Brett Riser, Alex Goodman, Dustin Royster, Jacob West, Coach Richard Goodman, Coach Ted Damron, Eric Monaweck, Brandon Robishaw, John Moore, Trevor Damron, Randy Day, Richard Baker, Coach Jeremy Stepp, Coach Kevin McCauley, Adam Wilson, Will Day, Josh Riser, Nathan Stewart, Ben Gase, Tim Williams, Nick Dereski, Justin Feilds, Terry Goodman, Tommy Miller, and Jason Hugget.

The force is with you Adam Wilson struggles to keep a stance while his opponent tries to take him down. Adam had an outstanding finish in wrestling for his senior year.

Bold and Buff Ben Gase leaves the Coldwater Cardinal sitting in agony while he flexes his manly muscles. Ben made it to state again this year for the third year in a row.

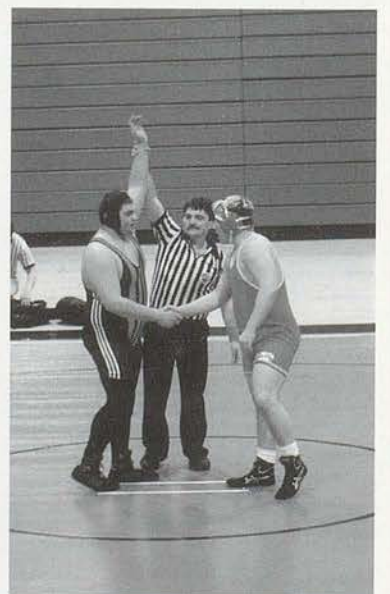

"There's no satisfaction without a struggle"

After winning the Twin Valley title in '97, winning now comes as second nature to the wrestlers in '98. The wrestlers upheld the Twin Valley '98 title as well. Although the team did not succeed in beating Harper Creek in Districts, four individual guys made their way to the state meet at the Kellogg Arena. Ben Gase, Nick Dereski, Tim Williams, and Terry Goodman displayed much determination while fighting for their weight class title. Ben Gase showed his enthusiasm by simply saying, "The team did really well and I'm pumped I made it to state." Ben placed fourth in his 160 weight class, while Nick placed seventh in the 140 weight class. Tim achieved an eighth place ranking in the 215 weight class, and Terry fought hard but did not make it out of the first round of his tough 130 class. Even though these four were the only Marshall state competitors, the whole team showed a true state performance throughout the season. Clearly wrestling is a sport of importance to many and it seems to bring a sense of accomplishment to each individual involved. Feeling satisfaction with his season Tim Williams sincerely summed it up by saying, "The hard work and discipline made wrestling a very rewarding sport for me."

"We all wrestled very competitively this season. I always loved it when the guy with the long mullet showed up to ref our matches!" - Tommy Miller

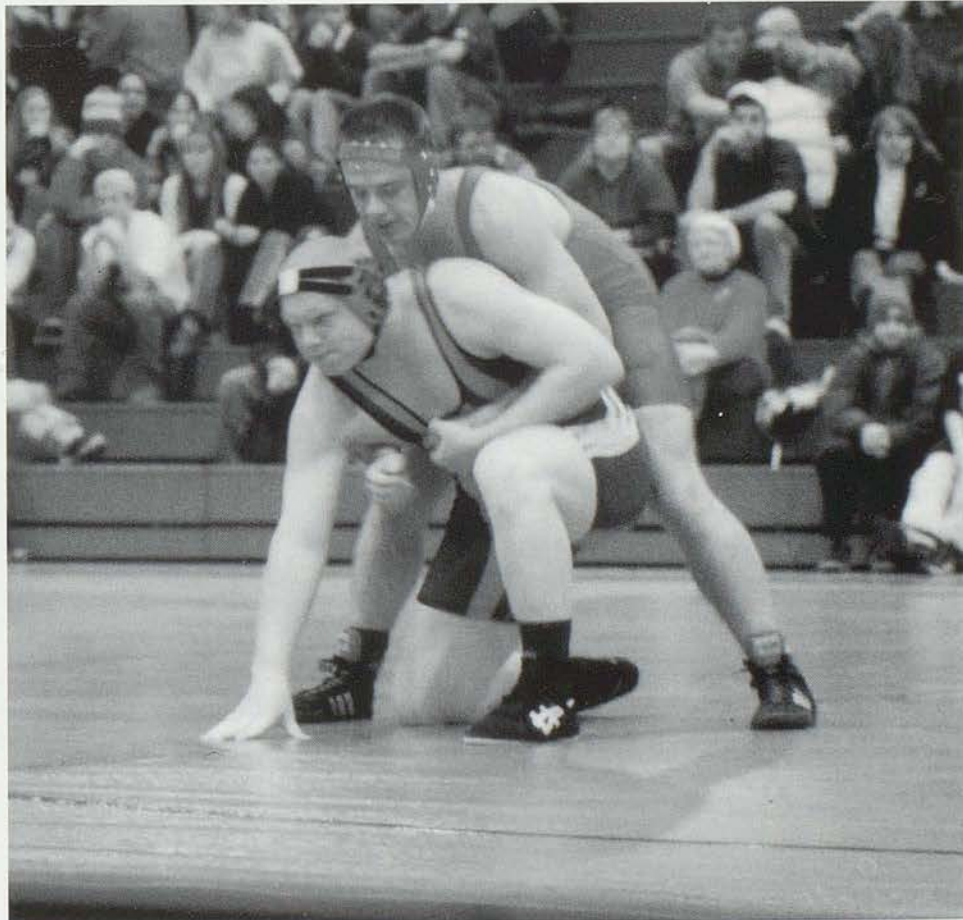

Down for the count
Dustin Royster gives this guy something to think about while he's kissing the MHS wrestling mat. Dustin pulled off another win for the Red-skins.

Eyes of defeat
Jason Hugget shows no signs of intimidation. With a determined look in his eye, he went on to help his team to victory.

"Let the good times roll."

The birds were serenading, the flowers were bursting with color, and the sun was shining. So ... where were the students of MHS this spring? With their hectic schedules, they were probably rooted at school, attending soccer practice, shopping for prom, painting the set for the musical, or transfixed with homework. You always know spring is here, when you find yourself dreaming of summer and dreading final exams.

Following in the footsteps of this year's fall and winter sports teams state finalist victories is a hard task to handle. The spring teams, however, were up to the challenge. They all hoped to bring home a state champ trophy and set it in its proper place in Redskin Country.

The spring musical, Guys and Dolls, showed a whole new side of talent at MHS. Even after battling for an audience with the Boy's Basketball team finals game, the show went on. Kate Goedde, one of the leads, summed up the overall reaction to the play best: "Guys and Dolls was the hippest, happiest play this school has seen! Everyone in it showed their true acting ability and we all took the stage with bang!" They delivered a vibrant performance and made clear that every guy needs a doll.

The rush to find that perfect dress or tux for that one special night is over. The theme for prom this year was Shakespearean Masquerade. This unforgettable night of glitter and glam was held at the Federal Center in Battle Creek. The sparkling dancing shoes were brought out and memories were made.

As spring drew to its final curtain call, everyone's lives became jumbled. We have all said farewell to the seniors as they prepared to begin their journey through life on their own. Graduation, Class Night, and the secretive Class of '03 Black party have come and gone. The sports teams' seasons have drawn to a close and the dreaded final exams have been aced. When we're old and gray, we'll look back at the glory days at MHS with longing hearts, but for now we'll just have to continue to let the "good times roll".

Doin' the splits!

Straining to get the ball out of Redskin territory, Rachel Lortz beats her girl to the ball. Even with the Lady Skin's great hustle they lost this tough game 4-5 to Jackson County Western.

Fore!

Chipping her ball onto the green, Sara O'Leary helps the Varsity golf team to another victory. This win upped the girls record to 3-3.

Hi-Ya!

Surrounded on all side by her teammates, first baseman Tonya Purcell makes this outstanding catch Kung-Fu style. The Varsity softball team came together pretty well this year and maintained a fair record.

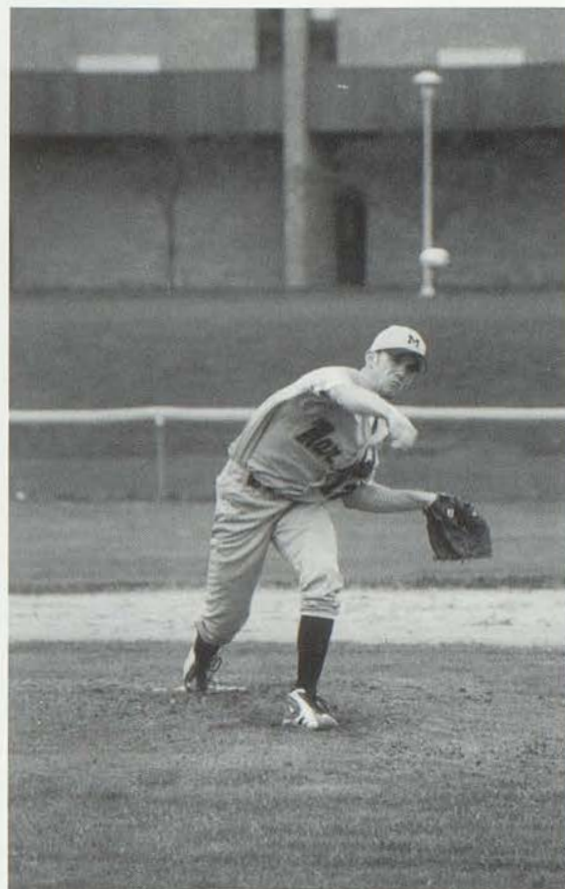

Pull up a seat!

Amy Dereski strains forward in the long jump. Amy also made a lot of great contributions to the team this year in the high jump and 400 relay.

Strike Three!

Trevor Kelly hurls another fast ball for the Varsity team. Trevor is one of only two sophomores on the team and not only is he a pitcher, but also a catcher.

Cha, Cha, Chal

The spring musical, Guys and Dolls, went on as a huge success. Kate Goedde, Samantha Dopp, and Annie Stulberg try to entice Kevin Rayner into Tangoing. Ann Loomis is served another round from Patty Fedak.

Serve it up!

Intensely watching the ball Brian Zalewski prepares to slam it into his opponent's court. Brian played first doubles on Varsity this year with Andrew Neilinger.

"THE SHOW MUST GO ON!"

As whimsical music whirled out of the pit, the cast and crew of Guys and Dolls nervously took their places for the opening act. No matter the size of the crowd, they were ready to give it their all and that's exactly what they did. Though the show did unfortunately fall on the same weekend of the Boys' Basketball championship they still pulled through, for as they say in the show business, "The show must go on."

Guys and Dolls, a story of four extraordinary characters trying to survive in the world around them. Sergeant Sarah Brown (Ann Loomis), a beautiful Save-a-Soul mission worker trying to clean the streets of the evil sinners lurking in its shadows, Sky Masterson (Kevin Rayner), a gentleman gambler willing to risk his life as a sinner for one hot date in Havana, Nathan Detroit (Jake Gates), the head huncher of a floating crap game he puts on as he tries to dodge police officers, wiseguys, and his bubbly fiancée Adelaide (Kate Goedde). These four combined with show girl dancers, a town full of gamblers, and an eager working mission band create a comedy, romance, and incredible song and dance routines such as "Take Back Your Mink" and "Sit Down You're Rockin the Boat." When asked of her experience with the show Ann Loomis replied, "It was a fun experience but the best part was getting to slap Kevin Rayner."

"Presenting Miss Adelaide and her Debutantes" Amy Laupp graces the stage with her presence as she proudly introduces the next act. Amy was a member of the Hot Box girls who entertained the audience throughout the night.

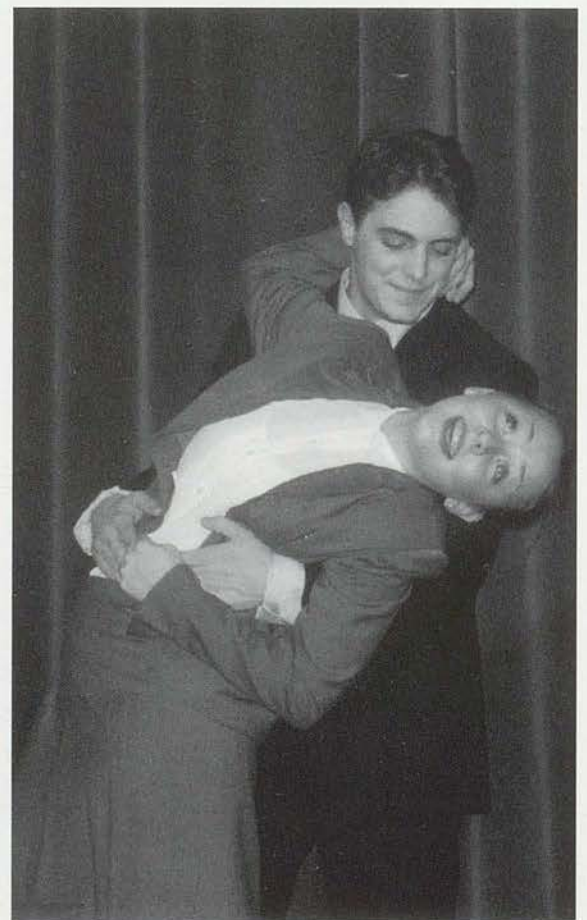

Work it Girl!

The Hot Box girls light up the stage with their somewhat sexy song and dance routines. The girls were the pinnacle of the evening for many of the gentlemen who attended the shows.

Troubles are a comin'

General Cartwright (Cynthia Hookway) brings sad news to the Save-a-Soul mission band. If sinners are not brought in they must close the doors forever. The Save-a-Soul mission needs to be saved!

"I think I'll have another one!"

The very conservative Sergeant Sarah Brown unwinds a bit after spending an evening in Havana. Of course, it was all thanks to the charm of Sky Masterson and a little help from a native flavoring- Bacardi!

The Cast and Crew of Guys and Dolls

Come to Mama

Kate Goedde, otherwise known as Miss Adelaide, lovingly opens her arms and waits for a tight squeeze from her reluctant husband to be, Nathan Detroit (Jake Gates).

"A Guy's always doing it for some Doll"

Justin Judd (Nicely Nicely Johnson) explains to David Saber (Benny Southstreet) how pitiful it is that some men follow women everywhere and answer to their every beck and call.

Let the games begin

The crap shooters get their dice rolling in their new hideout. The sewers aren't your typical party location, but these scumbags seem to fit right in.

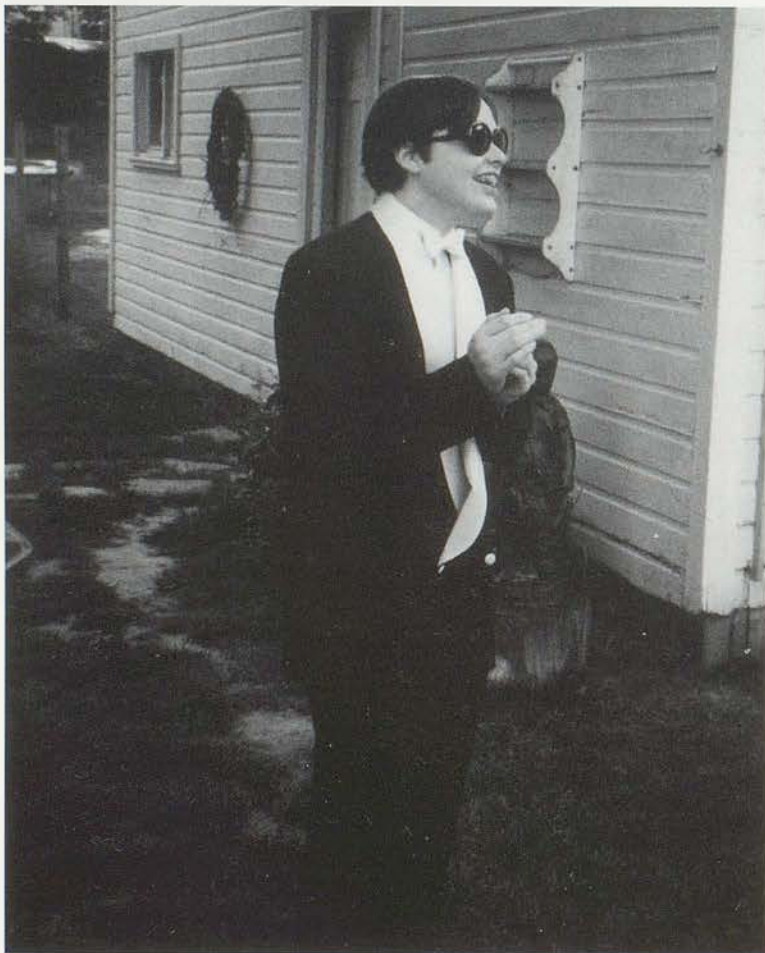

"Save the last dance for me."

Prom 1998 was jamming with the main man, Will Shakespeare, at the Federal Center in Battle Creek. The Shakespeare Masquerade was an intriguing experience for the upperclassmen and their guests. The whole night was a rocking and a rolling with Eddie and the Orpheus gang. The room, filed with feathers and fountains, helped to transport the students back to the days of the Masquerades. It was truly an enchanting evening. Many kids showed up in luxury, from stretch limos to convertible Jags to stretch trucks. Yep- stretch trucks! Amy Rosko and her gang decided to ride in a double lux transport and arrive in their stretched Chevy 4x4! Amy simply stated, "Whoa" when her eyes first met the "Black Flash." The Prom was full of gorgeous princesses and their charming princes who were dancing the night away. When the clock struck midnight, they departed from their fairy tale land on their white horse back to their homeland in Marshall. Kevin Rayner stated with tears, "It was a hip dance to end my high school career and everyone seemed to have a great time." Well, on to next year. Let's see if the 1999 Juniors can meet up to their "Great Expectations!"

Chomp! Chomp! Swallow!

Before meeting W. Shakespeare many couples filled their tummies with the most satisfying feasts. April Evans, Brad Bigelow, Doug Searles and Christa South made their pit stop at Hana East in Kalamazoo.

I can see the horizon

After his wonderful time at the Prom, Rich Hugett walked all the way to South Haven to watch the sun rise. Rich was "I love to walk, I walk everywhere."

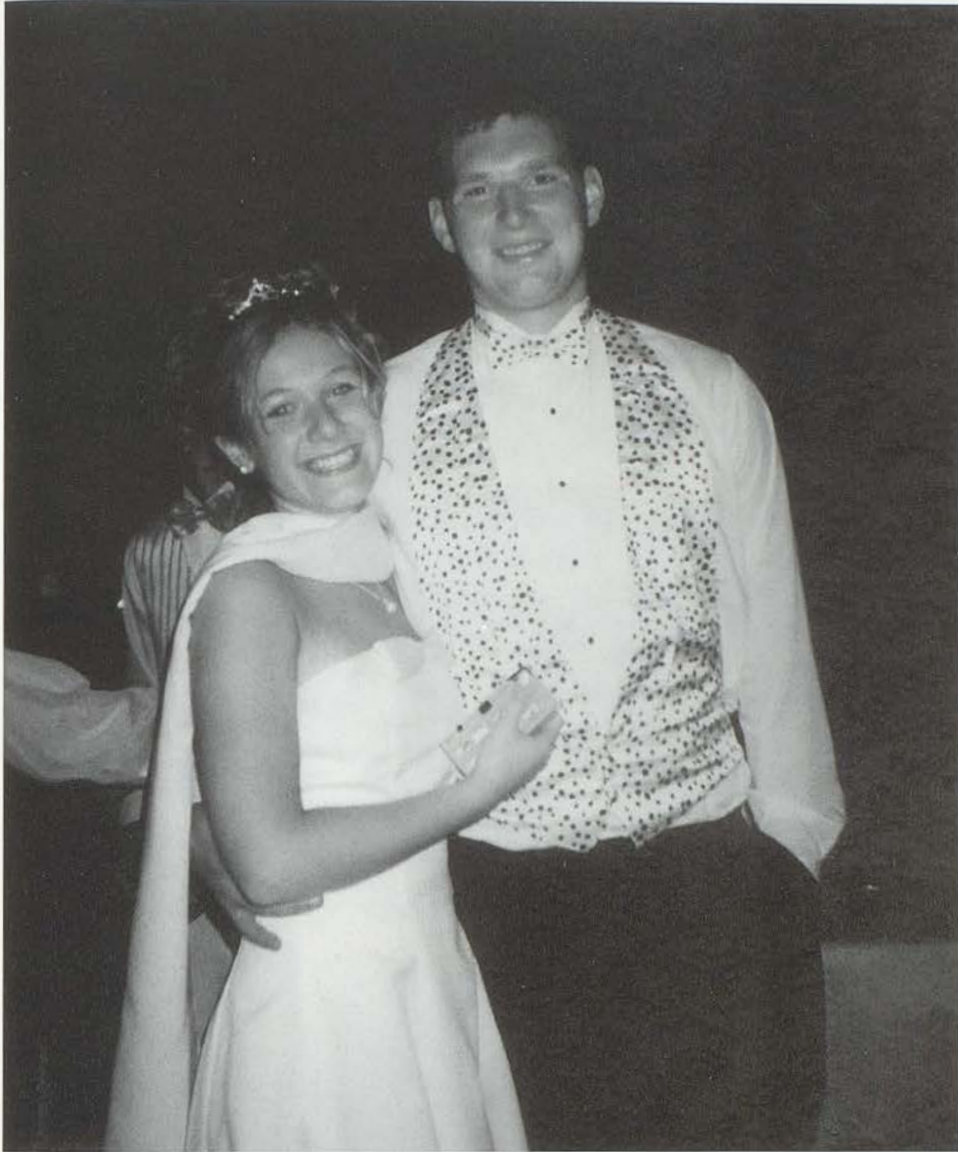

What a pair!

Ben Stinebaugh and Kayla Watson enjoy themselves at this year's biggest boogie. The two have been dating for a whopping 14 months. They were happy to spend this special night together.

Connect the dots

Wild in white stands Jenni Dobbins and her date Elliott London. The two enjoyed their evening because of all the hard work they put into this successful night.

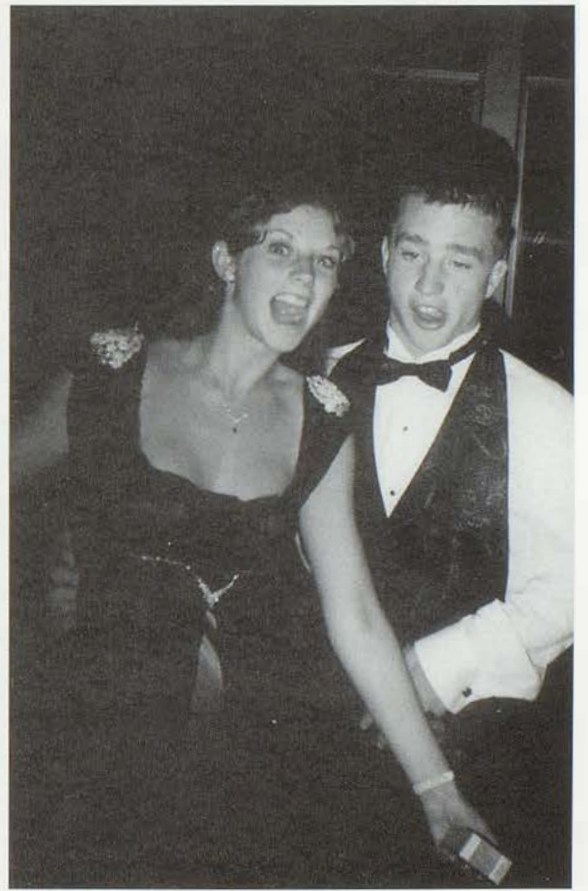

Get down tonight

Amy Rosko and her date Jim Lough bump and grind out on the dance floor. We are glad to know that her dance lessons for the past decade finally paid off.

What a mistake!

Tiffany Freds, Alexis Posler, and Laura Gray examine Corey Paradine's accident containing of soy sauce all down her dress designed by her late pal Mr. Versache.

Sweet success!

Chrisa Morgon and Josh Wright are busy teaching the first time promers just how to boggie it down. The two also demonstrated the correct mouth positions that coordinate with their steps.

Enchanting

All the couples at the dance seemed to be having a great time chatting about their romantic evening at such a wonderful place. The Federal Center was decorated beautifully with a masquerade theme and it gave a sense of elegance for all who entered this magical environment.

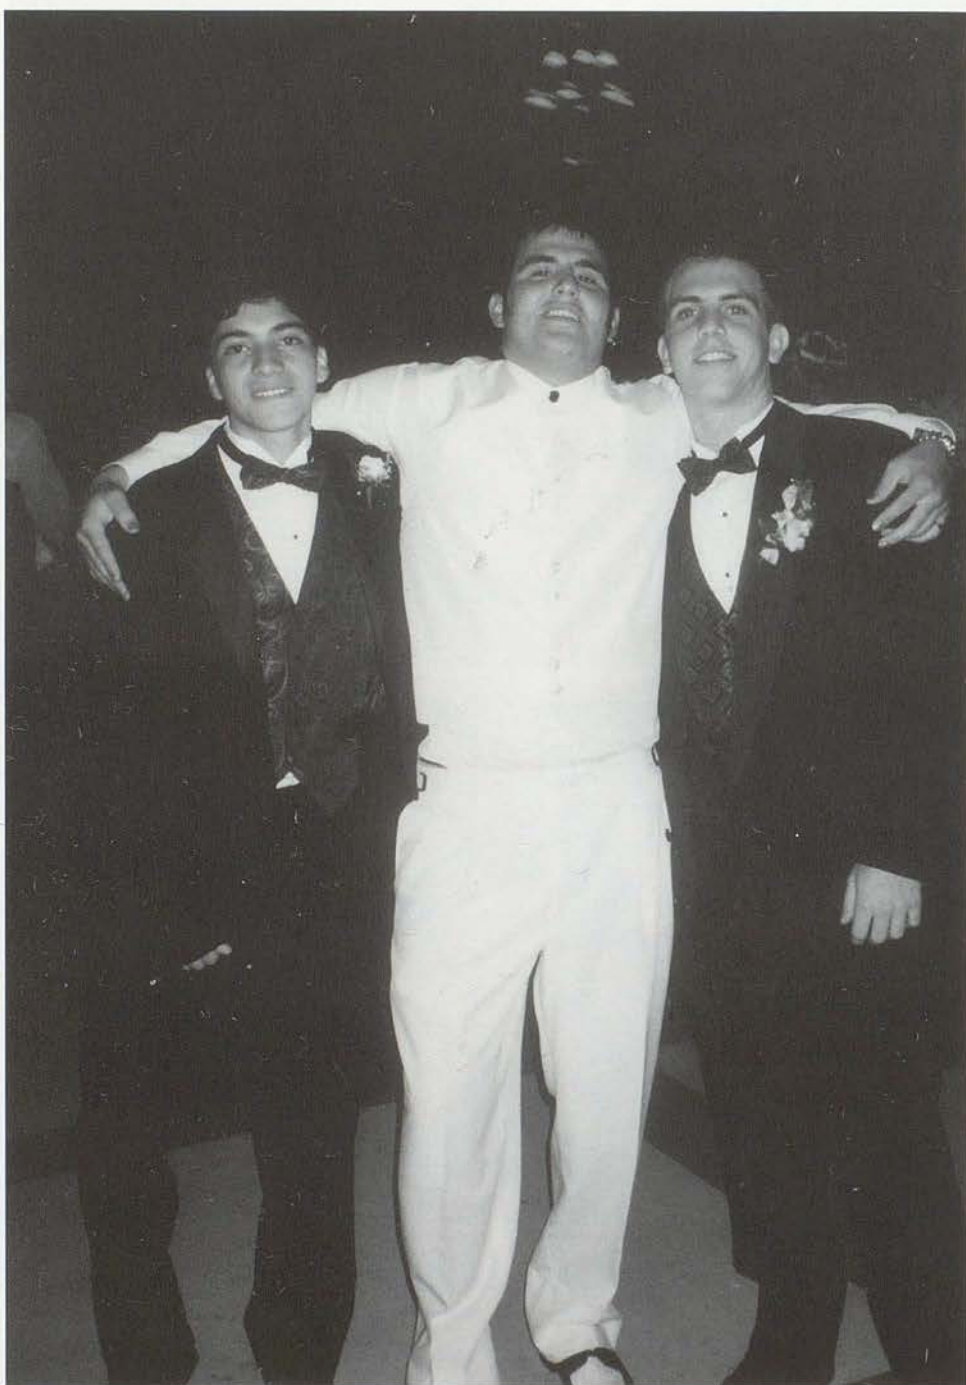

Peek-a-boo

Angie Brubaker and Shannon Miller peek through the crowd of disco fanatics to spot an unfamiliar camera flash. These two girls danced until the clock struck midnight.

Prom FBI

"Undercover agent" Nick Dereski, "Head of Security and Illegal drugs" Al Fleming, "Night Watchman" Adam Kiebala, and "The Boss" Shane Shubert take their scanning positions to assure that Prom '98 won't run into any illegal mishaps.

Exchanged love

Aaron Brumfield grabs his two favorite foreigners, Patricio Bugueno and Bruno Soares, and shows that they are loved by all at Marshall High School. Most of the exchange students enjoyed Prom.

Hello Mrs. Supermodel

Adam Wilson stares at the girl in front of him in pure amazement. The beauty just happened to be his girlfriend Tina Rewa who had just stopped the dance with friends.

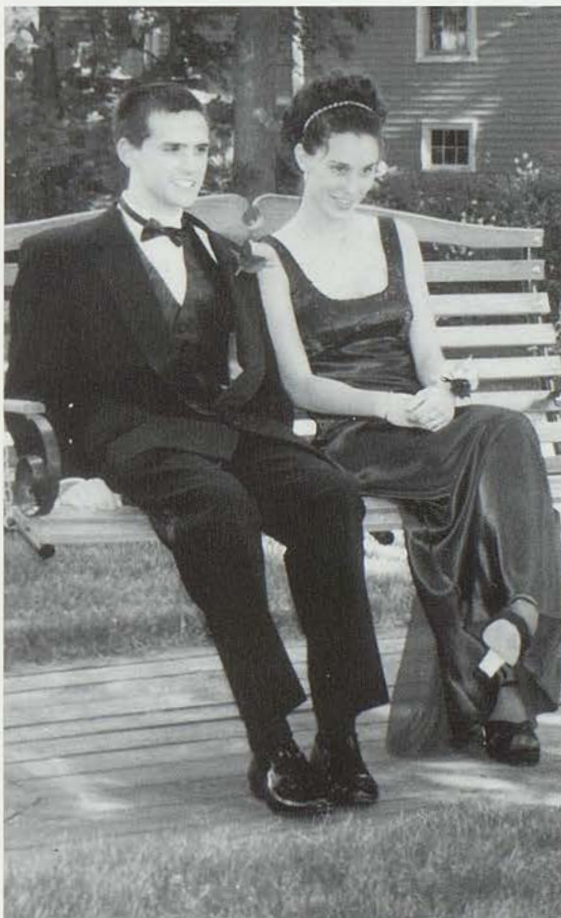

Together once more

Some of the graduating guys decided to congregate together in the Federal Center lobby for one last picture of Prom '98. These guys dressed to impress and escorted their favorite ladies to the masquerade ball for "The Last Dance."

True or false?

Did Travis Wheeler just reveal his true secret on what they had for dinner that night? Or was it perhaps that Travis just stated his thoughts out loud about how absolutely gorgeous Megan looked that night?

Break time

Jenny Crampton and Dustin Damon sit down for a minute to catch their breath. Breaking out those dance moves sure takes your breath away.

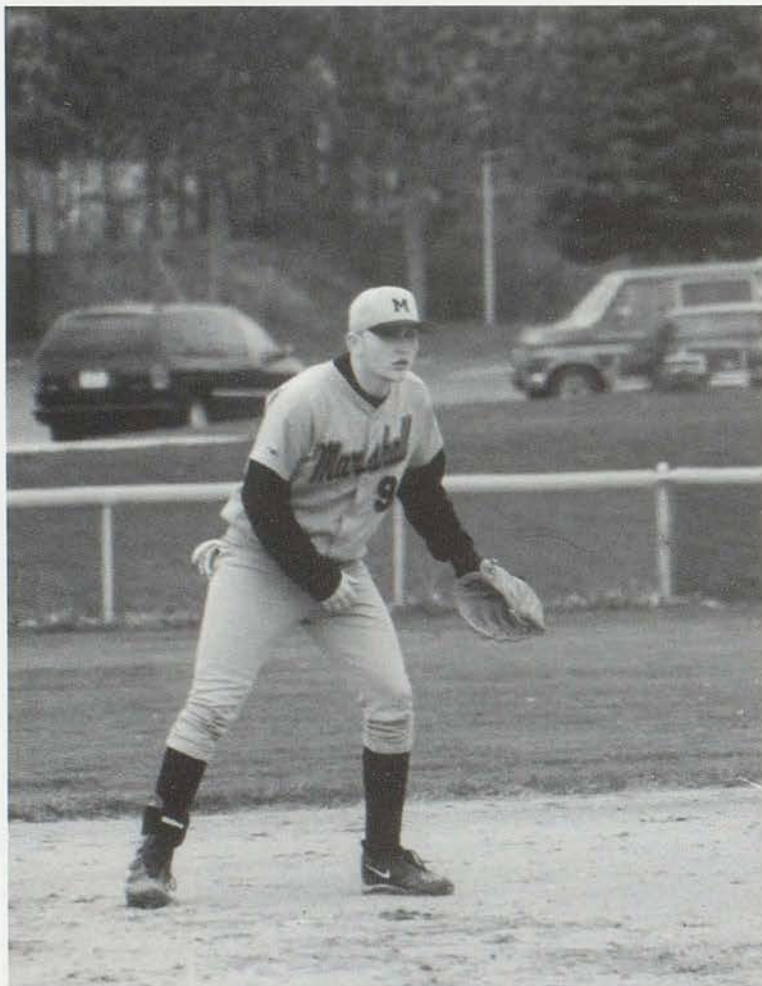

Playful partners

Before the dance, Nathan Palmer and Alexis Posler take a moment to swing together. They reminisced of the past and talked about the upcoming future and what would become of Prom '98 later that night.

"He may not score and yet he helps to win, he who makes the hit that brings the runner in."

Despite the stinging of the bat early in the season, the team fought the pain and posted some impressive victories. With huge wins over Olivet and Lakeview, the boys had great expectations. Of course, Marshall baseball answered these calls. Heading into the post-season, they were not settling for anything less than perfection. Their first game in districts was against the less powerful Harper Creek Beavers. They quickly put them aside and the next victim was Coldwater. They proved to be a bit tougher, giving the mighty Redskins a run for their money. Nice try, but the Redskins defeated them 3-2. Now the Redskins found themselves in a district final baseball game. This game proved to be easier than the rest. The Redskins destroyed Hillsdale 17-1. Next up in regionals was Midland. Midland was the brick wall; we fell 0-13 to a very strong team. Despite losing to Midland, our Redskins had a tremendous season. Looking back, these boys will remember this season for a long time.

"Focus Chad, focus"

Senior Chad Shelton mentally prepares himself to make an outstanding play from third base. Despite battling a sore ankle, Chad put together a tremendous season.

Off to the races!

Standout shortstop Dougie Searles races for first base. Doug's ability to reach that first bag earned him a spot at the top of the batting order.

No! Not that one.

Sophomore superstar Trevor Kelly begs the catcher to change the pitch. Trevor teamed up with big brother Sean, resulting a very successful season.

Throw it here

Take it out Big Daddy!

Sean Kelly gets congratulated by his teammates after going yard. Sean's great offense as well as defense has been an asset to the team for four years.

"Take me out to the ball game."

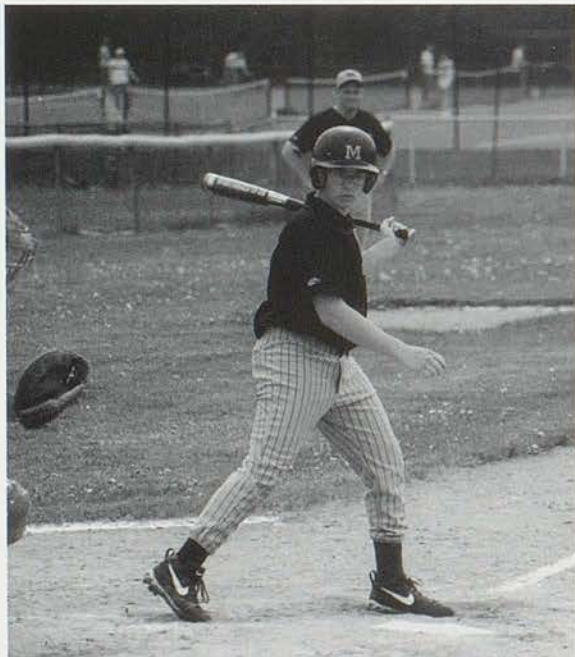

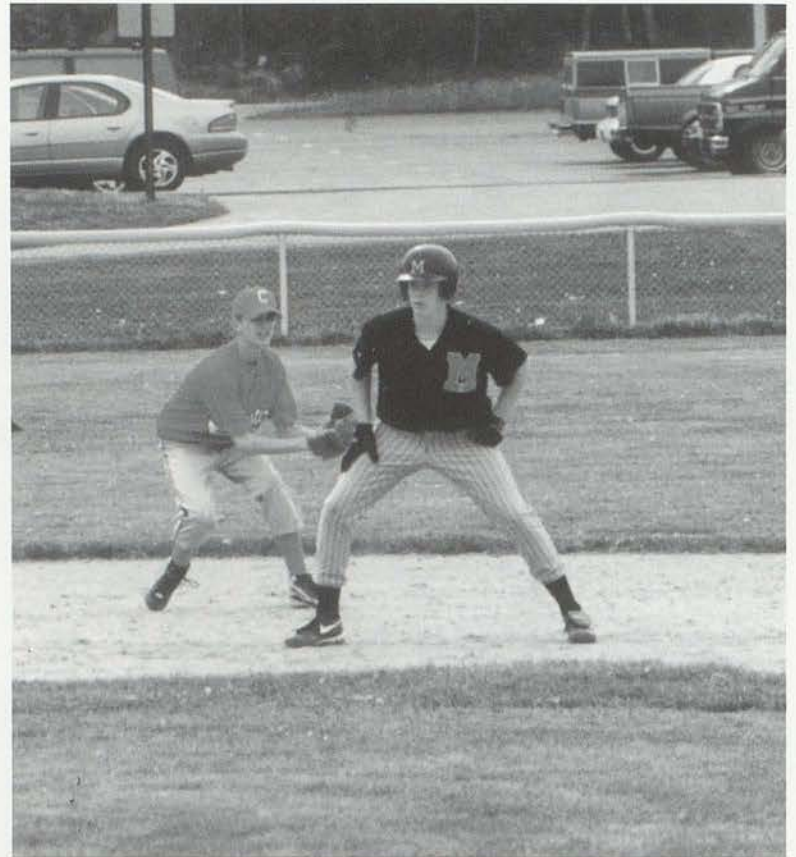

There he goes

Ryan Bridges leads off toward third base. Ryan just had hit a double and he was trying to advance toward third. Ryan had two steals in that game.

Junior Varsity and Freshmen baseball teams played an intense season. The excitement of both teams proved to be the result of tedious practices, determination and good coaching skills. David Damon summed up his season in these few words, "Even though our record wasn't the best, we learned team work and gained experience." David Damon played on the freshmen baseball team. Ryan Bridges recaps his season of the freshmen baseball team, "Our team hasn't played much baseball in the past, but we progressed throughout the season." Bridges played short stop and pitched. This year the freshmen had a record of 5-17. "Throughout the course of the season, we showed great improvement. We learned the value of teamwork and dedication, despite the record," Nick Heitmeyer commented.

The Junior Varsity had a great season with a record of 14-8. Matt Fish concluded his year by saying, "We have had a lot of experience playing together, so we do really well. Also, our coach is very good." Junior Varsity had a grand slam of a year. There were numerous grand slams hit. "We had a great season. Our pitching was strong this year, even though we had some injuries we proved to the Twin Valley that we were the team to beat," quoted Matt deBois. Unfortunately the Junior Varsity didn't win the Twin Valley Championship, but they came close with scores against Sturgis of 1-2 and 6-8. Congratulations goes out to both Junior Varsity and Freshmen teams on a wonderful season.

Matt Tarpley hits a foul. Matt watched every move of that ball, hoping that Coldwater wouldn't grab it. Luckily it didn't hit the lens.

Homeward Bound

Junior Varsity's Ben Zuehlke rounds another spectacular hit home. Junior Varsity, as a team, had numerous home runs. Ben had two home runs and luckily we were able to capture one coming in to home base.

Stretch

Matt Fish stretches before his game, but for some reason it didn't do him justice. This year Matt has been taking his stretching very seriously. Because he has, he hasn't had any injuries.

"It's better to have died at birth than to be caught watching the third strike."

As the season began there was one thing on many of the players' minds. This will be their last season, and they knew they had to make it a good one. The seniors on the team were captain Tina Rewa, Captain Jenny Kimerer, Angie Brubaker, Captain Amanda Fraley, Kelly Winchester, Tonya Purcell, Amanda Kimball. This year the team had three star pitchers on the team: Kelly Winchester, Katie Schaum and Tiffany Wilson. Katie Schaum was moved up from J.V. as a freshman and she had to fill some big shoes. She did an excellent job by being consistent. "It was an honor to be brought up to the Varsity team as a freshman," said Katie Schaum

The outcome of the season wasn't as good as they expected. But the girls put all their effort into the season. Captain Amanda Fraley quoted, "I was pleased to be captain for the team this year, for this is my fourth year on Varsity. Even though this year wasn't as we expected all the girls gave 100% towards the game."

As the season drew to an end the girls were disappointed, because this was their final season with the seven seniors, and they would be greatly missed.

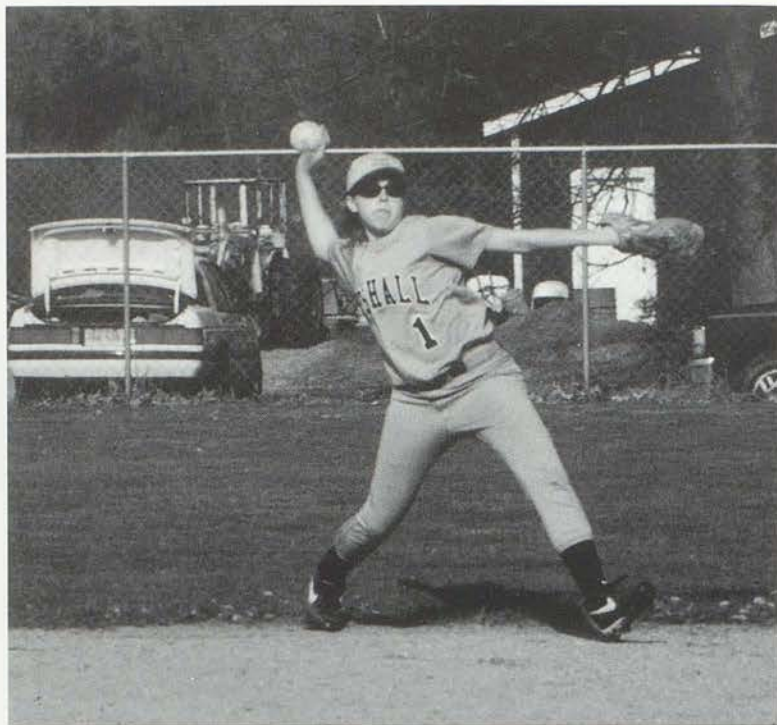

Out ...

Senior Jenny Kimerer gets to first base before her opponent. The team had many hours of throwing and catching before they could get it perfect.

Here it comes

Angie Brubaker throws the ball to her fellow teammates. With Angie's great arm she was able to help the team out.

It's outa here

Varsity Softball

Got it

Senior Tina Rewa stretches into the air to catch the ball. Even though Tina was seconds late, that didn't stop her from putting the effort in.

Back me up

As Tonya Purcell has the softball in her glove, fellow teammate Jenny Kimerer runs to back her up.

Mrs. Babe Ruth

Being one of the three sophomores on the Varsity team can be difficult. But Becky Walbeck did not let that get to her. Becky is a second year varsity player.

"DON'T LET THE FEAR

What a year our girl's Junior Varsity softball team had! The girls put forth a lot of effort and hard work to be the best they could be. Being our Junior Varsity team the girls look up and forward to the Varsity Softball team. Playing on the Junior Varsity team gives the girls many chances on improving their arm, speed, and accuracy before they play Varsity. In sports it's all about competition and it's not easy work, but these girls say that when they win a game or even just have fun playing the game, their late night bus rides home and all the effort is paid off.

Umpire, she's out of there!

As Amy Hoffdahl looks on in amazement and the umpire hurries to make the call, sophomore Heather Applegate tags out a Hillsdale Hornet on third base.

Coach gives a pep talk

Batter, Batter, Swing

Freshman Miranda Smith gives the Hillsdale Hornets a run for their money and the softball as she slams another one into right field.

Smiling pretty and bright for a road trip
Freshman Miranda Smith and sophomore Jamie Collier are smiling nice and bright for the camera. These two girls were riding the bus home from a late night game in Sturgis. It was the softball team's last game, and even though the girls were sad to see it end they were happy to be home.

She's reaching far but not for the stars
Emily Fraley is reaching far for that foul ball while playing against team rival Albion. Emily caught the ball and the team went ahead and won the game.

"YOU CAN'T CLIMB
UPHILL BY THINKING
THOUGHTS."

Beginning in the brisk spring air, those tennis buffs knew they were in for a successful season. Smashing their first opponent 7-0, it set the tone for the year. With only a few small bumps on the way, the team won the Williamston tournament and finished fourth in the Twin Valley Conference. The next challenge came at the Regional tournament. The Marshall tennis team finished in third place, just one disappointing place away from advancing to the State tournament. But the highlight of the tournament came late in the day when Senior Captain Johnny Thompson won a grueling three hour, three set match. "Facing the 'hardest hitting player in the state' I knew the match was not going to be an easy task." John Thompson was the only player to advance to the State meet in Okemos. Overall this was a great year for the tennis players. Not only were they blessed with good weather, but they also had a great time with a great season record of 8-3.

Game, Set, Match ...

Junior Camm Rowland follows through on a winning volley. Camm and partner Jeff Fausey had a fantastic season, with a winning record of 10-2.

Bring it on!

Senior Luke Peck waits in anticipation of a power volley. This is Luke's first year on Varsity. Playing second doubles Luke's improvement could be remarkably charted.

Pooch!

Waiting to return a serve is Ryan Traver playing third singles. Ryan's quick mobility and desire to win both attributed to this senior's outstanding record of 9-3.

Blum Doom

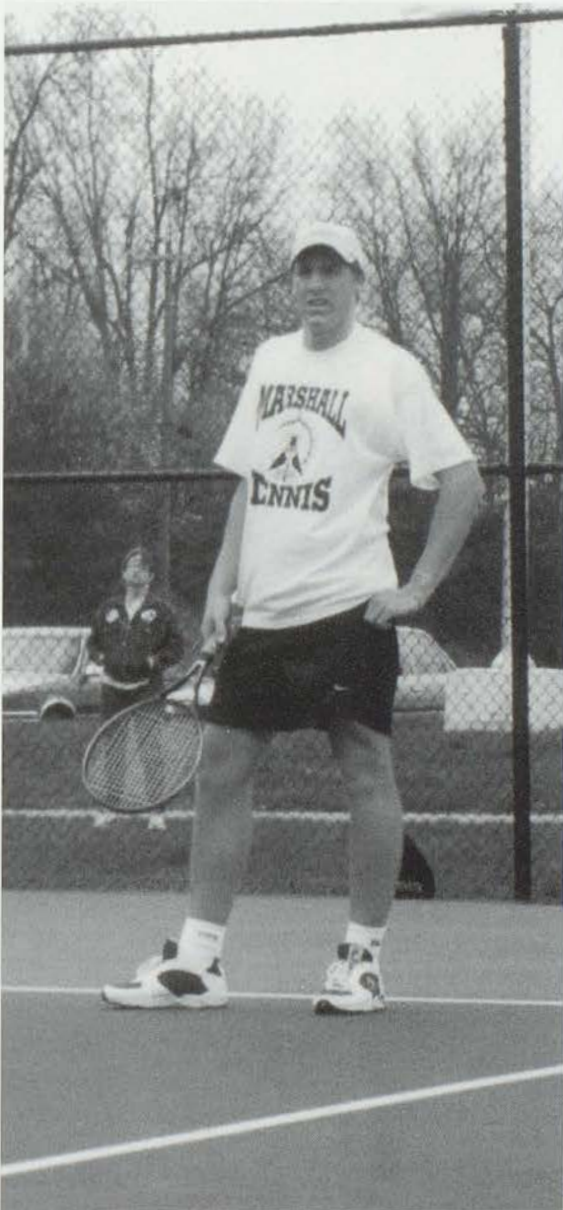

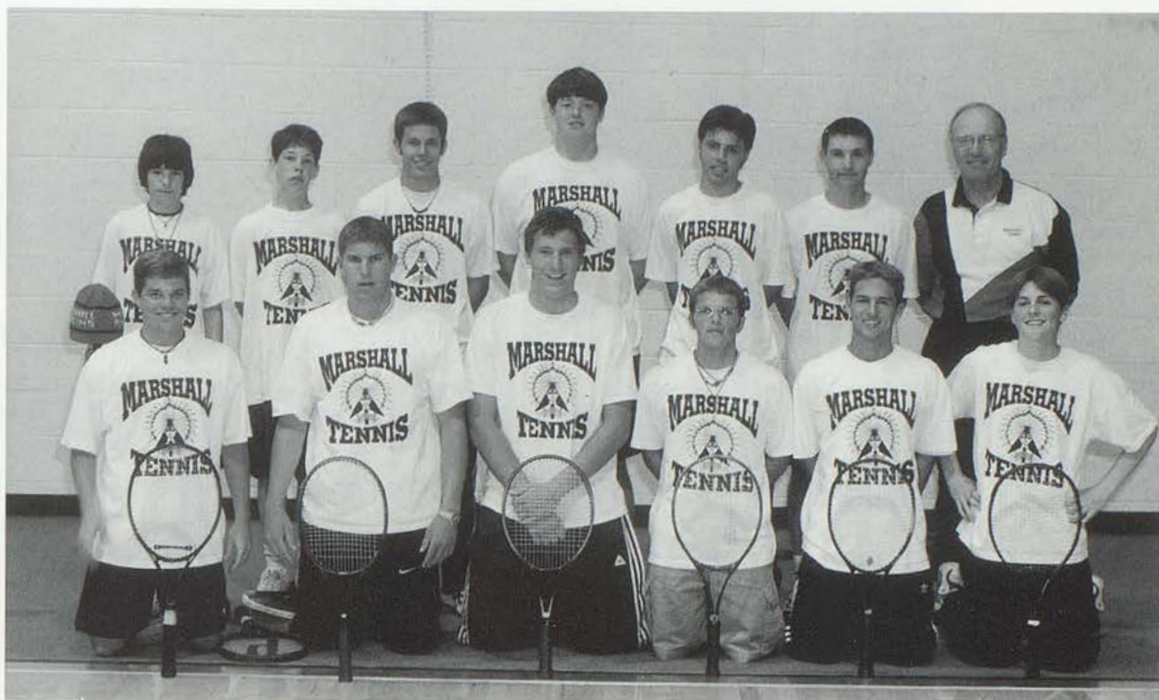

Alex Blum warms up at the net before his match with BC Central. Next year Alex also hopes to capture the #1 singles position.

Fundamentals

Are you sure?

"This year's team really came around a lot better than I thought it would". - Ryan Traver

Andy "Rusty" Rosko shows us that his serving skills are anything but, Bussa-Buss!

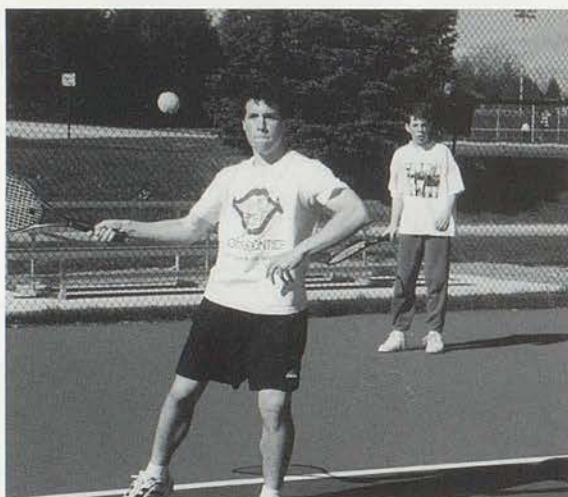

Every year, more and more guys show up to play Marshall Tennis. They don't come for the glory, or the cool t-shirts with intimidating slogans ... because there aren't any. Simply put, they come because of Mr. "Jody-Mack, Mack-Daddy, Skip, Skip-py" Foreman. His coaching style can only be described as "intense." He pushes his players to the limit, and the players love it. But it's not only the coaching that makes this team such a success, it's the work ethic. When the players aren't hard at work hitting balls over the fence, they are busy picking them up. And that really says something about the quality of character and the determined attitude of the team. The JV B coach, James "Crazo" Mazo, also contributes to the team by sharing his expertise and experience as a former Red-skin Tennis player. When asked about his job as assistant coach, he replied. "Hey, I'm assistant coach." Lead by team superstar, Matt "Vanilla" Bennet, the 'Skins pulled out a third place finish in the Twin Valley and swung their way to an impressive 6 and 2 overall season. They definitely gained the experience and confidence that will make them successful in years to come.

He's a swinger, baby!

Rossy "The Aussie" Lukje watches in amazement as junior Ryan Cox gets ready to unload on the ball. "That's right," Ryan said, "This is how we do it in America."

Unleash the beaat

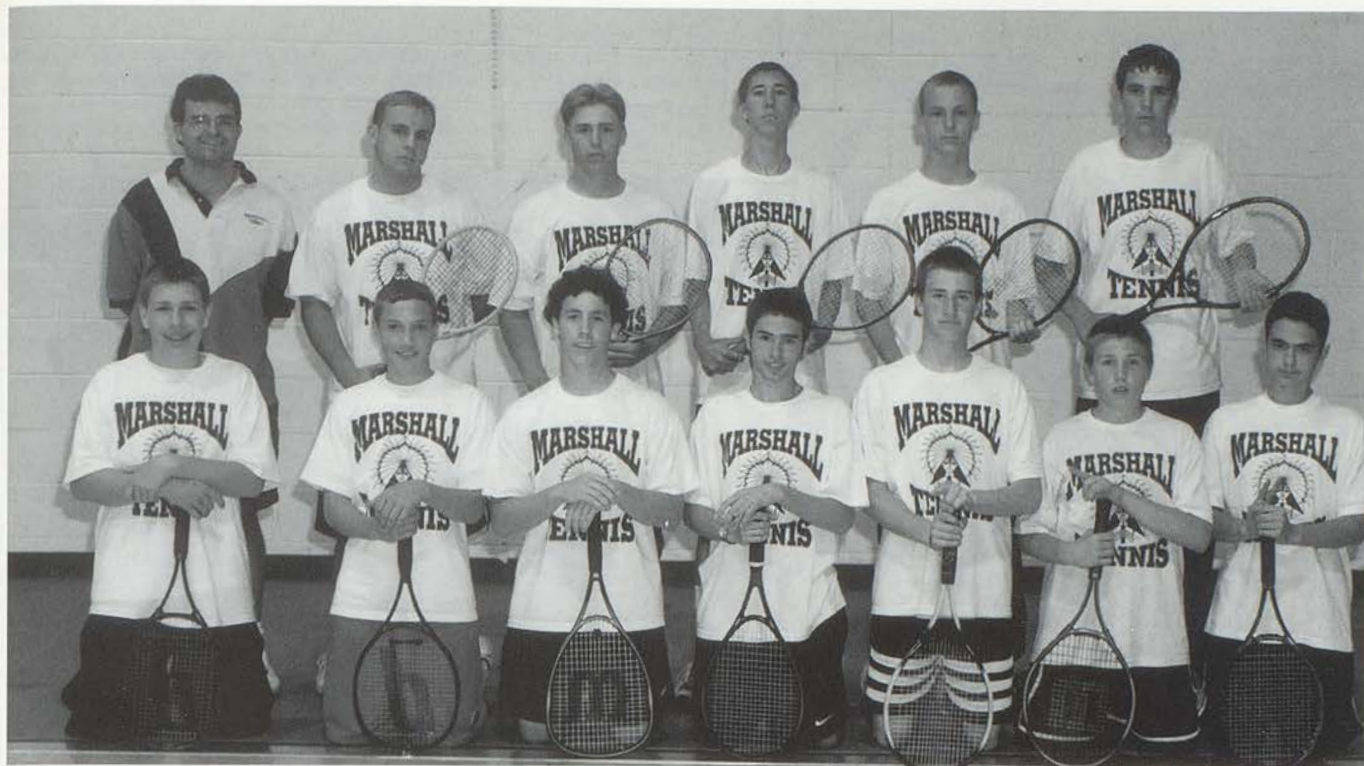

After years of built up tennis-anxiety, sophomore Joey Hutchings finally cracked. In what could only be described as a "devastating, fiery rage of unparalleled proportions," Joey smashed the ball at his opponent.

Buckle up: Marshall tennis

Senior Matt Sims participates in the ancient ritual of net-jumping. In today's oppressive society this act is considered unacceptable. But does Sibby care? Of course not. He insists on staying true to his culture, in essence, "keeping it real." Matt is also a member of Marshall's exclusive 300 Club.

By the book

Never before have I seen such a perfect "text book" swing. Sophomore Tim Hecox smashes another baseline passing shot, balancing on one foot! He does this purely for the sake of competition. "It's not out of pity," he says, "I'm just tryin' to keep things interesting."

Out cold

Time to time, an underclassman will be chosen randomly to participate in what has come to be known as "the initiation." This consists of a five minute period in which every other player on the team attempts to drill balls at the victim. Needless to say, sophomore Eric Hecox has been initiated.

"It's not a matter of skill but a matter of will."

The wind in their hair, the ball at their feet, the adrenaline rush as they take the field ready for head to head combat with the opposing team. These sensations and many more all invade the Girls' Varsity Soccer team every game day. Morgan Peters, the team's starting goalie commented on the season by saying, "Soccer rocks. Our record wasn't the greatest, but our season was still fun."

The team was led by senior Amy Rosko, Anne Kellogg, second year captain Liz Smith, and junior Emily Feeney. The Varsity team made it all the way to District Finals in the Twin Valley tournament. They suffered a devastating loss to Lumen Christi. The team made leaps and bounds in improving their skill level from last year. They played with great intensity and desire the entire season.

With all her might Showing off her huge throw-ins, Harmony Johnson gets the ball quickly into play. Throw-ins are one of Harmony's specialties. Harmony was out for part of the beginning of the season due to back trouble, but she came back strong and helped the Varsity team attain many victories.

Shake and bake

Faking the opposing team out of their minds, Emily Feeney uses her great skill to score goal after goal. Emily was the leading scorer of this year's team, and was voted Best Offense for the second year and M.V.P.

Letting it fly

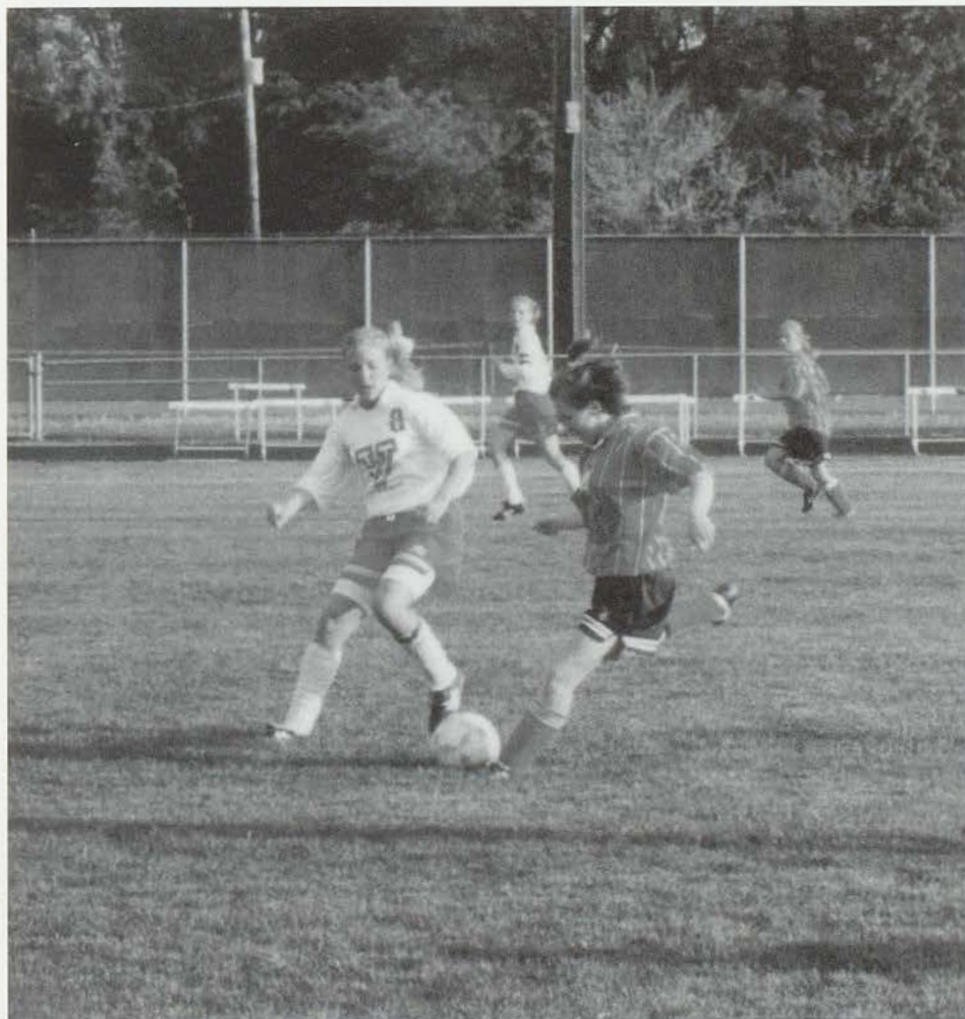

Blasting the ball off a goal kick, Amy Rosko performs her job with ease. Amy was the starting defensive sweeper. Amy used her awesome speed and skills to be one of the top defensive players in the Twin Valley Conference. Amy was also given the Hustle award for the second year.

Full force

Winding up to send the ball for the ride of its life, Rachael Lortz uses her immense strength to return the ball into her opponents territory. Rachael played sweeper this year for the Varsity team. She was a vital component to the team's success.

Front row: Rebecca Unterbrink, Elizabeth Mathieu, Catie Neidlinger, Meghan Marquoit, Kate Weston, Marisa Long, team manager Teresa. Gone with the wind

Defense specialist and 1997-1998 captain Anne Kellogg, denies the offensive team the ball during a game at Vicksburg. Anne was the backbone of this years team, solid and constant in her defense. She also was voted Best Defense for the second year.

"Just kick it."

I love to play soccer.

Starting forward Andrea Twiss was a big help in scoring for this year. Here, Andrea looks for the ball. She finds it. She scored. Any questions?

The assortment of freshmen and sophomores on this year's JV team helped create more fun throughout the season. Pulling away with a 11-4-2 record, Marshall once again found success. Marshall scored 40 goals the whole season to the only 18 goals scored upon. WOW! Co-captain Annie Stulberg expressed to others how she felt, "I think this season has been a blast! Last year our team was mostly freshmen so everyone knew everyone else, but this year we have both sophomores and freshmen and it has been rad because everyone meets new people and make new friends but still keeps the old." Annie fulfilled her job as the captain by pulling the team together and being a leader throughout the season. Captains with Annie were Jessi Petty and Kari Searles, who also were an impact on the team's success. When Kari was asked about the coaching staff she replied with this quote, "The coaches were great! Mr. McCauley, Ed and Al work you hard but at the same time make you laugh." There is nothing better than a successful year but at the same time having a lot of fun.

Congratulations gals on a fun and successful season!

Look out, I'm comin' on through!

Seeing an open spot, Kari Searles, center midfield, charges past a tea party of Lakeview Spartans. Kari was an unselfish passer which put many assists on her stats.

Hya!

The next Karate Kid, Kelly Tiece gets in her ready position to kick the ball down the field. At midfield, she had a strong foot and was able to kick that ball all the way down the field, which sometimes ended up in the net. But she was also able to do some fancy foot work also to mind-boggle the opponents.

My way or the highway

Playing the role of the perfect goalie Janine Woods tells her troops where they are needed to be. Janine was the starting goalie for JV and played most of every game. She had 48 saves in 11.5 games and 8.5 shutouts to round up a successful year for herself.

I want the ball!

In ready position, Jessi Petty impatiently waits for the arrival of the ball. Jessi was one of this year's captain. Similar to the year before, she was the leading scorer with ten big goals.

This year's Boys' Track team may not have been first in the state when it came to competition, but they were definitely first when it came to having heart. The entire team performed well at every meet and bettered most of their dramatically. Also, not only did two freshman, Doug Rasher and B.J. Van Dyke, make it to State, along with Senior Brad Bigelow in the 1600 meter relay, so did Senior Seth Palmer in both the 1600 meter relay and the 300 meter hurdles. To top that all off, Junior Ben Stinebaugh made it to State in the discus. While Palmer was the only one of these fine fellas to place at State, all put in an excellent effort that made their whole team proud.

Overall, this year's Boys' Track team was one that Marshall High School can be proud of. Not only did they work hard and give it their all at every practice, they held their heads up high in victory and defeat and were always proud to be a Redskin.

Run Forest Run!

Okay, okay, it's not Forest, but it is Randy Scherer! Randy was also a member of this year's cross country team which helped him in long distance runs for track season. Randy ran hard all season long and was known for his endurance and speed throughout the Twin Valley.

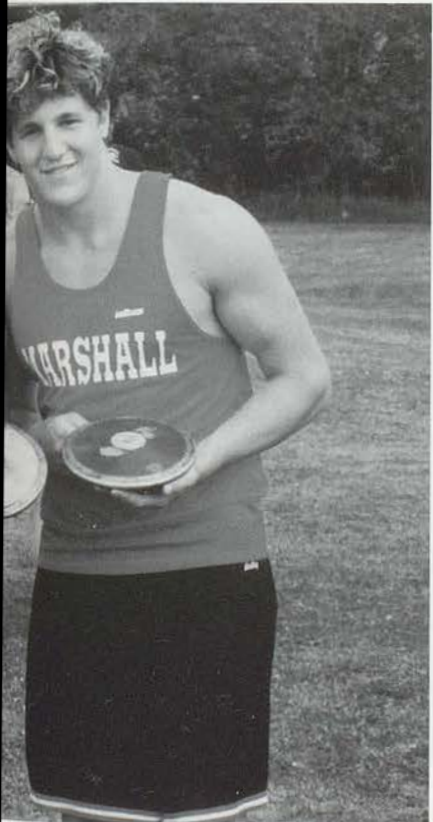

I've got the power

David Richardson tries to conquer the long jump at one of this year's meets. David did great in this event for it only being his first year.

Down to the line

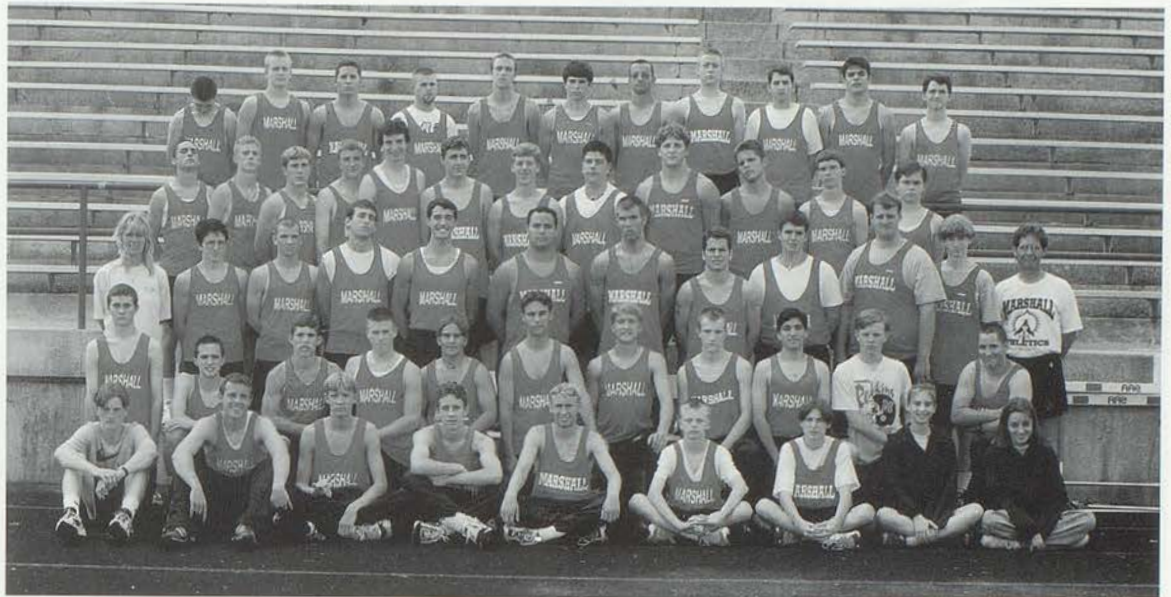

Seth Palmer sprints to the finish in the 300 meter hurdles. Seth was the top runner for Marshall this year and finished sixth at State.

The champions

David Yang and Ben Stinebaugh stand tall and proud. This year, Ben was crowned Regional champ, while David was Conference champ in the discus.

From left: Paul Daly, Sean Duffey, B.J. Ziskal, Kevin Cook, Jarrod Goodrich, David Richardson, Doug Potter, Rachel Mataka, Jamie Kendall. I believe I can fly

Brad Bigelow soars above the high jump bar. Brad was one of the eight seniors on this year's team, and was also one of the top competitors by qualifying for State in the 1600 meter relay.

Jump! Jump!

Josh Eash jumps his highest over one of the hurdles. Josh is known for his great speed, which earned him the nickname, "The Rocket."

"Hustle is another word for survival."

Through rain or shine, the Girls' Track Team made their mark in Redskin history. On their way, the girls ran to a successful season during the spring of 1998. The finished fourth at regionals and third at league. There were also some league champions: Jen Stevens in the discus, Sara Dillman in the 1600 meter and 3200 meter and Wendy Etue in the open 800 meter. By doing so well at League, these three girls qualified themselves for the State Meet. On recaping the season, Stephanie Troyer commented, "I really enjoyed track this season. I am glad the practices are over, but I am going to miss the overall them unity." Through the hard work and dedication of the girls it led them to another successful season. The team is going to lose some excellent seniors, but hopes to gain experience for the years to come.

Jumping to the "Sun"

Sophomore Sunny Quada proves to be leaps and bounds above the competition. Sunny was a key component to the well-rounded track squad and hopes to improve for next season.

Now its my turn

Running the last leg of relays was Wendy Etue's forté. However, Erica Eash was also very important in this relay. This first year runner learned how dedication and hard work really pay off.

I'll get you my pretty

I'm winning

Leaving her opponents in the dust wasn't a new accomplishment for senior Annie Scaers. Hurdles were Annie's best event during the track season.

"I am Tiger Woods."

Sometimes when the mother bird leaves her nest, the baby birds become scared and disoriented to their surroundings. This was not the case when team and league MVP Jen Walbeck graduated from MHS. They accepted the challenge and conquered the fears by going from an average of 224 last year to a 208 average this year. Much of this is due to a new rising star, maybe the next league MVP, maybe the next Tiger Woods ... I'm talking about sophomore sensation Chrissie George. Along with Chrissie the team found leadership coming from the two seniors, Kari Pardoe and Melissa Umphrey. It sounds as if the team is going to be promising in the future as well. "Hey, we have 11 of 13 back including the 3 lowest stroke averages so ... " These are the words of coach Dick Hamilton. As far as his number one player Chrissie George is concerned, "Our golf team did great this year, and everyone's improving, so we should be really strong the next couple of years."

Jon Jacob Jingle-Heimer Schmidt

Senior golf extraordinaire Kari Pardoe displays the type of form that makes her one of the elite. There's almost nothing better than getting out of school on a beautiful sunny day for a round of 18 on the links.

Eyein' the cup

Sara O'Leary of Marshall watches carefully as her counterpart from Mason tries to sink one in. Sometimes opposing players must watch other teams because it's all about trust out on the course.

Here comes the pitch

Sara O'Leary calls on her trusty pitching wedge, which has gotten her out of many a jam, on the infamous 5th hole at Wishbone Glen golf course. By the looks of it, this shot appears to be going a little left on the pin. Sara's short game around the greens and on the green is one reason why she was feared this year in the Twin Valley. Unfortunately for the Valley this girl has 2 more years.

It's par-tee time

Six of the golfers along with the assistant coach pose while they tip the yard glasses back at the local pub. Truthfully, the girls are enjoying an ice-cream drink at the Red Lobster up in Traverse City. It is tradition for the team to go there before their big outing.

Checkin' the angles
Number one golfer Chrissie George contemplates her lie on the green. Often times the greens out at Wishbone can trick golfers, but with Chrissie's talent they pose few problems. Sometimes if the ball is close to the hole, Chrissie can just stare at it, like she's doing here, and the ball will drop.

"Every year a year goes by."

Have you ever noticed how fast the years go by? Justin when you get settled into a comfortable routine for the year you're trust out into the summer. It's not like anyone objects, however, because, after all, what do you do in summer? In the summer you have fun, swim, sleep late. Then all of a sudden you are raked back into the school like a cash crop, made to adapt to an entirely new routine. The cycle continues year after year, with new friends smiling in the distance and old friends standing on the dusty roads of your memories, waving their hands from miles away.

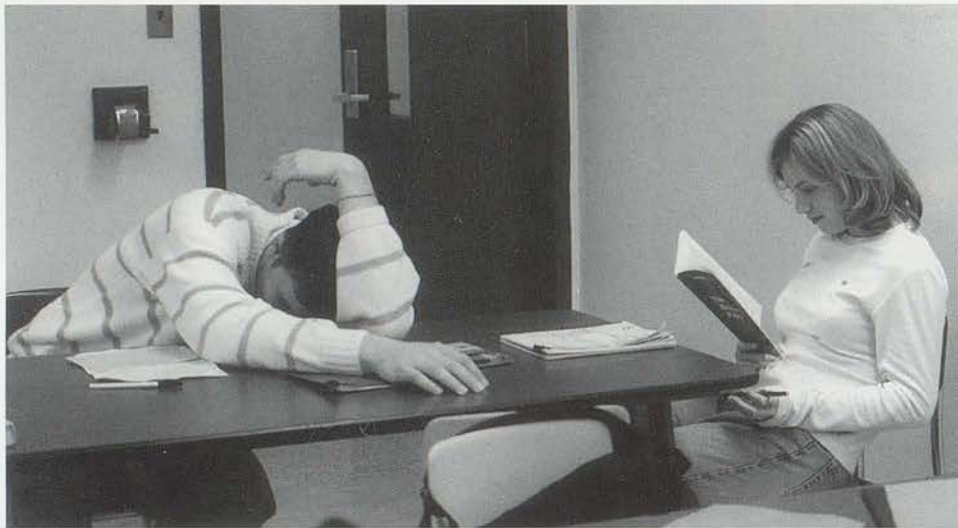

But in this confusing blur, you find a niche for yourself and you find meaning. There are classes to take, clubs to join, and sports to play. It's not like school is some sort of monster waiting to devour your teenage life. No, my friends, it's not like that at all. School is a spot that you know, a second home if you will. You spend about 1,040 hours there per year, so I would assume that you go for some reason. Maybe you go there so you have something to do during the day (it's a sad truth that summer can get boring), maybe it's because of all of the friends you have made. Perhaps it's the law that you have to go until you're sixteen that motivates you, or could it be the opportunities that can be found there? Whatever your reasoning might be, we all know that school is there, it does have a presence.

Then, almost as soon as the whole thing started, it's finished. And what do you have left? A piece of paper endorsed by the state? For fifteen years of your life? No, that's not all that you've got. You have friendships and you have memories, good and bad. This is what all your years really gave to you (well, that and an education). So pay attention to the years, because they really do fly.

"Leaders of the Pack"

You wouldn't find these students wearing leather chaps or drag racing Harleys in the student parking lot. They were leaders of a different breed, representing the students of M.H.S.

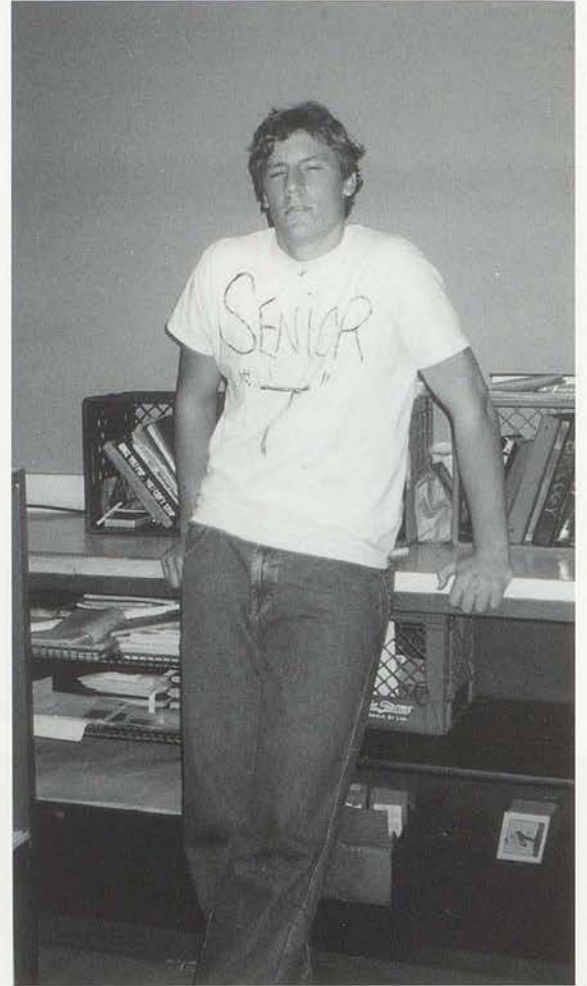

Student Council members helped MHS in many ways. They contributed their time and energy in the area of Homecoming, Winterfest, soup kitchen, MACS, compassion month, and eighth grade orientation. Commenting on Homecoming week, Kari Searles stated, "The most challenging part of creating our freshmen homecoming float wasn't in coming up with the ideas, it was in helping my classmates decide which idea to focus on. It was worth the effort because the freshmen beat the sophomore's float hands down." Like Homecoming, this year's Winterfest debut involved severe competition. While reflecting on winterfest, Greg Rasher proclaimed "The girls thought they stacked the competition with events they could win. It didn't matter though, we knew we would win anyway." In rebuttal, Anne Kellogg explained "We just let the guys win because we knew they would whine about it for the rest of the year if they had to pay for the dance. We were just looking out for our best interest."

Student Council members dismissed their competitive nature and worked together to help others. Trevor Kelly stated, "Soup kitchen was a fun experience that taught us all, about what it means to help people out." Not only did Student Council members donate their time to help the soup kitchen, they also spent the month of December working on compassion. "I've learned to appreciate how lucky I am through observing the MACS family we adopted for Compassion month," Ann Loomis commented. Throughout the year, student council members gave of their time and energies, proving themselves true leaders of the pack.

In preparation for Homecoming festivities, Andrew Neidlinger handcrafted his own Senior "T". With the help of a Sharpie, Andrew demonstrated the attire Seniors should wear to show the full extent of their spirit.

As a part of volunteering for the soup kitchen, Jeff Covert eagerly distributes the tickets needed to receive a meal. Not only is he a member of the volunteering team, he's also an actively eating client.

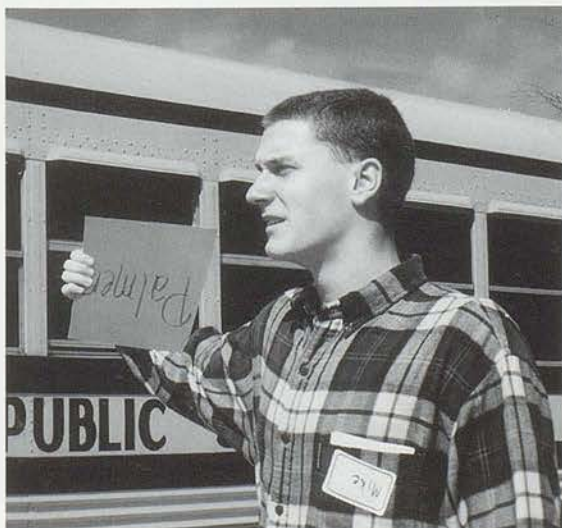

What's the occasion?

As a part of Homecoming festivities Student Council members sport their spirit in historically accurate threads for "blast from the past" day. Abby Bedient regretfully commented, "I was supremely bummed that I couldn't find my totally 80's multiples. I could have been so rad."

It's 9:00 am and they're not lonely

To help MACS transport food, Student Council members Doug Rasher, Laurel McKenna, Abby Bedient, and Amy Rosko rise early on a Saturday morning. With the help of many other students, the job only took about an hour.

Mike Weaver eagerly awaits the group of eighth graders he will guide through the bowes of M.H.S. His upside down seminar sign proves that it's never too early to taunt the future freshmen.

What's the latest report?

Good grades abound in the all student council seminar of Mr. Bums. Members Jeff Covert, Abby Bedient, Mike Weaver, Ann Loomis, and Trevor Kelly compare their latest report card grades. Congratulations, Abby! You have made the honor role.

Spring is a stressful time for NHS hopefuls because the induction ceremony is held in May. Members must have excellent character, leadership, service, and grades.

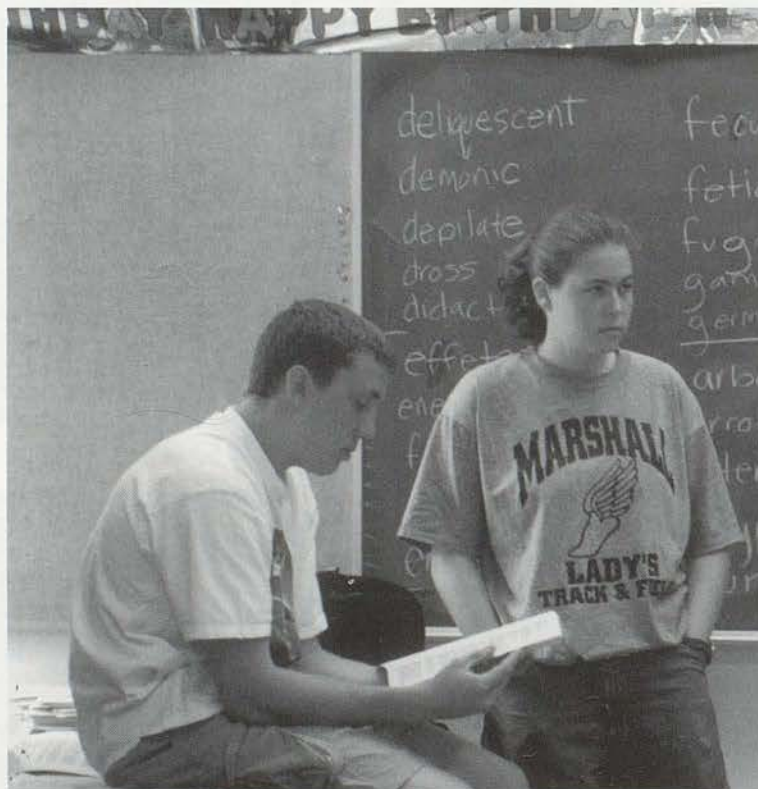

This year's list of capable officers includes Lora Sommers as President, Elysia Hecox and Sarah Martz team up as Vice Presidents. Seth Palmer and Amber Collins make a dynamite duo as Treasurers, and Karen Smith is the dedicated Secretary.

"It's hard for parent to keep exciting info a secret. My parents somewhat flubbed and I found out that I was in, so my nerves were calmed," reminisced Liz Smith about her induction last year.

While the nailbiting suspense may be over for this year's new inductees, next year's juniors will have to put their shoulders to the grindstone if they want a piece of the spotlight.

"If you can't convince them, confuse them."

The Debate and Forensics teams rounded up another year full of trophies, success and a little bit of fun. From the first place speaker trophy for Nate Cox to top places in State, the Marshall teams tore apart their opponents in every competition they attended. The skilled group of students not only used their words to express themselves, but they also devoted their whole body to their work. Whoever said Debate and Forensics are boring must not know much about these teams, as Debate was full of arguing, highway adventures, and even a little love. High intensity arguing, is what debate is all about. When the fangs come out and the topic is battled only the strong to survive. Marshall is the true example of strength as the Marshall Debate team ended the season winning five out of six districts and then becoming ninth in the state out of fifty for varsity.

What about high adventures? The debate team spent some nerve racking hours on the highway in the middle of the night when the school van broke down on them on the way back from districts. Debate is not all arguing, and suspense as one can also experience a little love, as Christina Wright received some love from a very flirtatious and smooth talking judge. Love, war, adventure, and hard work are the ingredients that equal the Marshall success.

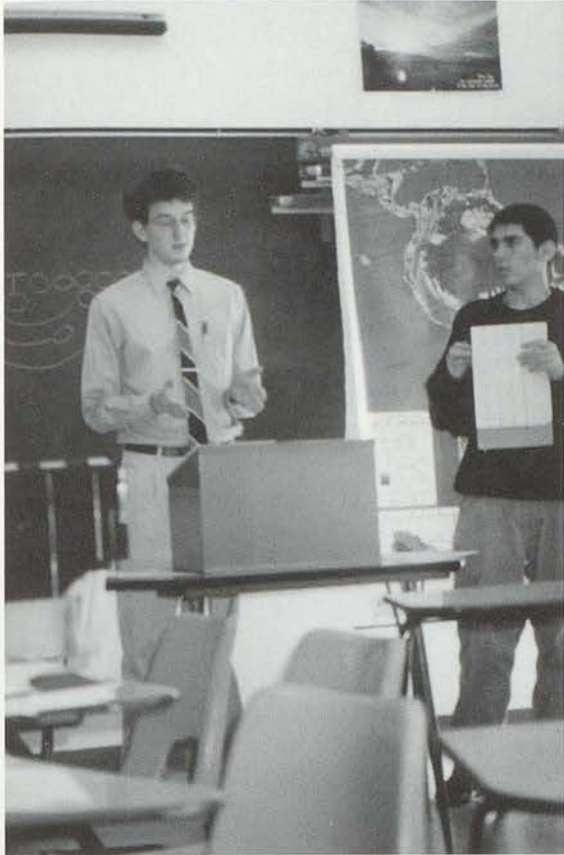

Yes, Steve, we will destroy them
 Alumni debater Steve Kinney gives Sara Brundage and Elizabeth Wheat some tips on how to win the next debate. As you can see, this is going to be a very intense debate since Sara and Elizabeth look on approvingly as Steve portrays their force and shows them how to totally smash their opponents.

This is how it is
Nate Cox shows the other team that there is only one correct plan, his. Nate is a very experienced talented debater as he always gets his point across very clearly and with great enthusiasm. Nate won the first place speaker trophy at this tournament.

I have the weapon of knowledge
Liz Wheat looks into her tubs with joy as they are full of helpful facts and ideas on how to win her debate. Yes, all debate teams have tubs, but none are quite as good as Marshall's. Marshall's tubs are much like the brains of the Marshall debaters themselves as they contain far more knowledge and information than any opponent can ever be ready for.

"I have been involved in debate through high school and I will always remember the good times that I had through it," Nate Cox

I have all of the evidence right here
Christina Wright proves her point with the many bits of evidence. Opponents may try to question her, but they don't stand a chance with all of her backing evidence. One of the judges told Christina she was the best IAC he had ever heard.

On the road to success
David Saber works very hard in the climb to the top debater position. David is a very promising debater who has the potential to do a lot for the team.

"Mission Possible headed for the future."

When people hear the word CATC (formerly known as Vo-Ed) they're not quite sure what to say. The Calhoun Area Technology Center is located by Kellogg Community College. Students from many different schools come together to learn job skills and other fields that are not available in the school academic program. CATC teaches students job skills that can help them advance in the job world. The CATC center offers many skills from food preparation to automotive technology.

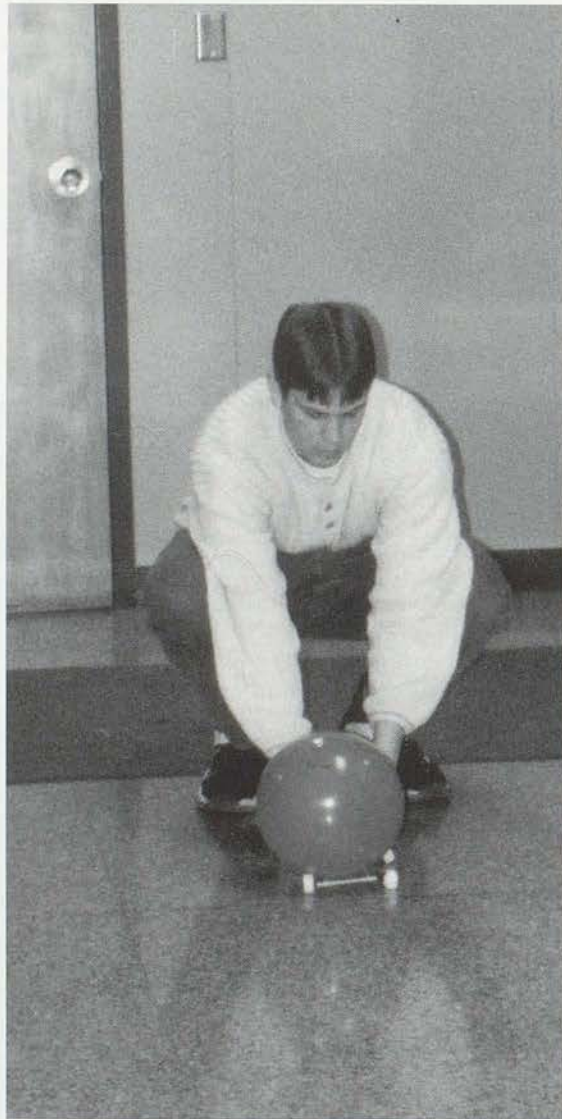

The students leave after third and fourth blocks and are there until 2:30. In that time they do book and hands-on work. Many Marshall students do a co-op job three days a week. Mike Spiekerman works at Banfield's Auto whereas Sarah Huepenbecker works at Claire's Boutique in the Lakeview Square Mall.

The center does not just do machine training, but personal service classes as well. Students can go into a health or dental field. In the health field they assist health teams in a variety of duties. The dental students work in the dental offices and the laboratories. Jessica Bibblings works at a dental office in the Battle Creek area.

If students do want to go into mechanical fields they can. The two most popular classes are the automotive and construction clusters. In these classes they work with the latest equipment.

Now that you know a little more about the CATC, maybe you will be interested in taking some classes there.

"No race can prosper till it learns there is as much dignity in tilling a field as in writing a poem."

So, you know everything there is to know about MHS, right? You can probably name or recognize everyone in your class, if not everyone in the school. You know where all the classrooms are located and on which days to avoid eating cafeteria cuisine. Maybe you are a die-hard sports fan and can rattle off any of our teams records faster than your own phone number. And wasn't it just yesterday that you got caught singing the lyrics to Guys and Dolls? Even so, you probably don't know much more about the FFA than what its acronym stands for.

All year round the FFA is swept up in a whirlwind of activity, unnoticed by much of our student body. A new project jump started by the group was the Legacy of Learning program. Twenty-five patient, computer-savvy students volunteered their time to teach elderly adults at Maplewood, Marshall House and Tendercare about the Internet and other opportunities. Junior Jacob Washburn explained, "It is a good way to meet senior citizens and learn more about computers as well."

In March, many members participated in the State FFA Convention in competitions such as Ag Forum and Parlimentary Procedure. There were also job interview and public speaking contest, not to mention the musical events. "I played the flute in the State Band Convention. It was a really great experience," offered freshman Wendy Hamilton.

Spring brings an even more hectic schedule for FFA members. They participate in numerous competitions in everything from landscaping and forestry to salesmanship. With so many options, there is a contest for everybody. Equestrian Cassie Treat noted, "Horse judging is a great learning experience for those who wish to know more about horses." Brett Riser preferred another venue, "My favorite part of FFA is soil judging, where you determine what kind of soil is in certain field."

The FFA does many things that you would guess a group with their title would do-hold fundraisers, raise animals for the fair and study agriculture. But after a close look, it is obvious that they do much more than that. FFA members represent our school by volunteering in the community and participating in several state competitions. We should be proud that they do it so well.

Kick grass

Don't be fooled by their bright eyes and innocent smiles, these people mean business. This crackerjack team of Sarah Martz, Nicole Bezubic, Laurie Romanoski, Christine Martz, Ryan Whipple, Jacob Hoffman and Sara Corrales high-tailed it off those steps and captured the state finalist trophy in Ag Forum.

Don't let go!

After coming in 5th in the state in parliamentary procedure, there's no way Andy Fast and Lora Sommers are letting this trophy get away. Forming a human wall behind them are Jacob Washburn, Mindy Weakley, Jarrod Goodrich, Ken Murphy, and Jason Bibler. Fast and Murphy announced, "This is the best Parliamentary Procedure Marshall has had in 30 to 40 years."

And the winner is ...

Seniors Ryan Whipple, Lora Sommers and Ken Murphy painstakingly tally each vote to determine which lucky guys and gals will be elected to serve as officers next year. When all was said and done, Jason Bibler was elected president and Jacob Washburn was chosen as vice president.

He love me, he loves me not

Floral arrangement experts Jessica Schnitzler and Kirk Stephens prove that there are better ways to use daisies other than plucking out the petals. This year the FFA transformed flowers donated by funeral homes into table centerpieces for residents at local nursing homes. Schnitzler commented, "There's more to flower arranging than most people think. You have to follow patterns and pick flowers that complement each other."

Where is thumbkin?

FFA advisor, Mr. Beneker points his thumb toward the ski while explaining upcoming events to his troops. Jacob Washburn, Sarah Martz, Sara Corralez and Ryan Whipple stood by to make a presentation.

"Who controls the past controls the future. Who controls the present controls the past."

This year Marshall sent 21 students and two teachers to Washington D.C. For the students, Close-Up has seemed to be a life changing experience.

The students spend the week attending seminars ranging from laws to international relations. They also visited many monuments like the Jefferson Memorial, Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial and the Lincoln Memorial. Many students fell into tears when the group visited the Vietnam Memorial and the Korean War Memorial.

After a week Full of seminars and traveling through D.C., the students were ready to have some fun. On Thursday night all of the students attended the play Capital Steps. On Friday, the students had a free day. Most went shopping in Georgetown and the others went to some of the museums.

On Friday night the Close-Up staff held a banquet for the students. The banquet went over the weeks events. Mike Weaver, Kate Goedde and Lindsay Jones were chosen to speak about the weeks events. After the banquet, there was a dance. The students boogied down until 1:00 a.m., and then went back to their rooms and finished packing.

and made history."

It's a chilly spring evening and you can feel the cool air through your blue windbreaker. The wind begins to pick up and it blows your hair into your face. You brush your straight brown locks back behind your ear as you hear the answering machine on the other end of the line kick on. "Hi, we are unable to come to the phone right now ..."

You hang up the pay phone and watch the silver metal cord as it swings back and forth in its holder. "Where is your mom?" you think to yourself. She was supposed to pick you up over an hour ago. You kick at a small gray stone and watch it skip across the cold black pavement. You start walking toward the corner and stop when you see the flashing red hand on the crossing signal. "Better not cross," you think, "I might get hit!"

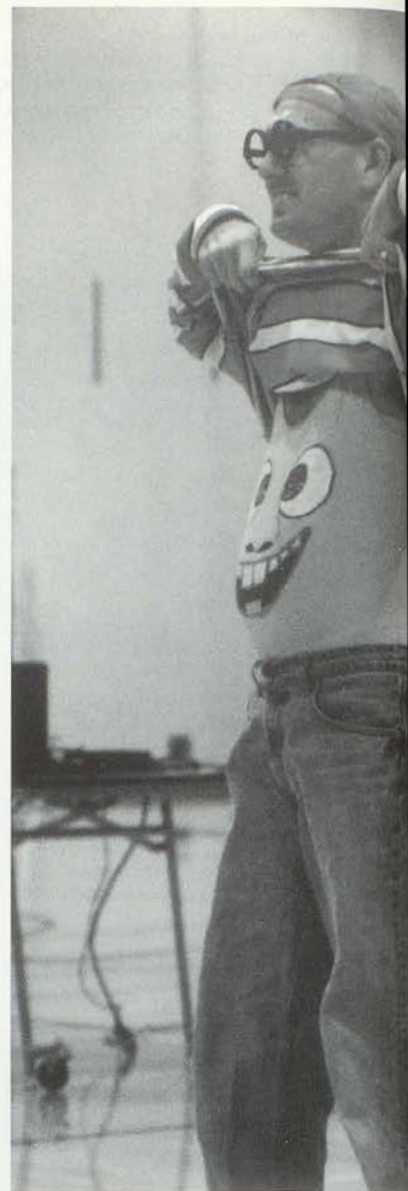

Yeah, there's always so much traffic here in little old Marshall, especially at this time on Thursday nights. You glance at the signal again, it's a "go". You look both ways (you can never be too safe) and walk across the road. You hear car tires squeal and watch as the car pulls into the Shell Stop. It comes to a halt outside the door. You see the owner hop out and quickly shuffle into the brown brick building. You look again at the car. You trace the path of the headlights with your eyes. The beams are fixed upon a large mural on the wall that you've never noticed before. You read the writing under the painting, "We choose what we value most ... choose carefully." "Who did this?" you wonder.

This mural was a product of the joint efforts of our SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) and YAC (Youth Advisory Committee) Groups. The members of SADD painted the mural and YAC granted the money for the project. This endeavor was just one of the many taken on by our SADD and YAC chapters this year. Another example of SADD at work was at one of this year's basketball games. The SADD members tied red ribbons on car antennas to promote their message against driving drunk. SADD also brought a comedian named OJ Anderson to entertain the students. In addition, six of the SADD members attended a leadership training conference in Shanty Creek last winter.

During the past year, YACers granted money, which was generously donated by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, to numerous causes in our community. They adopted two families at Christmas time, supplying them with both gifts and groceries, and gave money to the elementary schools to buy food for MACS during the holidays. "Our group was really glad to help out. Instead of having a YAC holiday party, we got together to help someone else," commented senior Liz Smith. YACers also set up a recycling program at the school, and the members took turns after school emptying the bins.

The members of these two committees are getting involved. Getting involved makes us see and makes us care, and may help make our community a better place to live. As Kahlil Gibran said in The Prophet, "You give but little when you give of your possessions. It is when you give of yourself that you truly give."

Surprise!

Comedian OJ Anderson shows students what he's made of at a school assembly in March. OJ, who's comedic performance was a change from the usual "don't drink alcohol" speech, was sponsored by SADD. "OJ Anderson was a lot funnier than I thought he'd be," chimed sophomore Emily Davis.

A picture paints a thousand words ...

This mural, painted by SADD committee members last summer, reminds us that we are all responsible for the choices we make. SADD spends countless hours throughout the year delivering their message to the members of our community.

Can we recycle that?

YAC members Christina Wright and Sarah Brundage do their part to recycle, reduce, and reuse at MHS. This year the YACers have devoted many hours after school to emptying recycling bins.

Ladies and Gentleman ...

SADD president Lora Sommers introduces comedian OJ Anderson to the student body. OJ captivated the audience with his mannerisms and wit. "He was one of the funniest buckaroos I've ever heard," said coach Reynolds.

"The beat goes on"

The year begins and ends but still the beat goes on. From the dancing drummers to the spirited drum majors Kate Goedde and Sarah Bedient, the Marshall band is a true symbol of spirit and skill. Christina Wright said, "Band is not only a time for learning, but also a time for fun." We only see the final product but much also goes on behind the scenes. Band students devote their time both in and outside the classroom. The band students went to camp at Central Michigan University and then practiced Monday nights to perfect their Phantom show. The color guard improved by leaps and bounds in their performances this year, as it was the first year they had a professional instructor helping them with their routines.

The band's overall Marching Band Festival ratings improved as individuals stepped up to the challenge.

The band is not only involved at the football games but also at basketball games, graduation, festival, senior citizen breakfast, holiday parades, and even at the Capitol. At solo and ensemble about fifteen of Marshall's groups qualified for the State competition. The students who are involved in band carry their abilities and enthusiasm in all they do, making every performance memorable for both themselves and those who attend it. Everywhere the band went their spirited moving music touched the hearts of many as it soothed the soul and enlightened the spirit.

Attention

Drum majors Kate Goedde, and Sarah Bedient stand erect as they lead the band in the half time show. Many students and adults have complimented the two girls on their wonderful work.

Let's talk about band

Mr. Sitkiewicz gives his students a pep talk as they get ready for one of their numerous concerts. The concert season is one of the many forms of music our band takes on. One thing that makes the concert season different and interesting is the incorporation of instruments that are not used in the marching season.

State your beat

MHS band members step out and state their beat. They play it loud and they play it proud as they play at the State Finals and supporting the team is an opportunity few other band members can say they have had. Standing on the astro-turf fifty yard line of the Silverdome, with the lights shining down and the fans cheering is an experience the band members will never forget.

It's great to be a guy

Now we know the reason these boys are in band. A four to ten ratio is pretty good for Mike, Andy and Bryan. Band is a chance to meet many new people.

Marshall starts with an "M"

The band spells out our spirit with an "M". The MHS band works long and hard on the field configurations and the "M" is just one of the many configurations they share with the fans. The band members work in class and Monday nights on the many different configurations. A lot of credit can be given to the band as they do all of the movements while still staying in beat as one.

Dancing drummers

The percussion entertains the fans game after game. These talented drummers don't just beat on their drums, but perform an entertaining energetic show of drum dips, stick flips and head nods.

"You ain't heard nothing yet!"

"I think we've improved a lot. I can't wait until next year!" Krystal Finch said excitedly as she reminisced about the past year in choir. This year the Marshall High School Choir was a great success. The Marshall Choir improved a great deal throughout the school year, ending the season with some particularly challenging pieces of music.

The High School Choir had only seven concerts this year, including two in conjunction with a Flint High School Choir. "The concerts with Flint were the highlight of our choir season," Junior Rachel Matako said. "We had the opportunity to meet many new people, and I think the entire choir had a lot of fun doing so."

One of the pieces that the choir did this year was "The Rhythmn of Life," which was sung in a combined group with the Flint Choir and the Marshall Singers, who recently traveled to Austria for an international competition. One of the most popular pieces that was sung this year was "I Love Ragtime." A jazzy piece that was sung at the Pops concert with choreography, it became an instant hit.

Another significant happening in the choir room this year was the presence of Ms. Edy, the student teacher. "I'm really going to miss her," Yoko Shizuka said, "She's so nice. She gave a lot of work, but that's o.k." Ms. Edy helped the choir a lot under the guidance of Ms. Petrich.

Ahh! The sweet smell of success

Standing under a cascade of beautiful flowers, Jenny Skidmore reflects on the past week that she spent in Austria with the Marshall Singers. The Singers received a '1' at an International choral festival this year.

Hmmm ...

Sitting alone on the floor of the choir room, Krystal Finch writes a glowing evaluation for Ms. Edy. Krystal was very grateful for everything that Ms. Edy had done for the choir and said that she'll really miss her next year.

Practice makes perfect

Singing out in harmony with their fellow choir members, Beth Newton, Lacey Phillips, and Desiree Sanchez belt out their notes. This year in choir they worked really hard under the direction of Ms. Petrich and student teacher Ms. Edy.

Casually dressed and ready to go Kevin Rayner, Jake Gates, Tyler Nicolls, and Jacob Washburn gladly display their vocal talents to the residents of Austria. The guys enjoyed their trip to Austria immensely.

Jake Gates says goodbye to Ms. Edy for the last time. This year Jake was in the Marshall Singers as well as the choir and accompanied the Singers to Austria.

the dust of everyday life."

When you think of orchestra, the first thing that comes to mind is Mr. Keranen and beautiful music. Mr. Keranen is one of the student's favorite teachers. His unique way of teaching enralls a lot of his young musicians. Every year, he makes a bet with his students. The guidelines of the bet for the students are to get "ones" at State. If these requirements are met, Mr. Keranen promises to shave off his year-round beard. Mr. Keranen has been teaching at Marshall for three exciting years, but it's tough splitting his time between the middle school and the high school.

Every first block and seminar, the sounds of the strings can be heard throughout the halls. The orchestra student's favorite song is "Toccata". They liked that song because it was upbeat and not just the everyday average tune. Elisha O'Dell says, "It was a great experience and it was a lot better than last year, we all came together this year."

Although the orchestra failed to achieve their goal, they still had a great year playing beautifully for all of their audiences.

"We should all be concerned with the future because we will all have to spend the rest of our lives there."

What is Junior Achievement all about? If one isn't a senior or working on it for yearbook, chances are one wouldn't know that answer. Curious? Then I urge any and all to read on and become enlightened.

As part of a required, full semester course, JA serves as a direct benefit to the students' future. Seniors learn many trades applicable to the "real world".

Mr. Jody Foreman, having taught the class for four years now, states, "It is a great learning experience because it is a change of pace from a regular academic class." This statement certainly proves true. Students aren't normally found selling candles in Biology. Being able to sell items in the class is one of the highlights. It is an interactive process that simulates the operation of a business. Other products sold are umbrellas, stickers, clothing, air fresheners and bleacher seats. They sell to actual people for actual money. Profit earned from sales of such items is then used for many purposes. Some students choose to give it to charity while others may give some to stockholders and pay for cost of materials and supplies.

Junior Achievement is a course that simulates the workings and responsibilities of a real business. Students gain experience on how to actually run a company, and in turn also learn more about the American Economic System. As a benefit students ascertain their abilities to rely on others to get things done and help others in the same way. It is a great way to exercise one's people skills. Students are polished and prepared for life after school with this course. As Foreman again emphasizes, "(JA) prepares them by teaching them team work which helps them work with others when they get in the business world."

Ouch, manual labor ...

Passing the time, Justin Fields and Amanda Farley cut ribbons. The ribbon is a decorative addition in packaging JA products.

Surveying the goods ...

Onlookers awe as Jake Gates keenly eyes a candle for sale. He finds much success in using his body as a marketing tool.

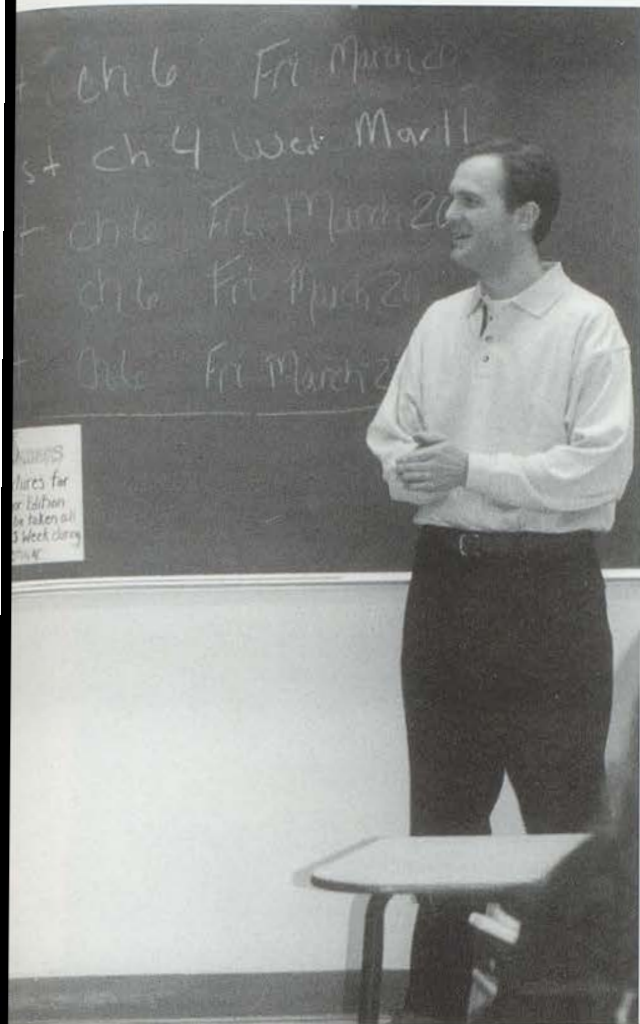

On the spot ...

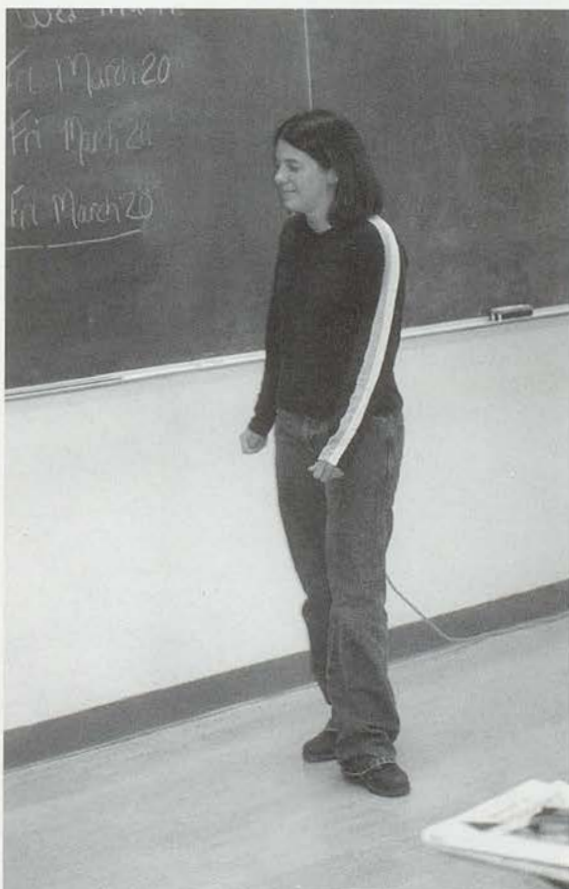

At the front of the room, Nick Dereski is quizzed by the Econ consultant. Will he buckle under pressure?

People join in ...

Everyone helps in creating items for future sale. The students here are preparing candles in hopes the profit they receive will one day make them rich.

"YEARBOOK-NOVACAINE FOR THE SOUL"

Call me Ishmael

No, no there's no need to call me Ishmael when you can call me RIK. You may notice my shirt says, "athlete" 4 times. It's a blatant lie. Do I look like an athlete? No, no my friends, I get winded riding the escalators. Is that sad? Sure, but so was the blockbuster Titantic, and you all watched that. Do I care? No because just like Usher Raymond, we do things "My Way." So skip along behind me, and discover the magic and the mystery that is yearbook.

Year + Book equals ...

Some think that yearbook is a class where you can just mess around and still get a good grade. There is nothing farther from the truth, my friends. To expel this image from your head, I have put in a photo of yearbook students who are actually working. John Thompson looks intently through photos in a vain attempt to find a new "man" for Jessica (a.k.a. Jessica) Bassis. Although Marta Ringenberg and Greg Rasher looked as well, no remedy to the problem was found. Finally, defeat was declared and the four went back to working on their own stuff.

Hey Andrew!

Andrew Neidlinger usually steps into the yearbook room about five minutes after class begins. Although this has cost him a huge reduction in his grades, the dramatic entrance is always greatly appreciated by the class in its entirety. "I just try to give the folks what they want. I feel as though that's my calling," Andrew was quoted as saying. Ms. Anne Ward, coordinator of this year's yearbook effort, says of Neidlinger, "He has a true classroom presence. As soon as he walks into the room you can tell that he's asking himself, 'What can I do to improve this book today?'" What a worker.

Hello ... I have my hand on my neck

There are two yearbook classes this year, two. Since yearbook is such a difficult class, the freshmen are screened unscrupulously, mainly because most of them can't handle the pressure. Being second year veterans of the high school, Sara Boedecker and Jessi Petty were given the green light. This may be tough on the freshman, but in the jungle of high school, it's kill or be killed.

Mr. Thompson's Neighborhood

Although he won M.V.P. for his work as the "L" on the front page, John Thompson was not recognized for his many other talents like best cropper and most likely to succeed in a class like yearbook. We all felt bad about this neglect, but we did snap a heck of a picture where John has a lot of cake in his mouth. Yay John!!

Whistle while you work

Anne Kellogg, this year's yearbook editor, is viewed in this photo. Anne was thinking about changing her name to "The Ayatollah" this year, but, upon realizing that it is difficult to sign on checks and that it would not have shown up with the senior pictures, this dream was shattered. Anne did, however, prove to be an excellent and efficient editor, and we all love her like a sister.

Three Little Girls

Alanis Morissette asked "Isn't it ironic?" and to answer her question, yes it is. Liz Smith, a senior, Annie Stulberg, a sophomore, and Lindsey Cox, a freshman, all work the scene to get into this picture. These girls are known for their intense dedication to yearbook pages and for the fact that they often go hunting together. Although it can not be revealed by a mere photo, these girls are sensitive and caring.

Ready for the game?

All-star quarterback Ryan VanDyke takes a breather during one of Mr. Tefler's classes this year. Not only was Ryan a great football player, but also a key member of this year's undefeated regular season basketball team. During many a game Ryan showed his skills on the field and on the court.

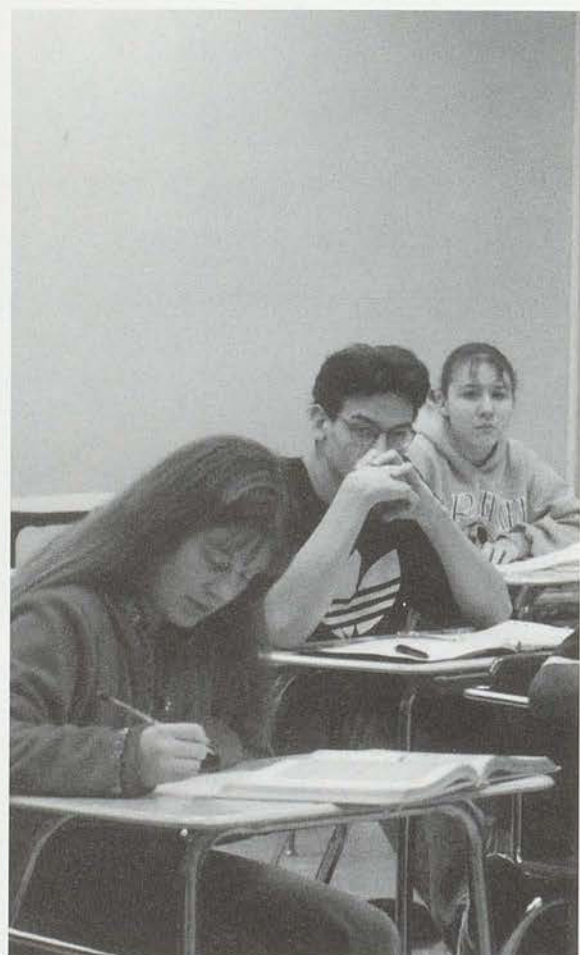

"Where there is an inquisitive mind there will always be a frontier."

I should have studied.

Sophomore Annie Stulberg checks out her test in Ms. Ward's class this year. Annie is an excellent student as well as an avid participant in the theater department of the Marshall Community. Annie says she loves the play Julius Caesar and hopes to someday play the part of Calpurnia. Annie is a member of the Junior Varsity soccer team and was also in the musical Guys and Dolls.

How much longer?

Amber Leonard, Brandon Robishaw, and Amanda Soltis all look on as Ms. Ralston is giving one of her theater impersonations. Ms. Ralston's class is never boring as this year she directed the play, The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940, and the musical Guys and Dolls. Over the years, Ms. Ralston has directed many plays and musicals and has brought much enjoyment to the Marshall community.

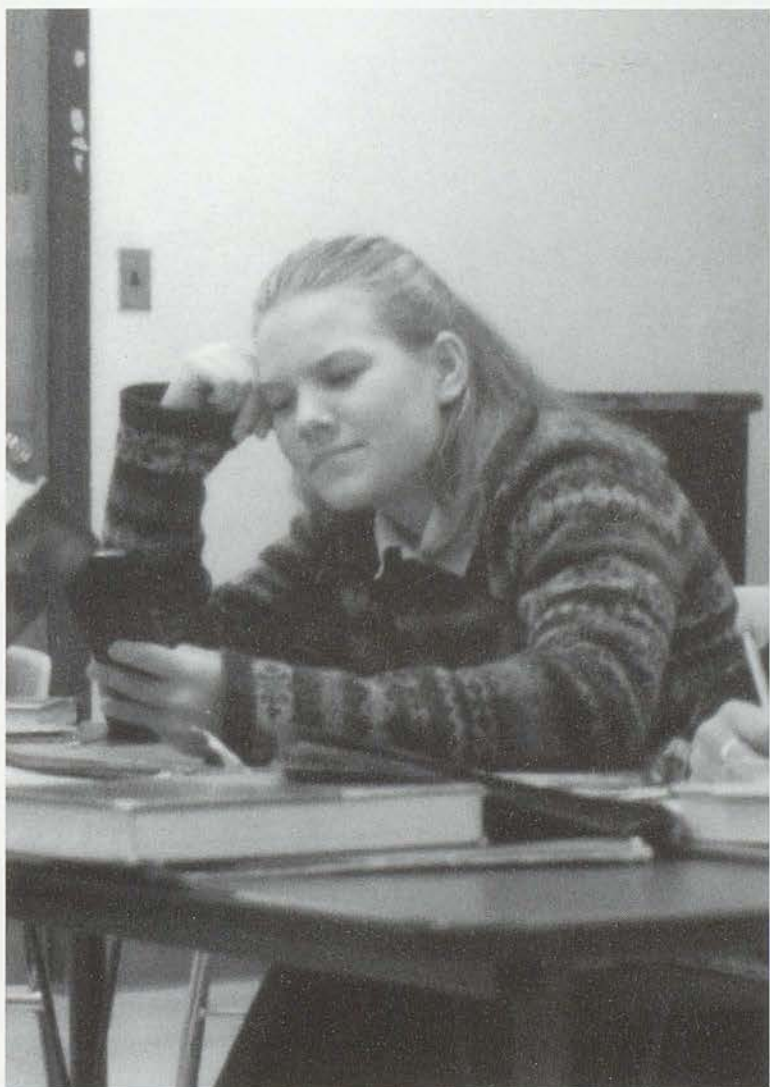

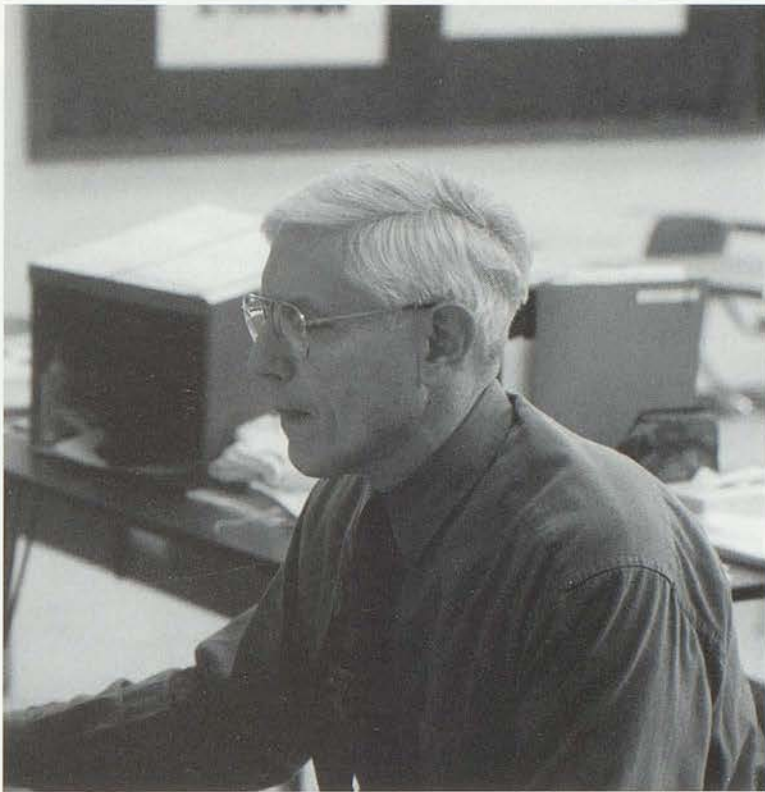

I wish there was someone else to do this.

Mr. Hamilton grades papers during his planning period, wishing he had an office practice to do the work for him. Along with being an Ancient History, U. S. History, and World Cultures teacher, Mr. Hamilton is the girl's golf coach and has led them to many successful seasons. He has taught at Marshall for many years and many to come. Mr. Hamilton really wishes he had an office practice who would be a good and hard working student, oh well!

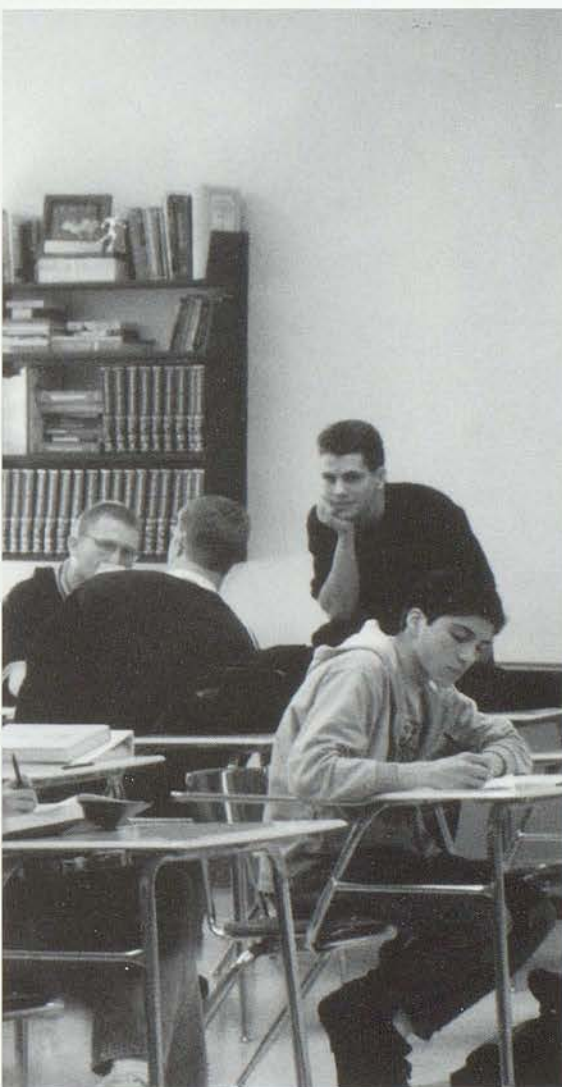

I wish it were lunch time.

Mr. Ickes, English teacher, is a very avid eater and really wishes that it were lunch time. Mr. Ickes is the topic of many conversations because of the many signs that are posted on his door during his 6th block Honors II English Class. Some of the signs have been pretty dam funny and bring laughter to all his students. Along with being a funny guy, Mr. Ickes is a great English teacher and has given many kids the joy of reading and grammar.

I gotta stay awake!

Kelly Triece struggles to stay awake during one of Ms. Ward's Honors English 10 classes this year. Ms. Ward is not known for putting her students to sleep, but this must be a down time in Julius Caesar. Kelly does like the play though and along with English also enjoys Ms. Ward's yearbook class. Kelly is a member of the Junior Varsity soccer team this year and plans on playing again next year.

What's the news?

Chad Shelton looks on as Jeremy Brown and Phil Wolk talk of the gossip at MHS. Pato Bugueno-Diaz continues to take a test for Mr. Unruh's class. Mr. Unruh is a Government and Psychology teacher along with being the Track coach at MHS. It looks as if these boys have much to talk about. Many of these students will go on to have a career in a Government position and will owe it all to Mr. Unruh.

Two heads are better than one
 If two heads are better than one, what about four? These girls work on their teamwork skills as they try to improve their computer knowledge. All these girls working together on the computers are in Mr. Malinowski's seventh block and are increasing their intelligence. As a part of their learning experience these girls are also having a good time and getting to know each other and build new friendships.

Stinking technology
 Jim Maher experiences some computer induced stress. Yes, computers are a great discovery, but viruses, malfunctions, and programming booklets printed in every language but English can bring a great deal of frustration to a person's computer work.

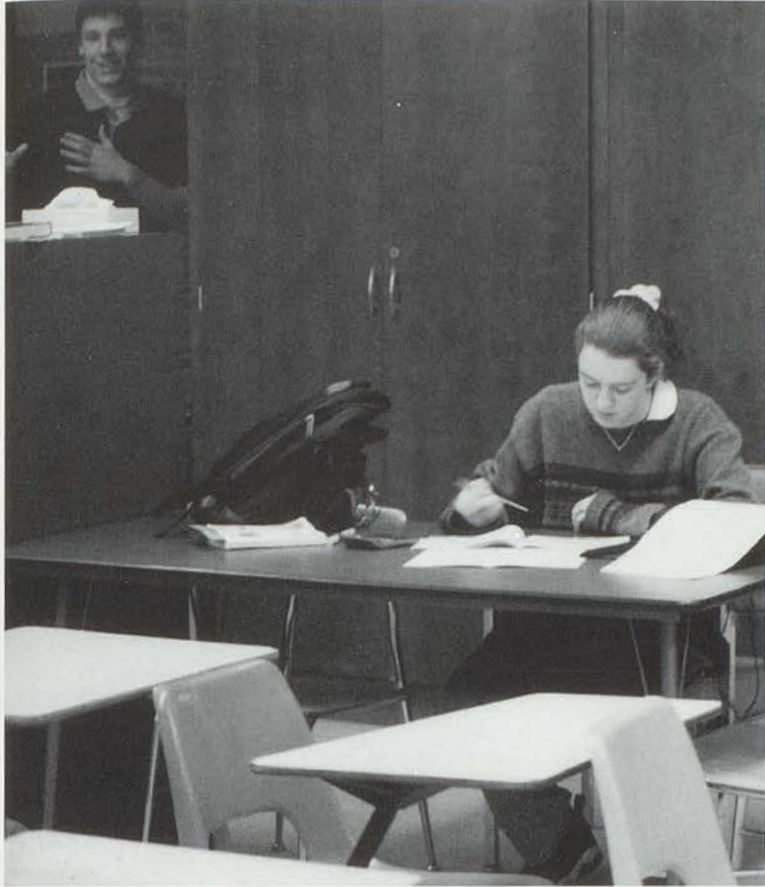

What are you doing?
 The well-known, much liked accounting teacher Mr. Armstrong a.k.a. Arn shows great distress as he is pulled from his work.

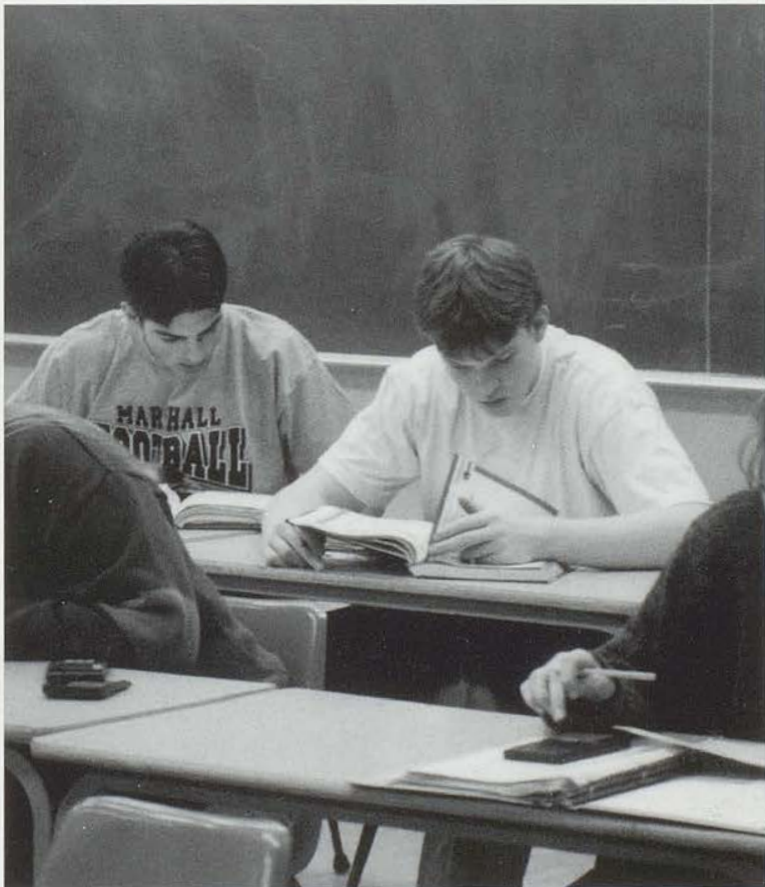

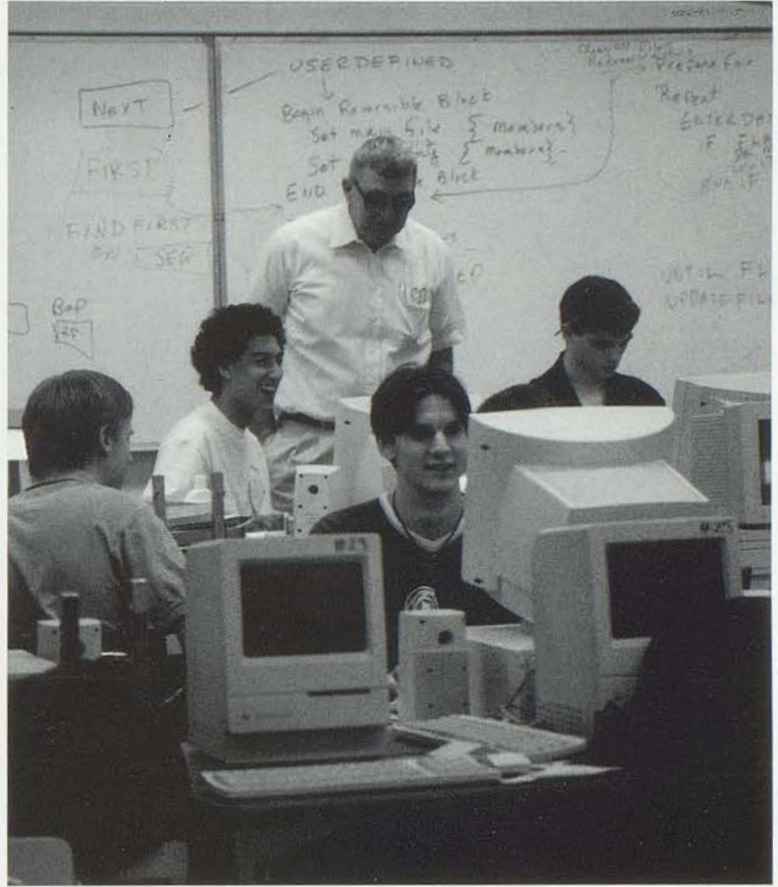

I've got to get to class
 Sean Kelly hurries at his locker so he can get to Accounting as soon as possible. Sean has accounting with Arn eighth block.

I want to be in business
 Andrew Neidlinger gives a friendly wave as he stands by the door of Mr. Gibb's room wishing he were in a business class. In the mean time Laura Weers works hard on some business work. If only Andrew could be in that class with her, then he would feel complete.

I thought they censored that Don't we wonder what Brian Woods is looking at which brings such a disgusted look to Mr. Malinowski's face? Brian better watch out for the new Internet regulations since it appears he may be getting in trouble for what he is working at.

Hard at work
 Seth Shubert and Elliott London work very diligently on their accounting work to get the most out of the class.

Team work
 Seth Palmer and Darek Hoffman work together on their accounting work. Their way of going about the work is important because they are not only learning the material but they are also working on their communication skills.

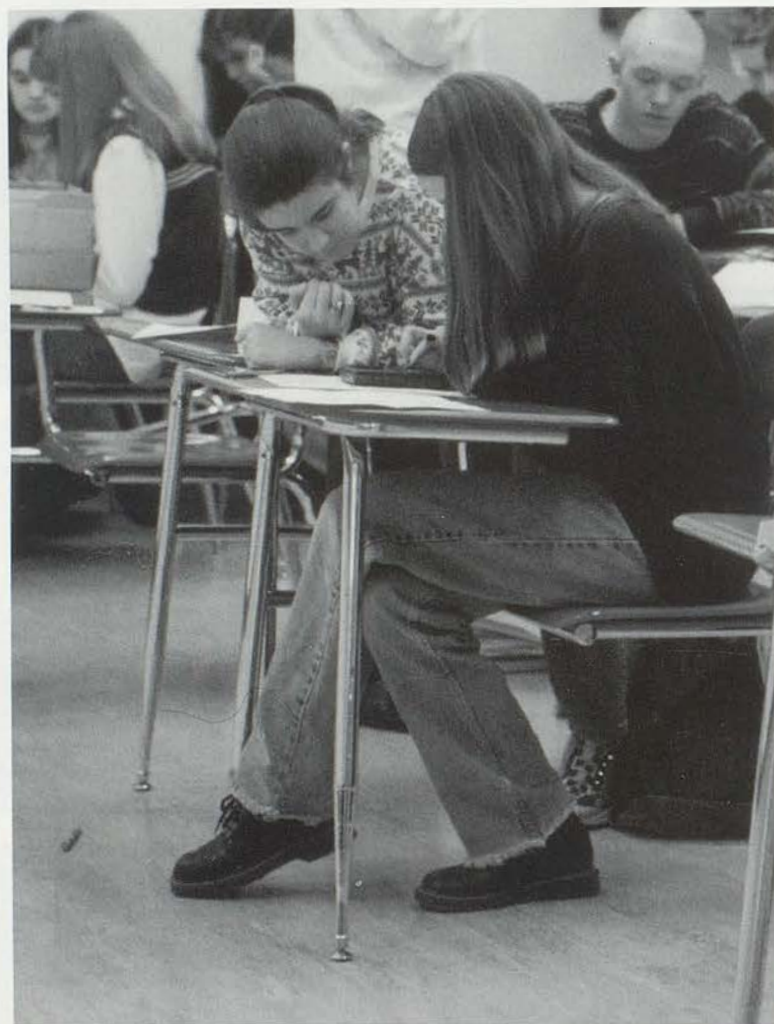

It's all about focus
 One can tell by the look in Chris Brockman's eyes, that computer class is very intense. A student involved in one of the different computer class gains a great deal of knowledge about today's technology. From Word Perfect to computer programming the skills that are learned will help students along the road to success.

patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper."

What?
Ryan Cox tries desperately to explain today's Pre-Calculus assignment to Sara Dillman. Sara, however, has no clue as to what Ryan is talking about, and seems to be getting pretty frustrated. Unfortunately, frustration usually runs deep in Pre-Calc.

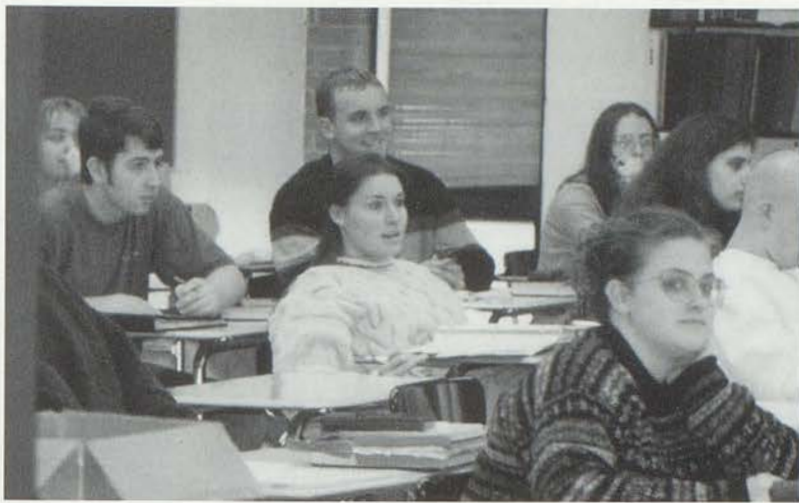

What is this?
Joe Weakley tries to figure out just what he's supposed to do with the do-dad that he's been given. Chemistry is filled with ions, elements and experiments. Experiments are usually the best part, as long as you're careful not to get your hair caught on fire.

Buddy power!
One of the best ways to figure out that pesky math problem is to grab a buddy and utilize the ever strong "buddy power." Natalie Port and Marilyn Rush have seemed to figure this out, yet they still seem to know what the heck they're doing.

PLEASE get me out of here!
Shannon Tucker begs and pleads with the cameraman to get her out of her math class! Even though Shannon is a stellar math student, she has been trying everything to get out of class, including sticking her sucker stick up her nose. Now, we know your desperate Shannon, but don't you think that that's taking it a little far?

Wow!
Sam Boyce, Jenny Stevens, Mark Hamilton, and Matt Sims watch in awe as Ms. Clark solves yet another tricky math problem. After a week or two in Ms. Clark's math class, students soon realize that Ms. Clark is one smart cookie and there's no math problem that she can't solve, unless of course there's no solution.

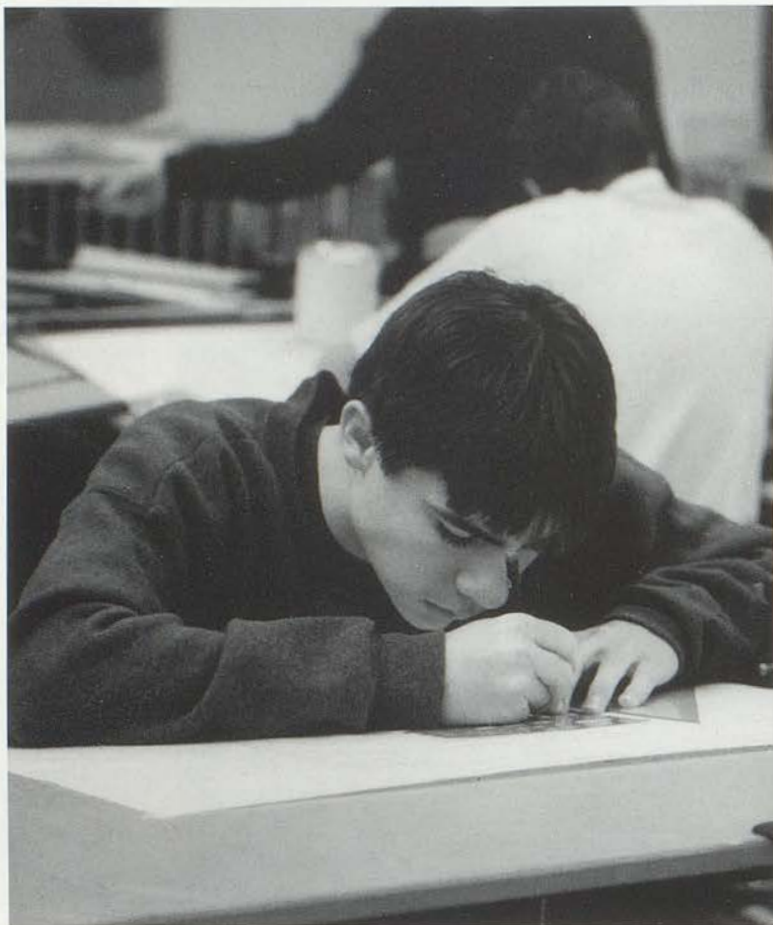

Oh my Gosh!
Sara Woods can't believe that Nathan Hazen just said what he did! Nathan has a reputation around school for shocking the girls with his wild remarks! Obviously, his latest line shocked Sara, yet she couldn't help cracking a smile. Fortunately for Sara, she has a guy like Nathan in her class, because we all know how boring science class can be.

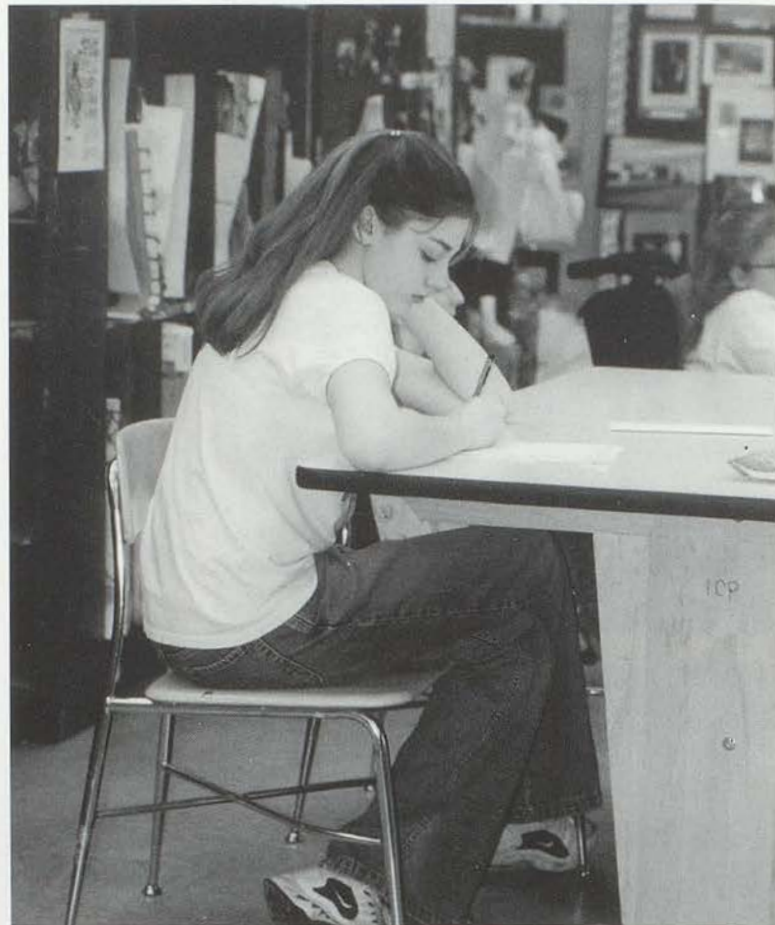

You, yes you can be in Anatomy!
Brian Zalewski and Ethan Ebner want everyone to know that you too can be in Anatomy, where everyday is a good day! Anyone who has taken the class knows that Anatomy isn't your average science class; it's so much more. Not only do you get to learn how the whole human body works, you get to perform way cool pig dissections, and maybe Mrs. Wheeler will even sing you a song!

 Many times freshmen find it hard to concentrate on their school work when there is so much going on here in the high school. Though here it is evident that Travis Simms is doing fine.

You're getting sleeeeepy ...

"Imagination rules the world."

 Senior Ben Miller studies his art work and devotes pure concentration into it. Even though Ben doesn't seem totally enthusiastic, he remains to be one of Marshall High School's artistic legends.

Studying hard
 Jessica Moffat (other wise known as "Moffat"), keeps herself busy studying a number two pencil during her Art II class.

 Meghan Metzger puts complete concentration into her Advanced Art project. This is Meghan's fourth year of art, and she has really come a long way.

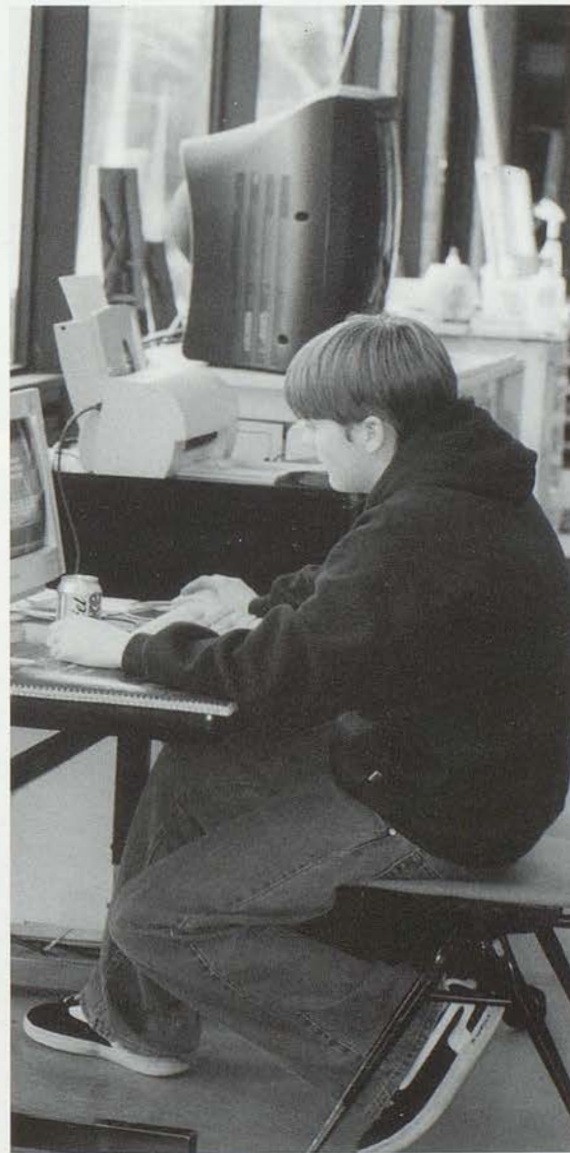

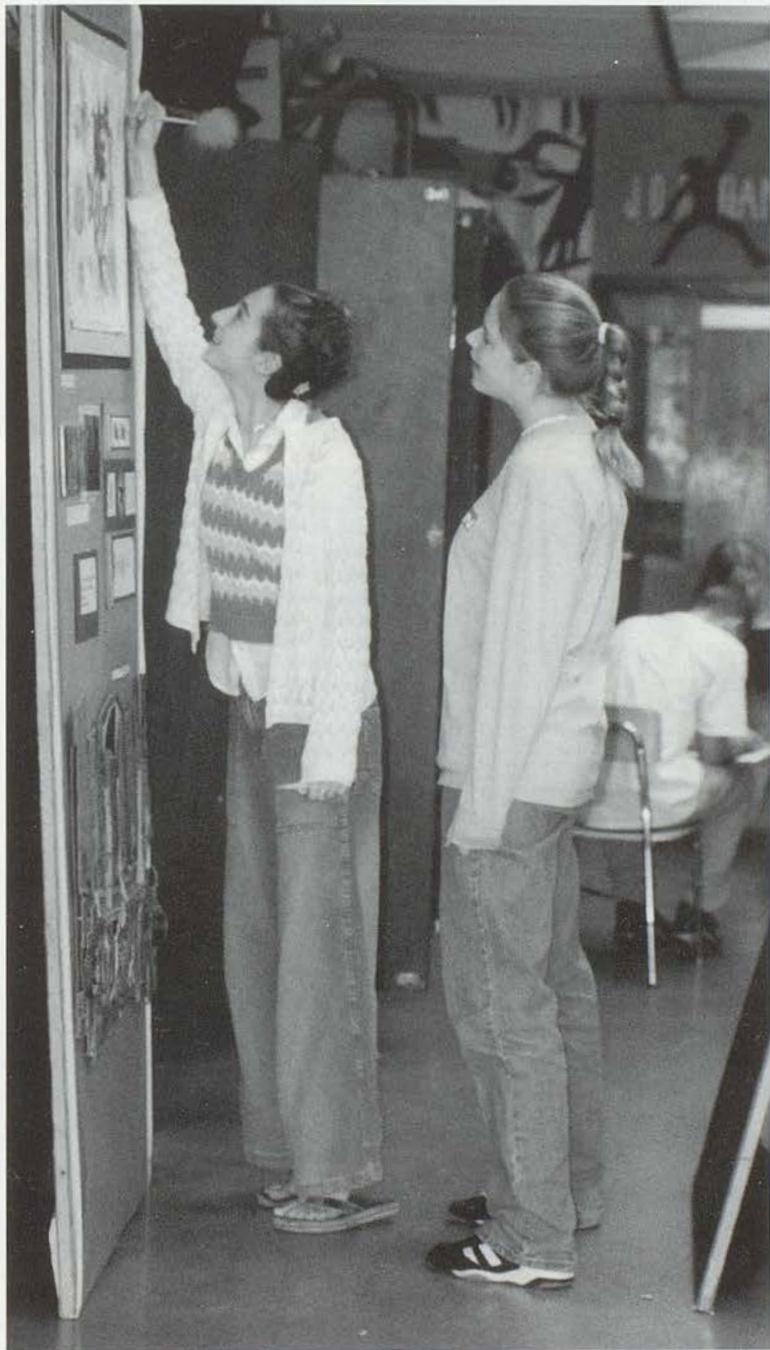

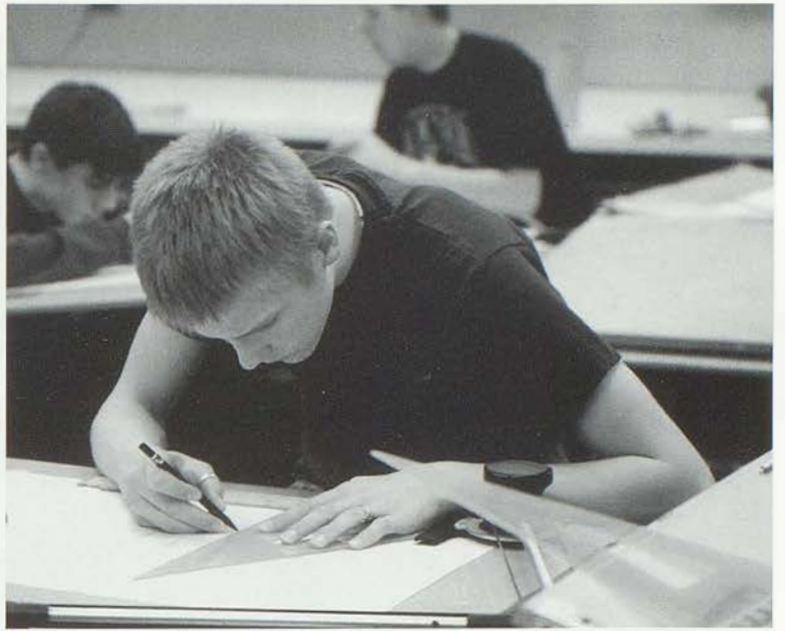

Don't worry, be happy!

Deep thoughts, by Hayes Sunderman

Sophomore Hayes Sunderman looks deep into his design project. Hayes is a very talented young man; in fact, he hopes to one day be a famous architect.

Let the good times roll
Junior Camm Rowland slouches comfortably as he simultaneously moves the mouse and gets ready for another quenching sip of his ice cold Diet Coca-Cola.

Reach for the stars

Sara K. Dillman reaches up high, while putting the finishing touches on her artwork. Morgan Peters looks on in wonder and gives Sara moral support.

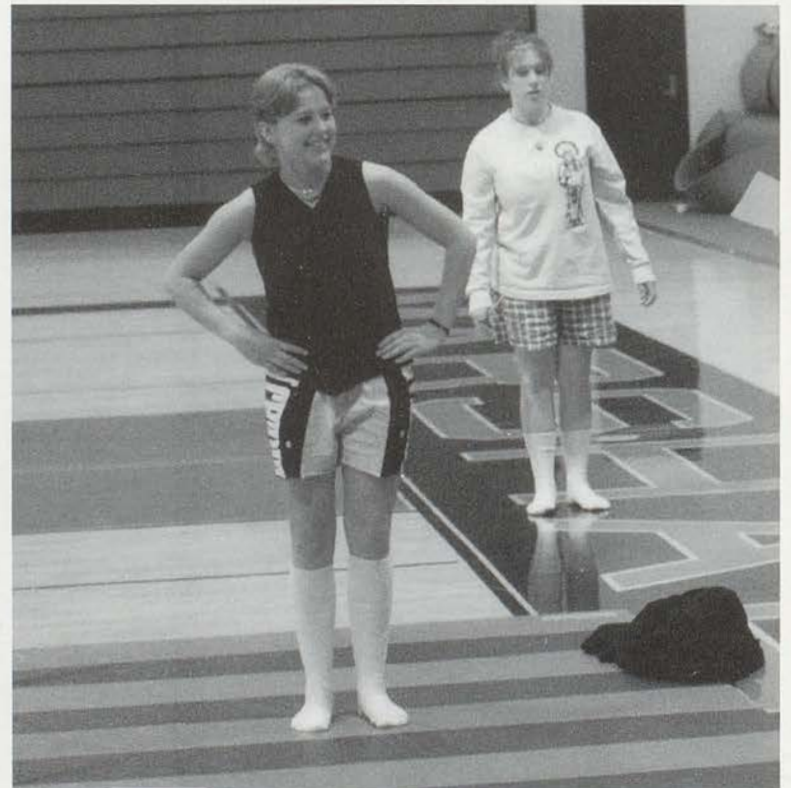

How do you like your toast
 Dan Schroeder prepares to "career" some unworthy gym rat. Dan has 2 balls! In this photo, you can see AA (All-American) dodgeball extraordinaire JT89 backing up his partner in battle. They fired shot after shot in their adversaries' direction in hopes of wiping out the enemy. After the battle, Turner went AWOL. He is a POW!

"Gym is life...the rest is just details."

Welcome to Redskin ... Country!
 This is neat as Hell for the kids.

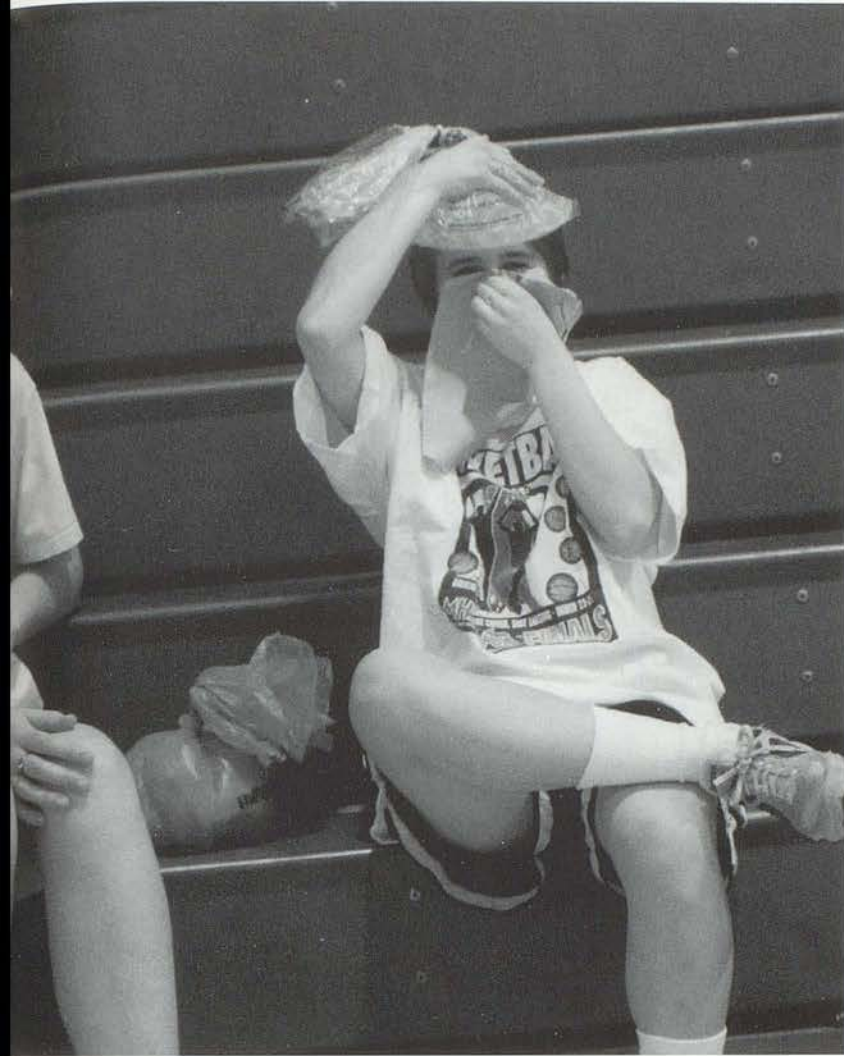

Lord of the Dance
 Angie Brubaker a.k.a. "Bru" tried out for what was called Riverdance, but is presently known as Lord of the Dance. Though she didn't make the cut, she made long-lasting friendships which she will forever cherish. She was quoted as saying, "The Riverdance routine helped me with cardio activities which you can see here."

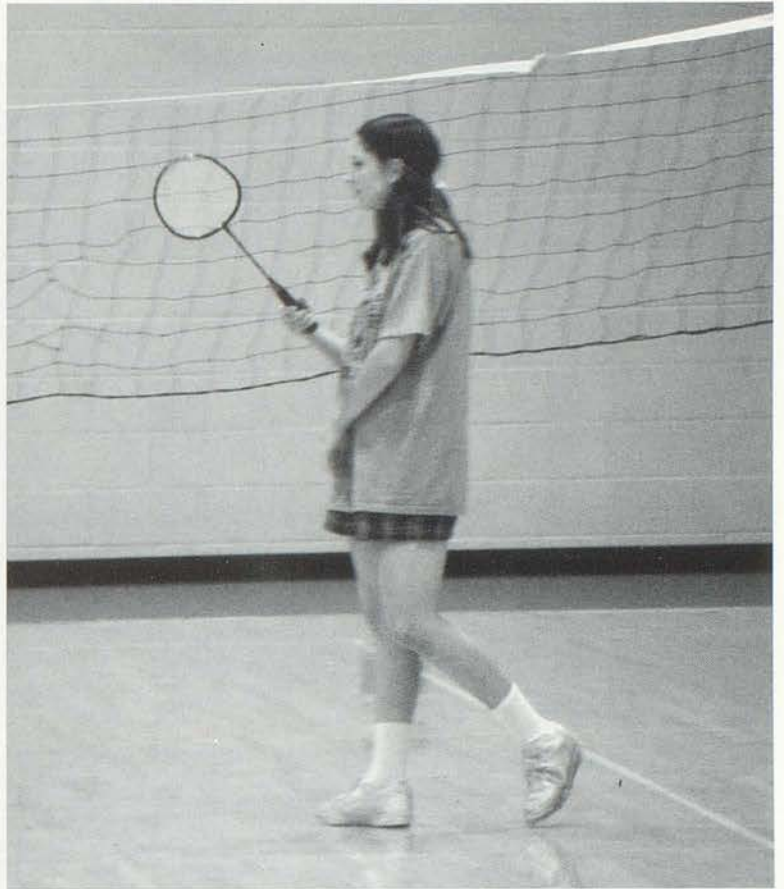

I'll fight Mike Tyson

Whoever said Gym was an easy class has obviously never seen the way Anne J. Kellogg does gym. Marna Miller got a big kick out of Anne's gym routine which consists of WCW style wrestling, a 15 minute squat workout, and a special aggression program with MHS's own trainer Chuck Middleton. You can see the results.

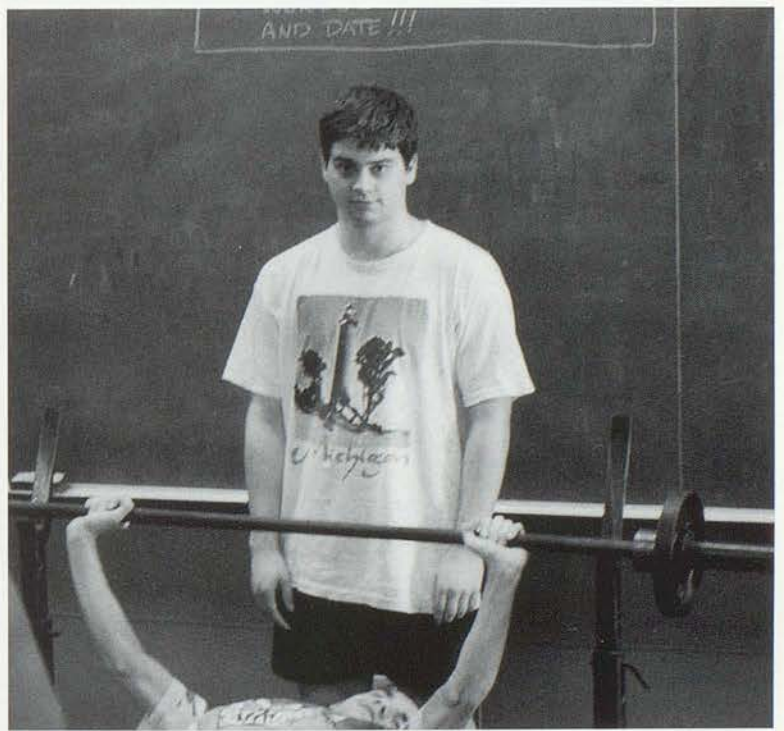

Hearts on fire

Kristin Milliken uses her "Fly swatter" and the "Sticky net" to catch the gym flies that plague the team. Sometimes the flies come in from the outside but more often from the locker room and hallways of MHS. Kristin was proud to catch a record number 21 flies on this particular day. Kristin said, "I'm not the janitor, I'm not a teacher, but I do take pride in my work as 'The Fly Girl' - That's what my friends call me." I also must note that Kristin is very sound in badminton.

Rough night?

The janitorial staff found this unknown Redskin passed out on the gym floor after a long weekend. Teachers could not determine how long he had been there, what he had been doing, or how he did it. This case is still pending. (Truthfully this is Stephen Paszkiet who fell after an attempted windmill dunk.)

Spotters Ready? Lifting! Lift on

Roger, from the duo of Tex and Roger who made the gym pages last year, is a returning letter winner. Unfortunately Tex is gone, so Roger must find a new partner. He chose first year starter Jimmy Spindlow who is shown here maxing out on the bench press. The weight room, which is now known as the The Power Plant was lucky enough to receive about 10 new machines called Hammer Strength. Spindlow's favorite lift is the Jammer. The jammer uses full body motion and allows rookies like Jimmy to grunt in his attempts to "Jam".

"If you can do nothing with yourself, others are not likely to do better."

If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen!

That's Ms. Knaack's kitchen to be exact. But in Home Economics the heat's not only felt in the kitchen. Fun and Fancy Cooking, Independent Living, and Child Psychology are all different areas of Home Economics.

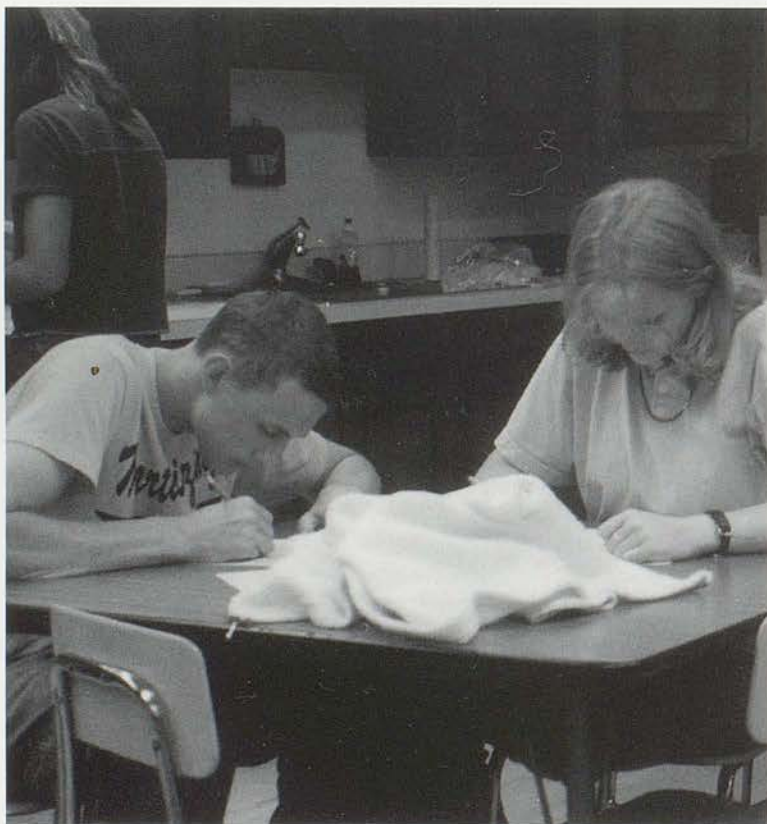

Who wouldn't look forward to class knowing that the assignment is to contrive a cream puff? After the puff points accumulate in the grade book, the homework then is to snarf it down before next block. It's a hard life for the students of the Fun and Fancy Cooking world. When asked how fun and fancy the class really is, Rebecca Unterbrink replied, "It was fun being fancy. I even made a sugar cookie snowman." Commenting on the items found in the kitchen, Ryan Cox said "I swear Ms. Knaack buys stock in frozen bread dough and mayonnaise."

Students don't have as much fun and fancy kitchen time in Independent Living. They busy themselves with field trips to K-Mart, Village Green Apartments, and Dreamers Furniture. "It's interesting discovering the costs of living independently. You need to make around $2,000 a month to support yourself in an apartment complex," Lindsay stated. Scotty Pascal commented "It's something every student should take." After taking Ms. Knaack's Home Economics class one should be very prepared for living on their own.

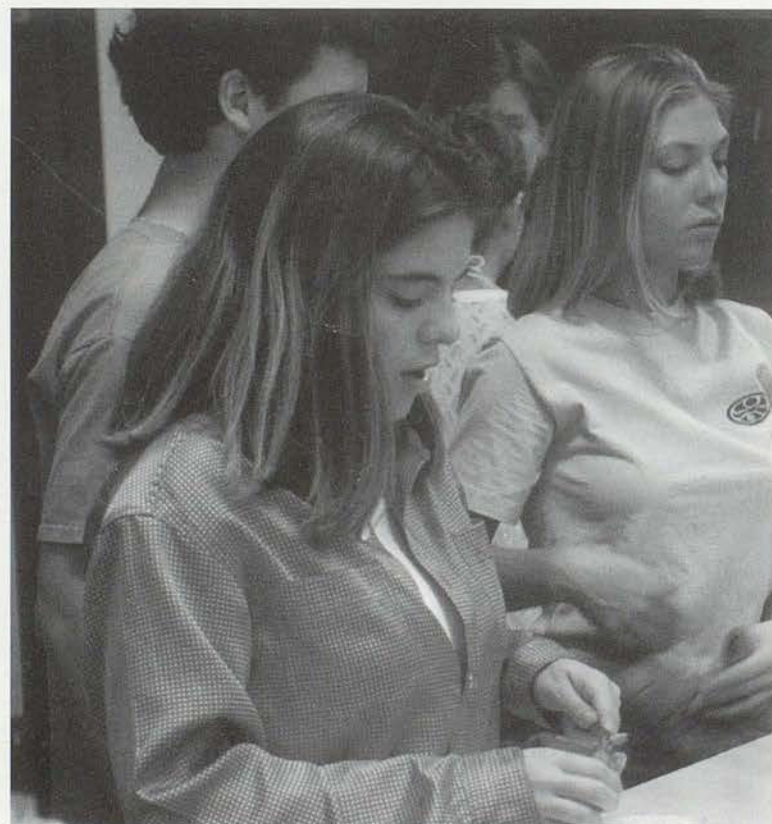

Mr. Potatoe!

Sara Dillman and Melissa Pedranzan are cutting up potatoes for one of the many spectacular dishes made on Home-Ec class.

Hard at work!

Building a mystery ...

Kristin Peck and Mary Elizabeth Kuzna are making a mystery dish during Home Ec. Many different varieties of dishes are made during this class. So who knows what they'll cook up ...

Yummy!

Michelle Music works very hard at pinching the pie crust of the the pie that she is cooking for Home Ec class. During Home Ec class many wonderful dishes are made.

What's cookin' girls?

Colette Robison and Mary Kate Brannon wait patiently for their scrumptious dish to be ready for the big taste test. Both Colette and Mary Kate are taking the Home Ec course that is offered to the juniors and seniors.

Crystal Fields works diligently making her own special pie. Pies are a very popular item that is made during Home Ec class.

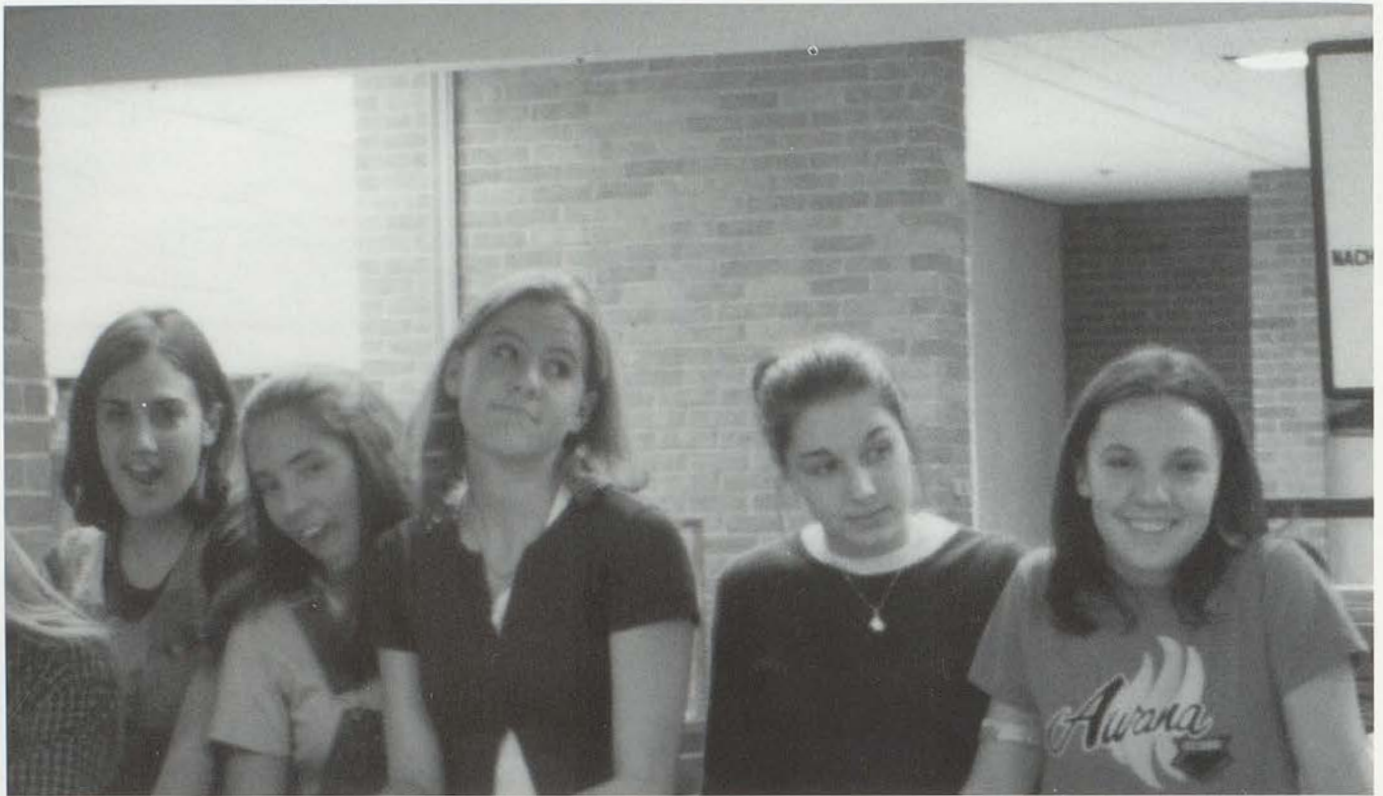

Don't spill!

It's free day in Home Ec class today and Nicole Bezubic chose to make cheese potatoes as her choice. Every once in a while a free cooking day is given. So, whatever you like, you make!

"Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you who you are."

Cedar Point
Despite the backbreaking work that comes with working M-Club concession, it's all worth it in the end, especially to these senior girls,
Shiree
Rochelle, Elysia
Hecox, Jessi
Fitch, Annie
Scaers, and Liz
Smith. Two times behind the counter will send them to America's Rollercoast.

And $3 is your change

You can tell that Brenna McCauley's math classes have finally paid off, as she confidently passes the change over the counter. However, by the looks of it, it seems that Stew is having a bit more trouble.

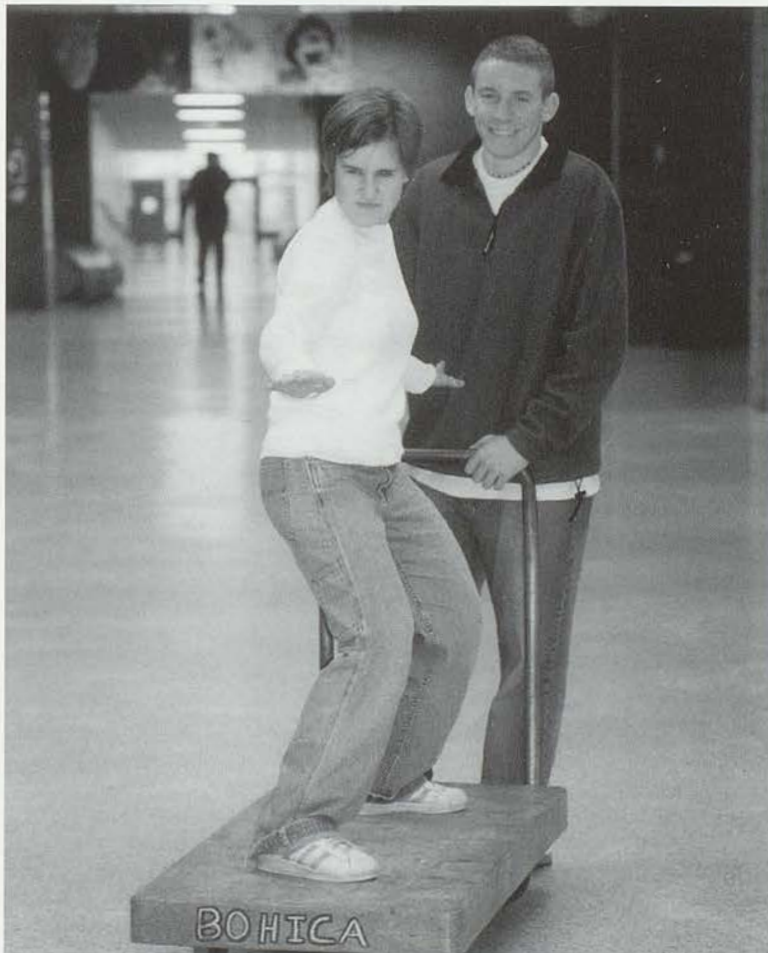

Whatta Deal!

Lynelle Johnson and Meghan Wolf rack in the customers for M-Club concession. Who in their right mind could pass up the opportunity to see these two and buy candy at the same time.

"Being a part of M-Club was a great opportunity to meet new friends and get to go to Cedar Point!" - Amy Dereski

Here comes trouble
Senior Doug Searles gives buddy Anne Kellogg a lift after dropping off the load of M-Club candy. Anne uses her half pipe lunge to entice people to buy their favorite candy.

Sweet dreams
Being on Varsity Soccer, Basketball, and Tennis is enough to wear out anyone, especially senior Andrew Neidlinger. Andrew finds himself lacking the energy to work M-Club concession.

"There is a time when we must firmly choose the course we will follow or the endless drift of events will make the decision for us"

Two trips to the Dome, one boys' soccer State Finalist, one boys' basketball State Finalist, a trip to Austria for the Marshall Singers. Many wouldn't know what kind of list this is, but to Marshall High School's Class of 1998, this is a list of some of their many accomplishments from their four year high school career.

Many special events go along with being a senior. All year they look forward to Class Night, Graduation, and their Class Party. Class Night was a big hit this year. Everyone did a great job performing in front of a packed crowd. It's an event they will be able to look back on and smile. Katie Madden commented, "Class Night was really fun and exciting, but it's also a lot of hard work." Graduation was also a success this year. When asked what he thought about graduating Luke Peck remarked, "It's a little exciting yet nerve racking at the same time. I'm excited about being done with high school, but leaving my home and family is a little scary." Jake Gates and Johnny Thompson got the privilege to be their class speakers. This is a great accomplishment and both were really excited to be able to experience it. When asked about being picked by his classmates, he replied, "It's a genuine honor to be chosen to represent my friends and classmates on such an important day. I hope to deliver a memorable speech that will pump up my classmates for the future. Senior Power!" Jake sure gave a great speech and his classmates were definitely pumped when he was done!

This year's seniors were a great group of people and they will surely be missed. They shared many great moments together that I'm sure they will cherish for a life time. Mr. Luciani summed them up well when he said, "The seniors this year will be a tough act to follow. They have a wide and unique range of personalities but they seem to get along really well as a class."

Woodsy Wanna-be

Is that a Brian Woods clone? Nope, it's senior Seth Palmer. Seth thought Homecoming week would be a perfect time to show his admiration of Woodsy's appearance. Many students had a blast dressing crazy during that week.

Picasso

Senior Melissa Smith diligently works on her piece of wall for her art class. Melissa is one of the many graduating art students who gets the chance to leave their mark on the school walls by the art room. When asked how she felt about the experience, Melissa commented, "I feel it is a great opportunity for people to be able to express how they feel."

Chubby Bunny

At this year's Winter Fest assembly Senior Dave Yang tires to win the Chubby Bunny Contest. Although he didn't pull it off, his teammate Andy McCormack captured the win.

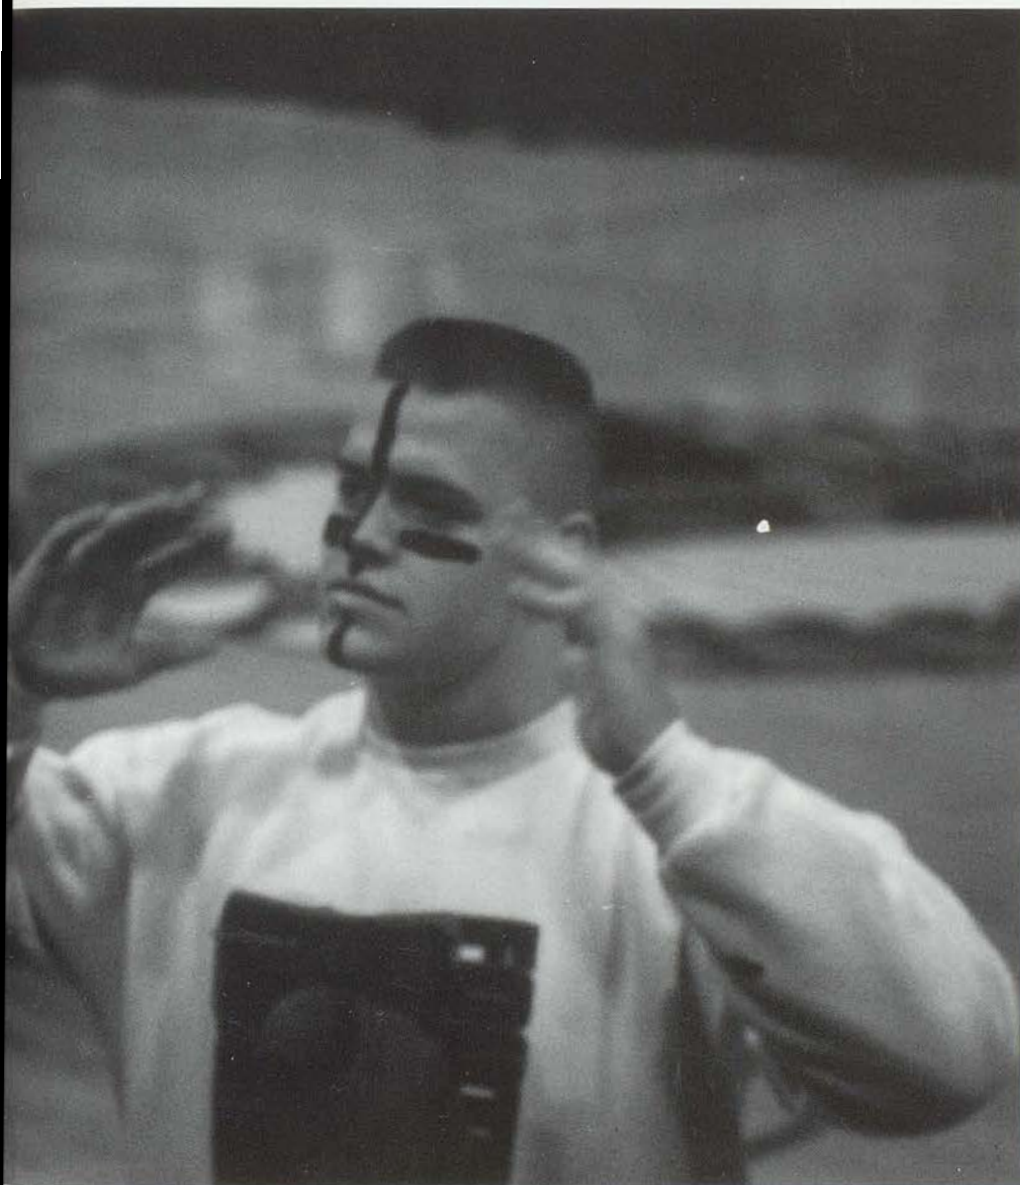

MHS royalty

The MHS student body are proud to announce that this year's King and Queen are Ryan VanDyke and Amy Rosko. Ryan and Amy are a big part of the school and many found them to be the perfect picks to represent our school.

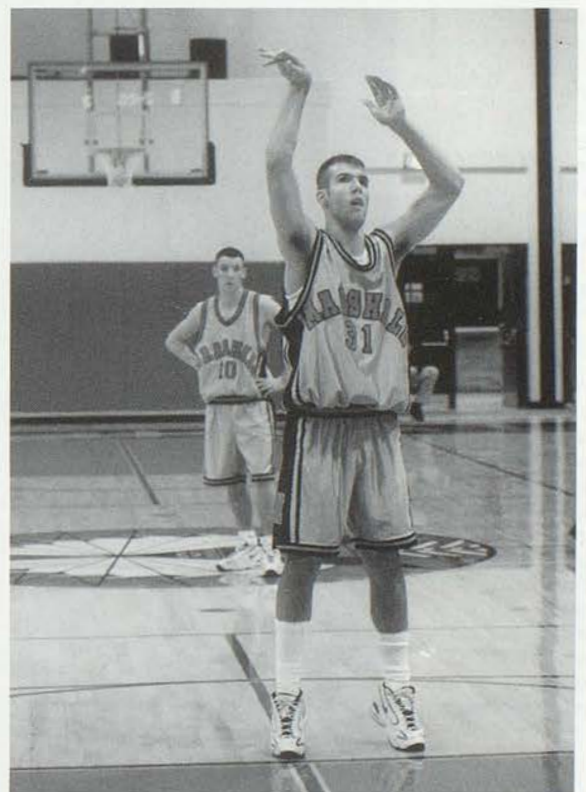

Pumping it up

Christa Morgan tries to get the crowd pumped at a football game. Between her high kicks and continuous clapping, Christa managed to stay warm during those wintry games.

Symbol of a Redskin

Tim Williams tries to get the crowd ready for another performance by the Codden's Krazies. The Krazies painted their faces to intensify their support for the Boys' Varsity Basketball team.

Swoosh

Brad Bigelow shows off his perfect shooting form from the free throw line. Brad always puts the ball up strong, looking for the four, since he knows he can sink his free throws.

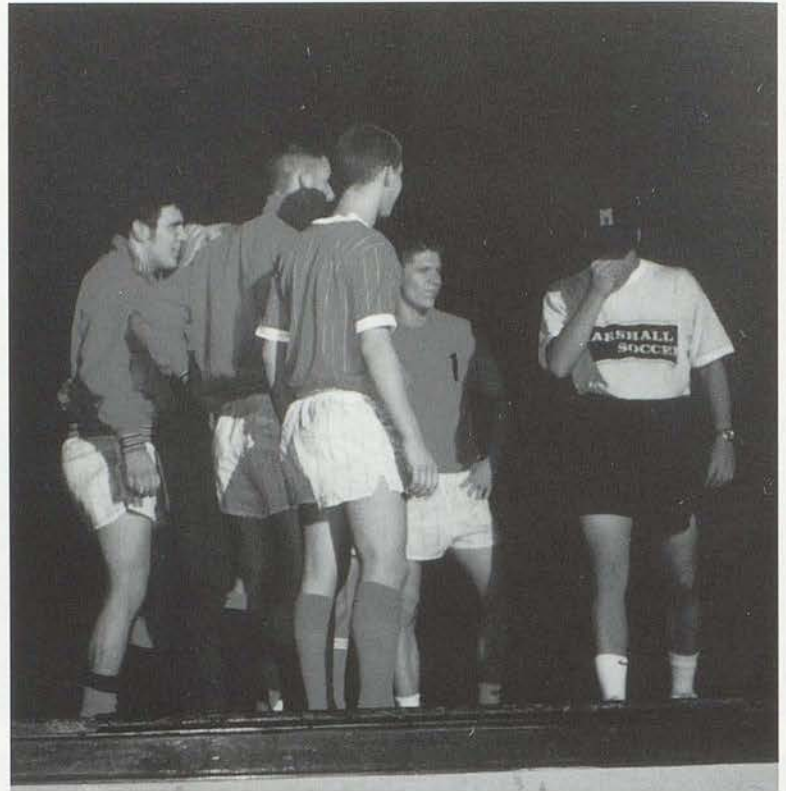

"Always leave them laughing when you say goodbye."

On the night of May 29, 1998 the Senior class of Marshall High School put on one BEEP of a show. The lines at Marshall Middle School were around the corner and down the block all awaiting the upcoming event. From the Lolly-Pop Man to the "Who's Yo Daddy" rap, Class Night was a huge success. The MC's for this year were Johnny Thompson, Andy McCormack, and Doug Searles. The MC's are supposed to be the funny people and these boys fulfilled their roles. The one act that stole the show and had people talking up and down the streets of Marshall was the Ugachaka Baby dance by Ben Robinson and David Yang. Ryan O'Connel a freshmen at MHS had to say, "That was so funny! We should send it to NBC and make a show out of it." Other acts that stole the spotlight were the Teacher Wrestling Match, Tim "Chuck" Williams, and Aaron Puff and Doug Sink. The class of 1999 already has their Class Night in the making and hopes to live up to the legacy that was fulfilled by this years senior class.

Dagnabit ... those darn Football players

John Thompson portrays the real life emotions of soccer coach Barry Philipps and his agony of life as a coach. The team, Greg Rasher, Andy McCormack, Jack Gates, Andrew Neidlinger, and Aaron Brumfield give their coach the encouragement he needs to talk to the king of sports, Coach Hulkow.

Finally, I'm on the stage

Teacher Jodi Foreman stares on in awe as the seniors feed his face! Every year there is a skit about Mr. Foreman; some include his wife, others the way he talks, and even the comments he makes in class. Foreman loves to be part of Class Night as you can see, and wouldn't have it any other way. He's always a good sport about any given situation and this year Foreman was made an honorary member of the senior class for his participation.

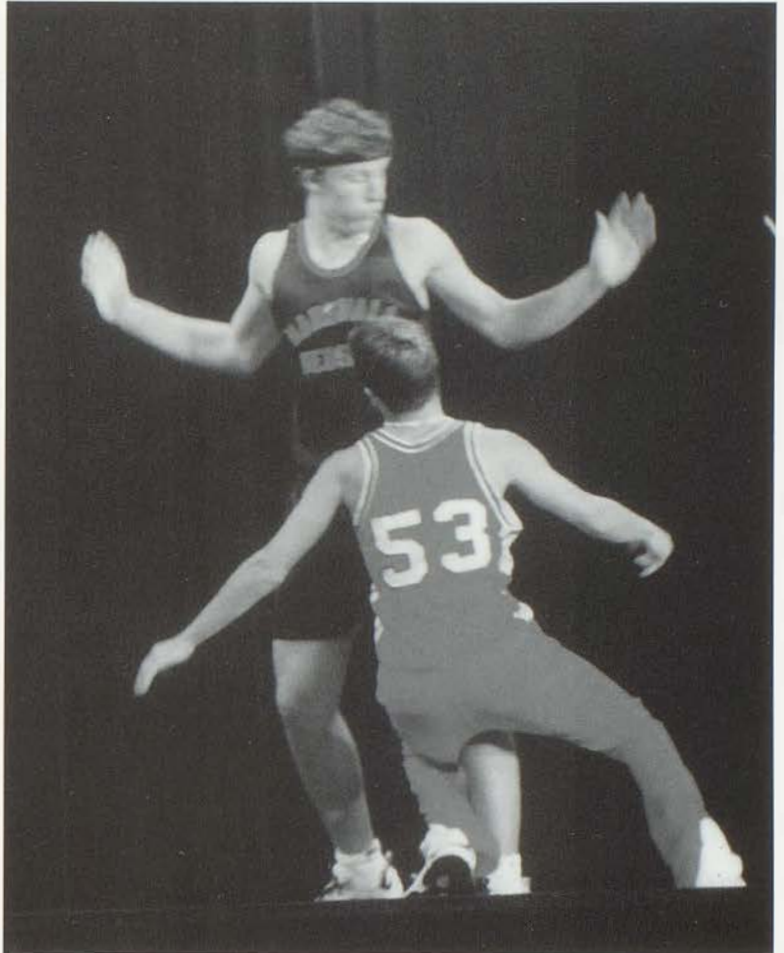

Nothin says lovin!

Ben Robinson AKA Pillsbury Dough boy offers Aaron Brumfield some nice plump cinnamon rolls to tide him over until the show is done. Both Ben and Aaron were in numerous acts that night with all their buds. These guys sure do know how to cook; they helped to make Class Night a successful end to their senior year and Marshall High School.

Outta my way!

Andrew T. Neidlinger blocks out Ryan Traver during a skit at class night this year. Marna got to Andrew during the later part of the sit and this really put a damper on Andrew's spirit. That's ok though because Andrew (Gargamel) got his confidence back when he won over the love of Smurfette.

When I get nervous I

Well Shane "Ed" Shubert and Jessi "Mary" Fitch smell their pits!! They sure got the guys and gals throughout the night. With Marna as their mother, and their hands in their pits they had nothing to worry about at all! This was definitely one of the funniest acts of Class Night this year. Everyone laughed as they romped around the stage with the audience hopping right with them.

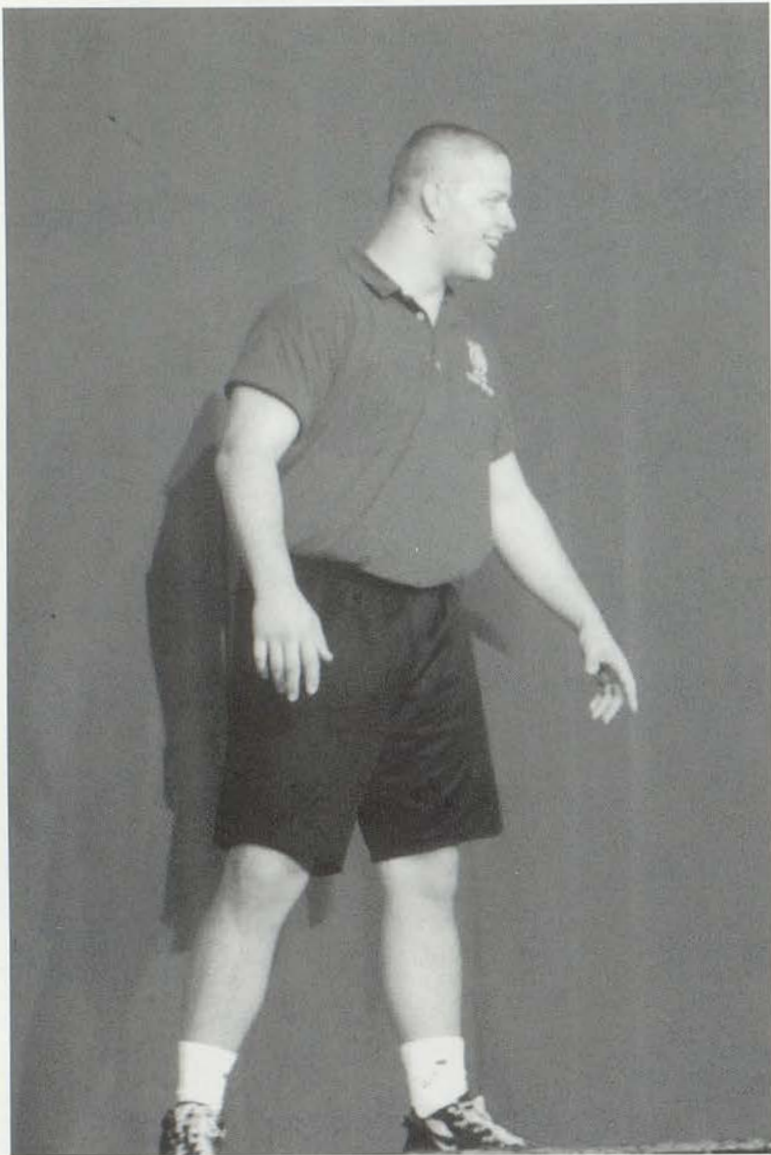

Where's my mommy?

Sara Rodgers and her Cheeze-It box look on in her shy little way. Sara was involved in a skit where her funny antics stole the show. It's nice to have a variety of skits and this year's class really did the job. The senior class of 1998 has made a lasting impression on the city of Marshall.

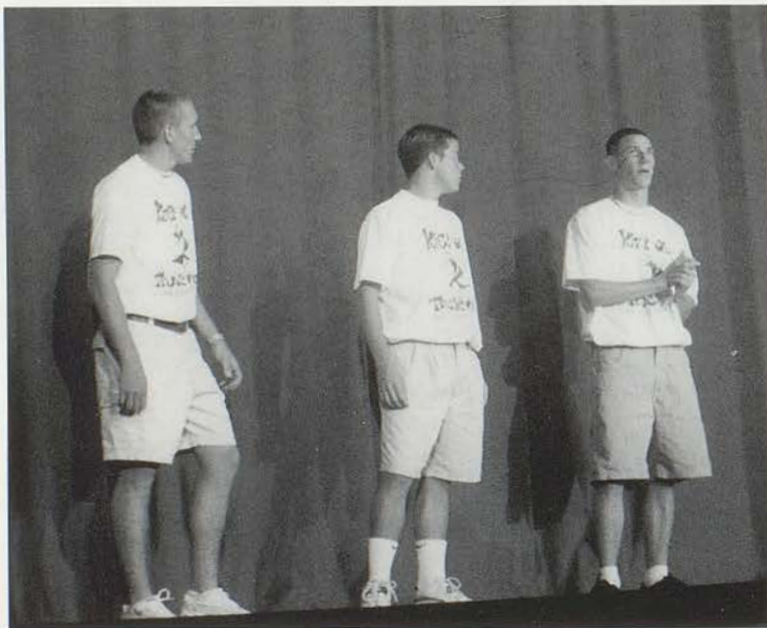

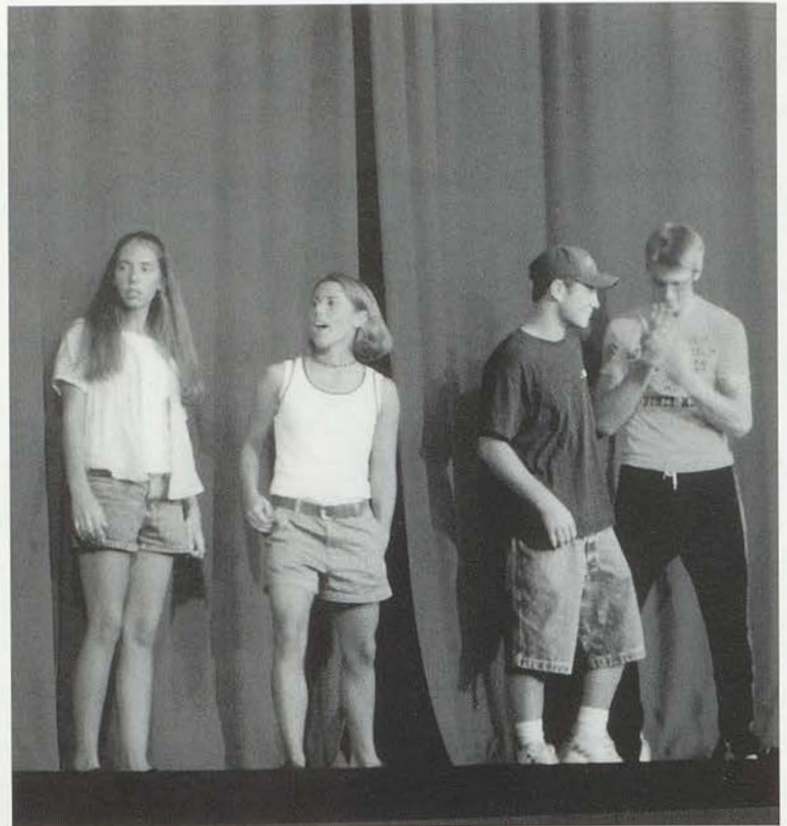

Who's the buff one now?

Throughout the entire Class Night performance, Tim Williams showed the world who was boss. Tim made various appearances with his "Buff Chuck" act, and kept everyone in shape.

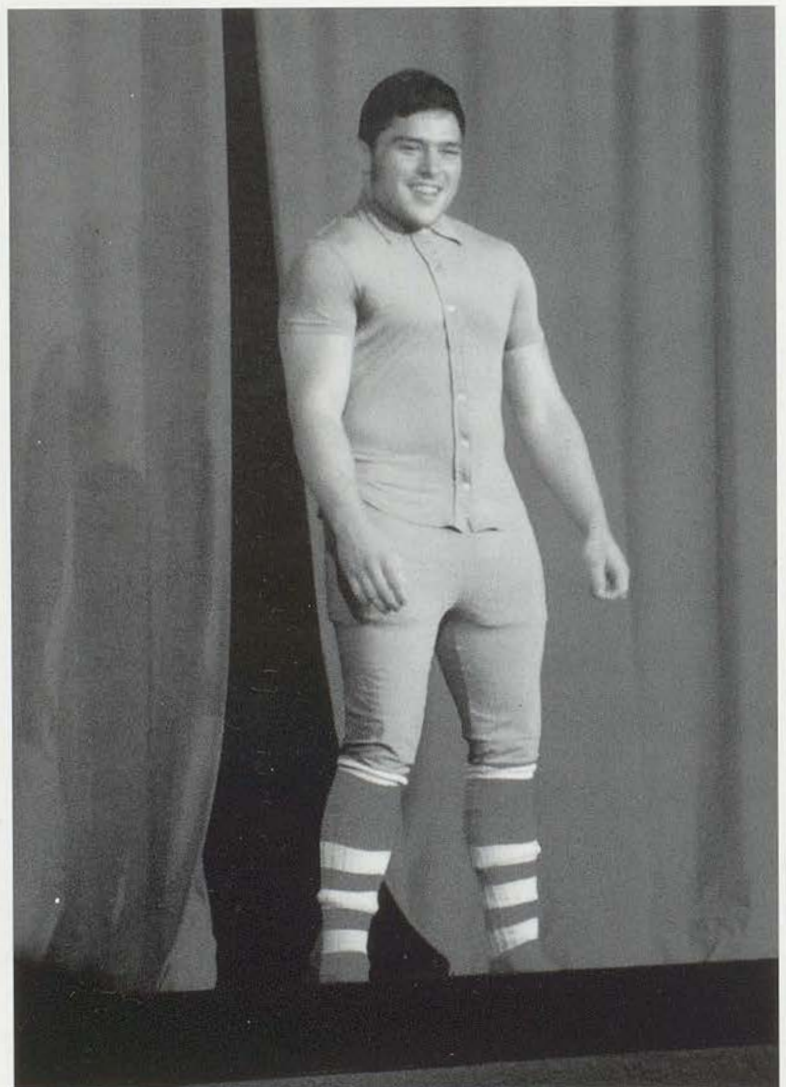

New Kids ... follow us!

This group of experts (Elysia Hecox, Ashley Trylick, and Adam Keibala), gave guidance and direction to the new kid on the block (Shane Shubert).

"Bleeeep!"

With these three notorious M.C.'s (Doug Searles, Johnny Thompson, and Andy McCormack) in charge, there wasn't one '@#$%&*'' thing wrong with the show.

"Fonzo Lollypopper"

Al (Fonzo) Felming represents ... the lollipop men. From his tight green pants to his red and white striped six, Al was ready to follow the Yellow Brick Road.

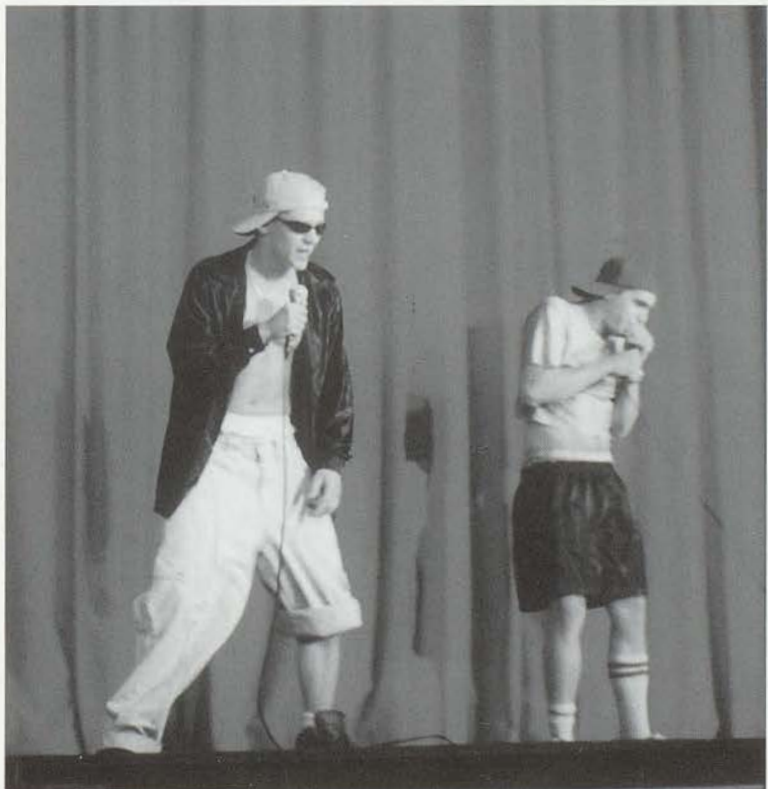

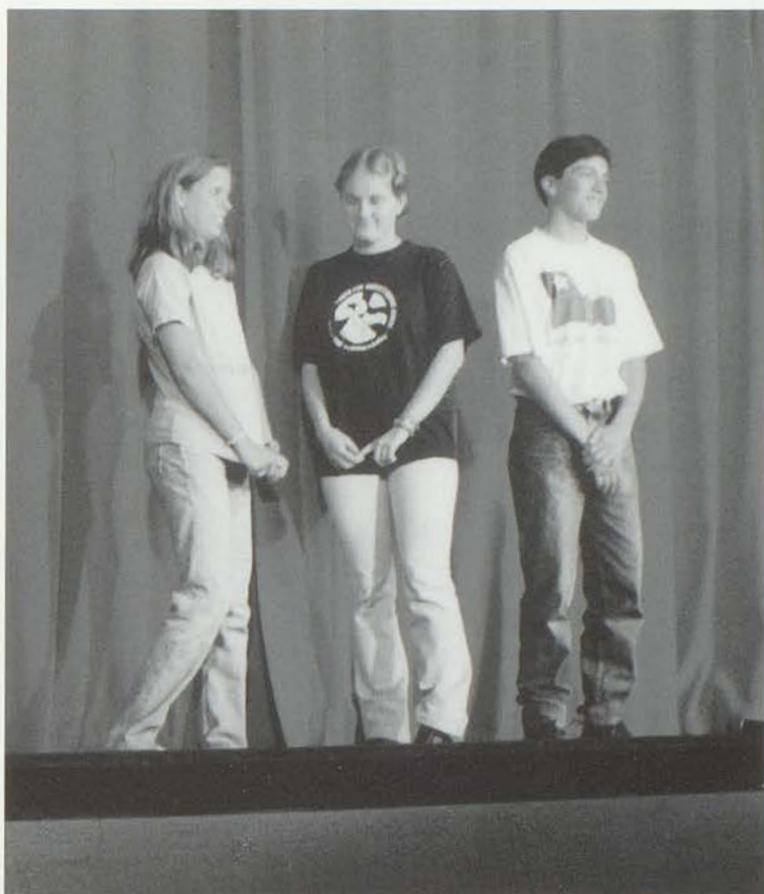

"Eeeeeee ... Come on Smurfet!"

Smarty Smurf (Greg Rasher) puts the moves on Smurfette (Annie Scears). Even though Smarty didn't end up winning her heart, he tried very hard.

Showing America what they're made of ...

These three exchange students, Astrid Vonborch, Stine Karboel, and Patricio Bugueno-Diaz gave everyone a reminder that just because they aren't from around here doesn't mean they don't know what's going on.

"Whoooo's Yoouurr Daaaaddy?"

Jake "Daddy" Gates and Kevin "Da Man" Rayner, were the only class night participants that had the guts to rap for the audience. Both danced and jammed and showed the audience who the real Daddys were.

Oogachaka ... oogachaka

Ben Robinson couldn't stop that feeling deep inside of him. With his skimpy wrap and his waving arms, Ben captured the audience with laughter.

"Our eyes are placed in front because it is more important to look ahead than look back."

It was chilly but sunny and some even thought it would rain, but nothing could dampen the Class of 1998's spirits. It wasn't ideal weather but as senior Aaron VanDusen put it, "I thought it would rain but I wouldn't have cared. I was here for a good time and the weather wouldn't have stopped me from doing that."

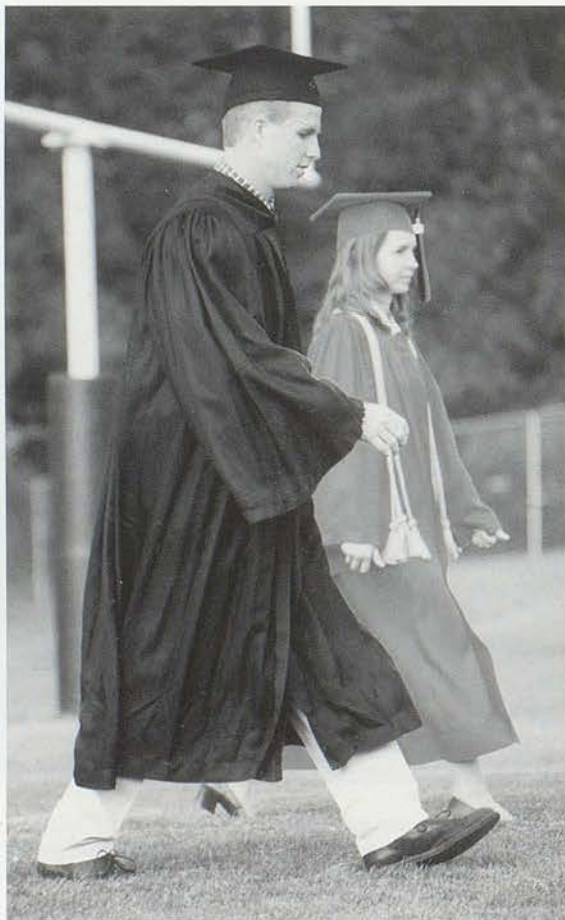

The seniors have their eyes facing forward, but you could tell they were looking back on the "good old days". Gaelle Meunier said, "I had a lot of fun with my friends here in Marshall. All I can think about are the good times from the past, even though I should be thinking about what lies ahead for me in the future."

Another huge question on the minds of the Class of

'98 was how our class speakers Jake Gates and John Thompson would do. Well, according to Senior Ryan Smith, "I thought they were both entertaining and funny but a little short. If I had to sum them up I would say they were short but sweet."

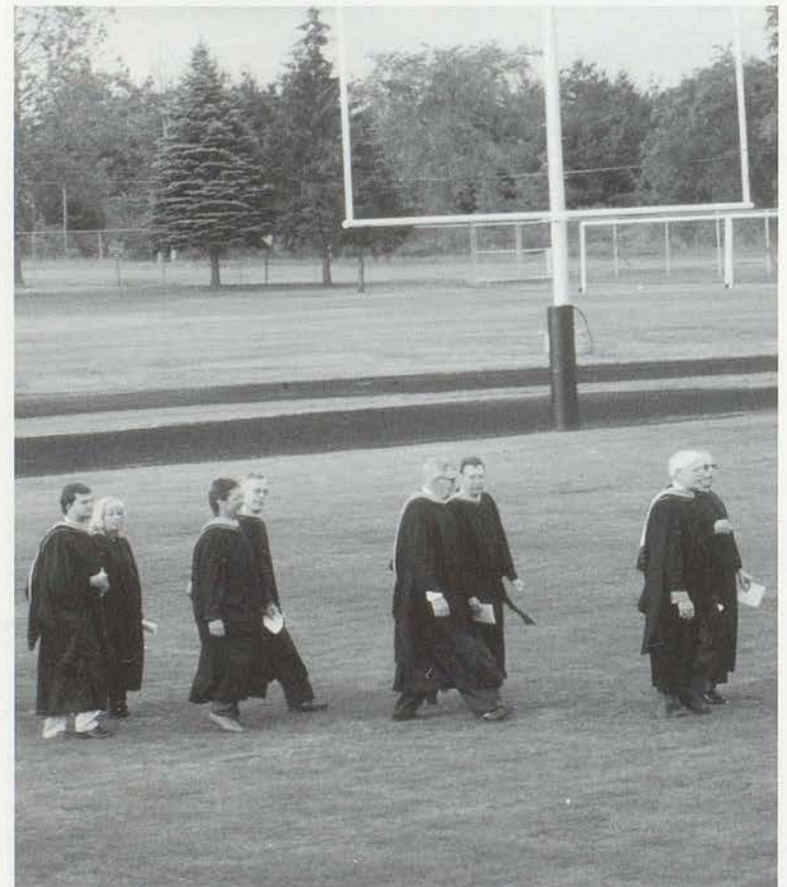

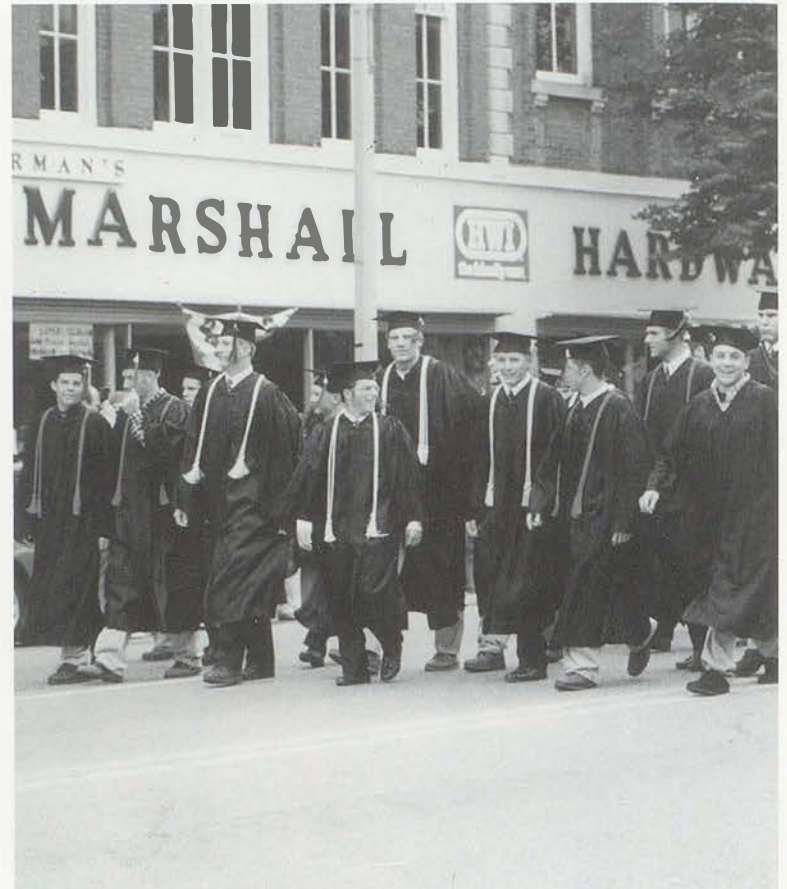

Actually I only heard good things from all the people I talked to. The only sad note was the thought of Assistant Principal Robert deBois leaving. Senior Terry Goodman conveyed, "He was a great person and the future classes will really be missing out on a great Assistant Principal." So from the band's selection of "Pomp and Circumstance" to their final walk down the track, the seniors went out in style.

Senior Jeremy Brown concentrates on not messing up. All seniors were just as self-conscious during the ceremony. "I just wanted to make it without falling," replied Jeremy when asked about it.

WE BAD!

Seniors John Thompson, Andy McCormack, Sean Kelly, Luke Peck, Andrew Neidlinger, Doug Searlers, Ryan Traver, Brad Bigelow, and Matt Sims strut their stuff during the Senior Parade through downtown. All the seniors were glowing with pride and shaking with nerves but managed to give huge smiles.

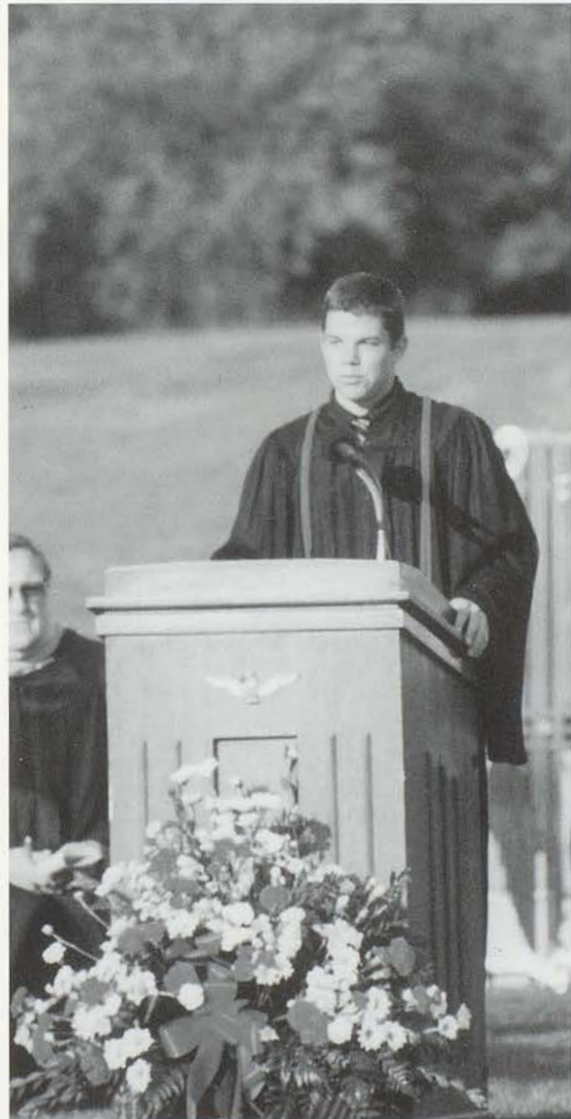

March! March!

Marshall High School teachers make their way to their seats before the seniors arrive. The different color hoods represent the teachers colleges and degrees.

Be civilized!

Speaker Christine Green gave the commencement address on civility or the lack of it in this country. Christine was a Marshall High School graduate in 1969 and now is a lawyer in Ann Arbor.

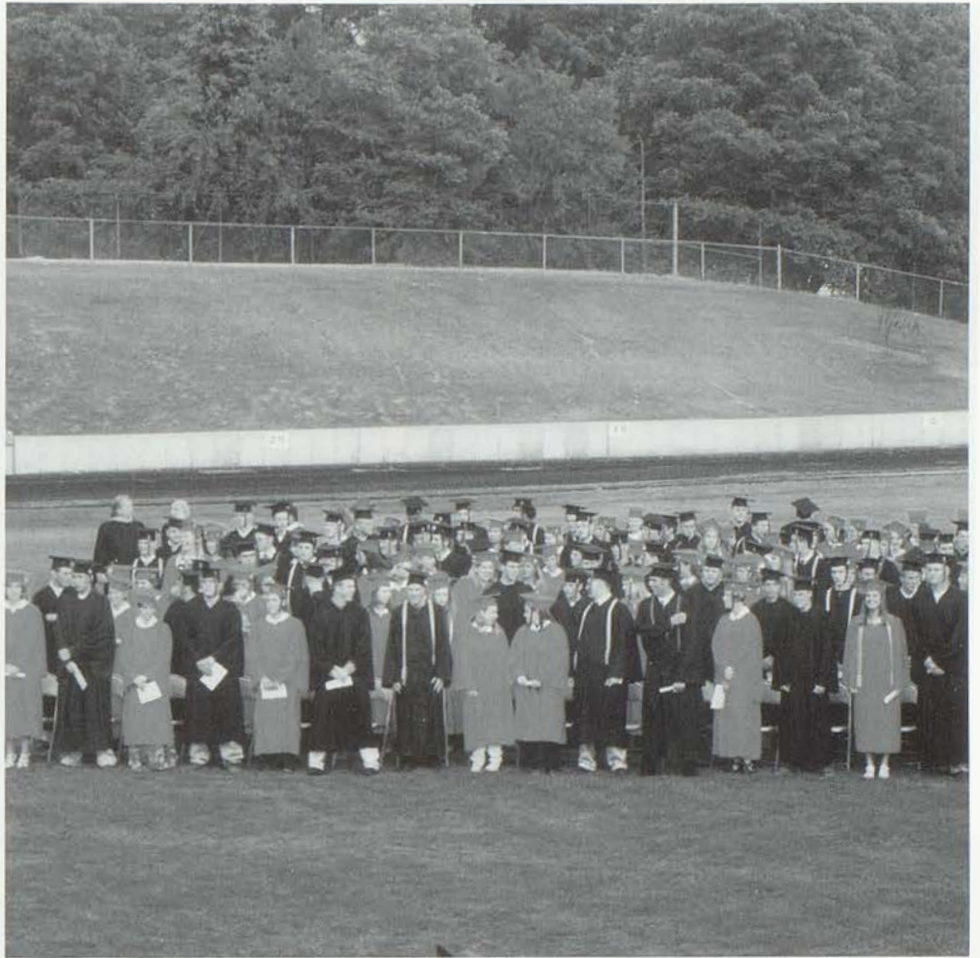

Time is on my side

Senior John Thompson speaks about time, throwing in famous cliches like "Time Flies," and "Time waits for no one."

Attention!

Seniors stand at attention while waiting for permission to be seated. Even though this was a formal affair the seniors still tried to be as casual as possible.

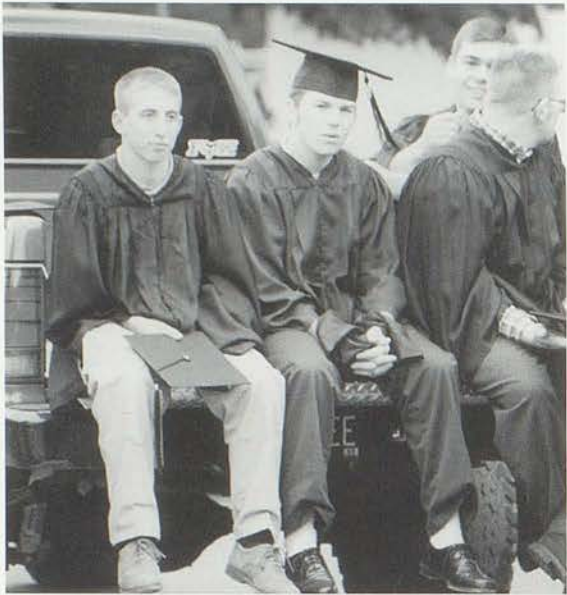

Bravo!!!

Marshall Public School staff applauded the seniors for a job well done. "The staff was really supportive," remarks senior Chris Johnson

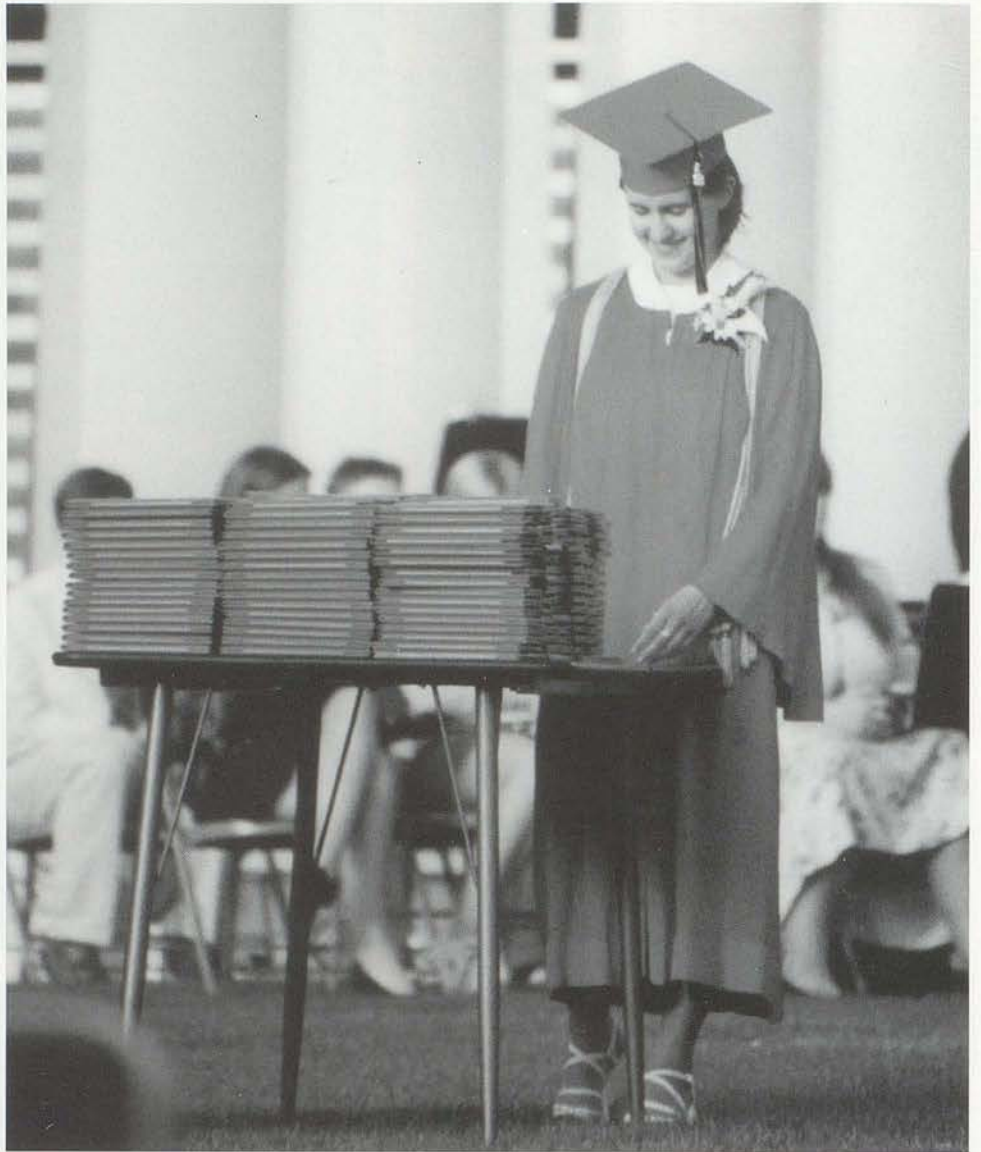

Ridin' along in my automobile

Jason Madry and Andy Fast won't conform to traditional ways. While most stand and chat before the ceremony these guys gave their legs a rest by popping a squat in the closest truck. They decided to crank the tunes and jam, while waiting for the ceremony to begin.

Tickled pink!

Anne Kellogg was introduced and embarrassed by Principal Ray Davis. She wouldn't allow him to tell of all her many activities and accomplishments, but he made it obvious that she was very involved and took a caring attitude toward our school.

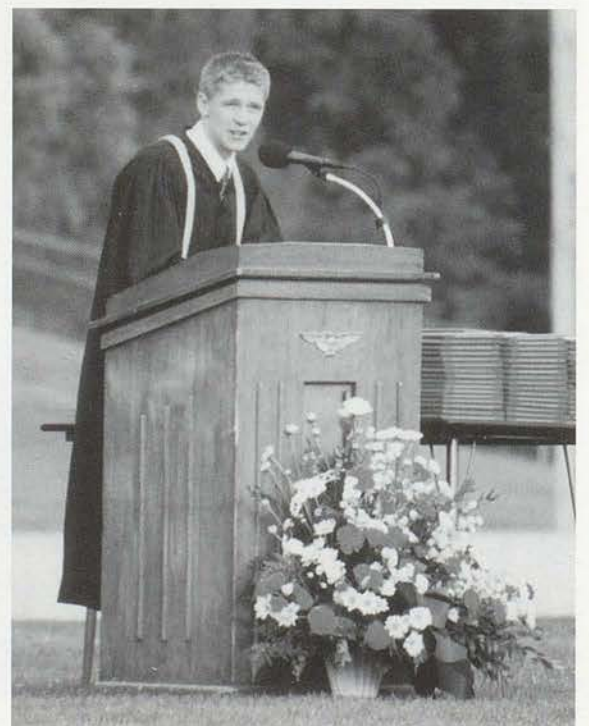

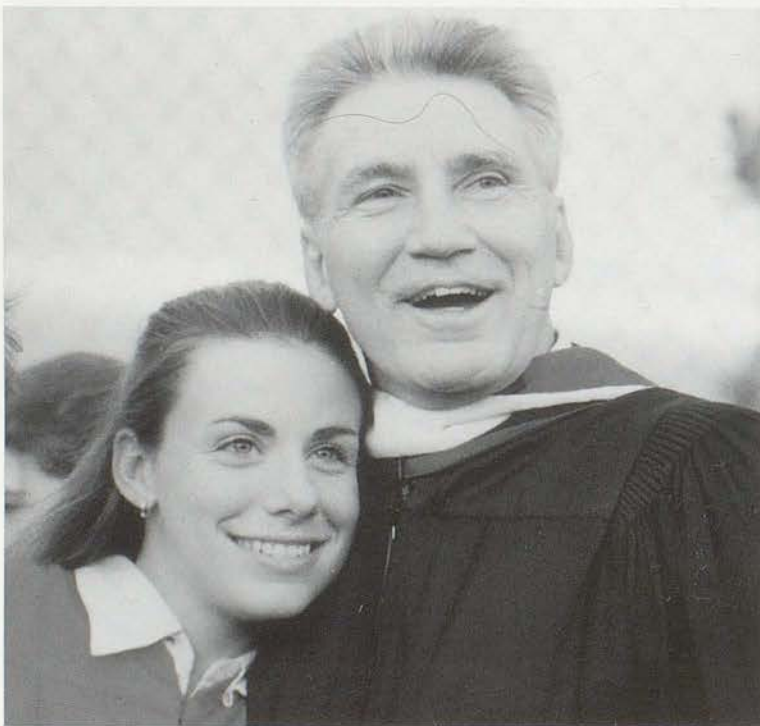

Striding in style

Katie Crowle saw the light at the tunnel. All of her hard work and dedication has finally paid off as she strolls to her seat with confidence and a feeling of resolution.

Daddy dearest

Educator Kevin McCauley congratulates his daughter, Brenna, for a long, hard journey now complete. Brenna and her father have shared many quality moments throughout her high school career, especially considering she was in his Seminar. They hug and try to hold on to this last day, so they can cherish the memories forever.

And for your listening pleasure ...

Jake Gates was the first class elected speaker to give his speech. His oration dealt with the importance of not only success, but more crucially happiness.

This is it

The moment of truth has come when the graduates are separated from the non-graduates. Congratulations Nick Dereski, you have made the grade. Nick can barely contain his excitement as he runs up and vigorously shakes Jeff Albaugh's hand.

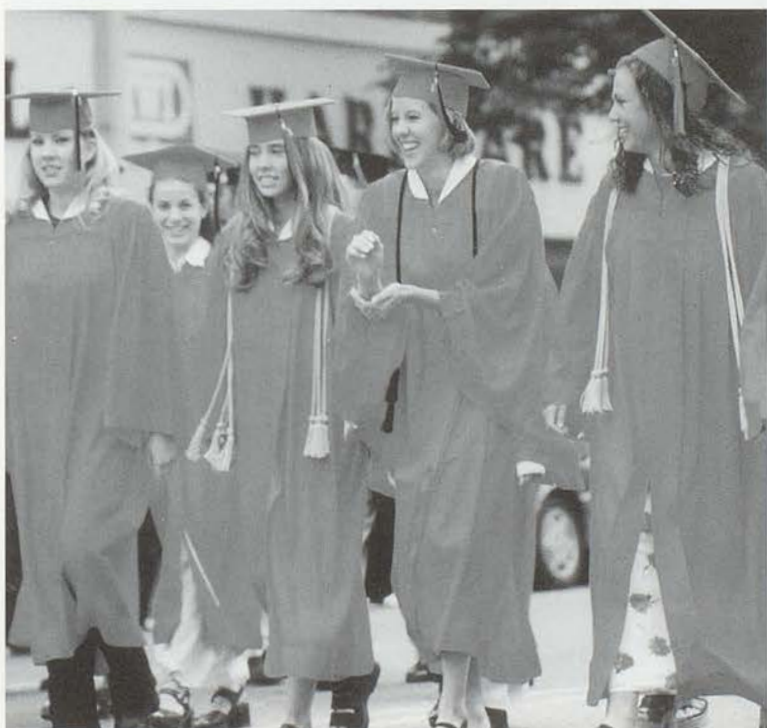

Boy, am I glad to see you!

Aaron Puff runs into the arms of his sweetie, Beth Kane. He's relieved to see someone familiar that he doesn't have to impress or be super polite with. "Hugging Beth," is a well known remedy to alleviate stress that they'll both vouch for.

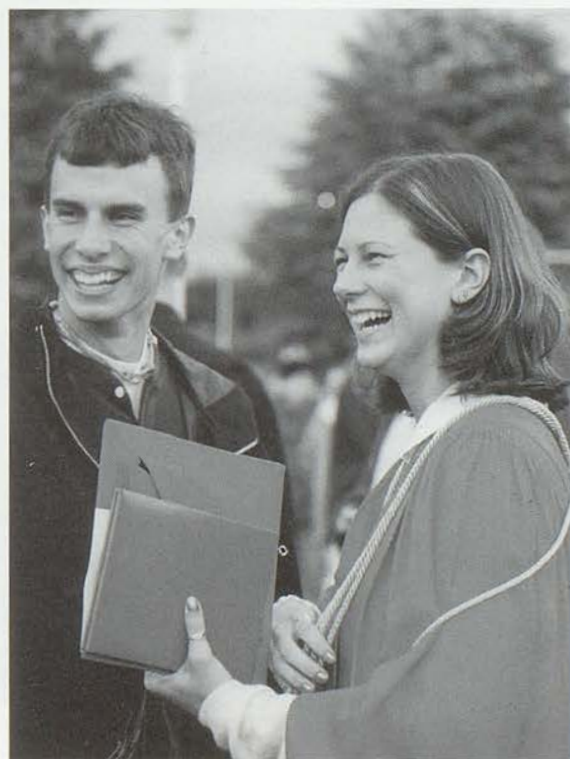

We Outta here

After a lengthy commencement, the seniors, now graduates, eagerly leap to their feet for a chance to stretch their legs and toss their mortar boards. The throwing of the hats symbolized a happy ending to a stressful week and goodbye to their years at M.H.S.

Parading around

Elysia Hecox and Jessi Fitch sauntered down the main street during the walk, and waved to their many admirers. Jessi laughs at a fan holding up an "I love you Jessi!" sign.

Smiling through her tears

Grad Jenny Skidmore laughs with former graduate Kris Tarkiewicz, while someone teases Jenny about her sensitivity. Jenny's feelings are bittersweet because even though she's glad to be done, she realizes how many people that she's going to miss.

"Fasten your seatbelts. It's going to be a bumpy ride."

Imagine spending your last night with the people you grew up with, the classmates you have known for nearly ten years. How would you want to spend your last night? How about spending it at the class party! The now graduated seniors were able to spend one last night as a class.

The class party, which is usually held at the high school, was held at Full Blast in Battle Creek. They were taken by bus to the party at about 11:30 Saturday night and returned at 6:30 the following morning. This year's theme was Men in Black and you could see neon green aliens throughout Full Blast.

The class of '98 could choose from a number of activities such as trying their luck in the casino, challenging friends in sumo wrestling, swimming in the indoor pool, playing laser tag, spending tokens in the arcade and eating all of the food they wanted. Yoko Shizuka, an exchange student from Japan said, "I had a great time at the class party. It was very fun for me to spend the night with the friends I made."

Near the end of the night prizes were awarded and everyone was taken back to Marshall. Senior Chris Brockman said, "I enjoyed the class party and I will remember this night for the rest of my life."

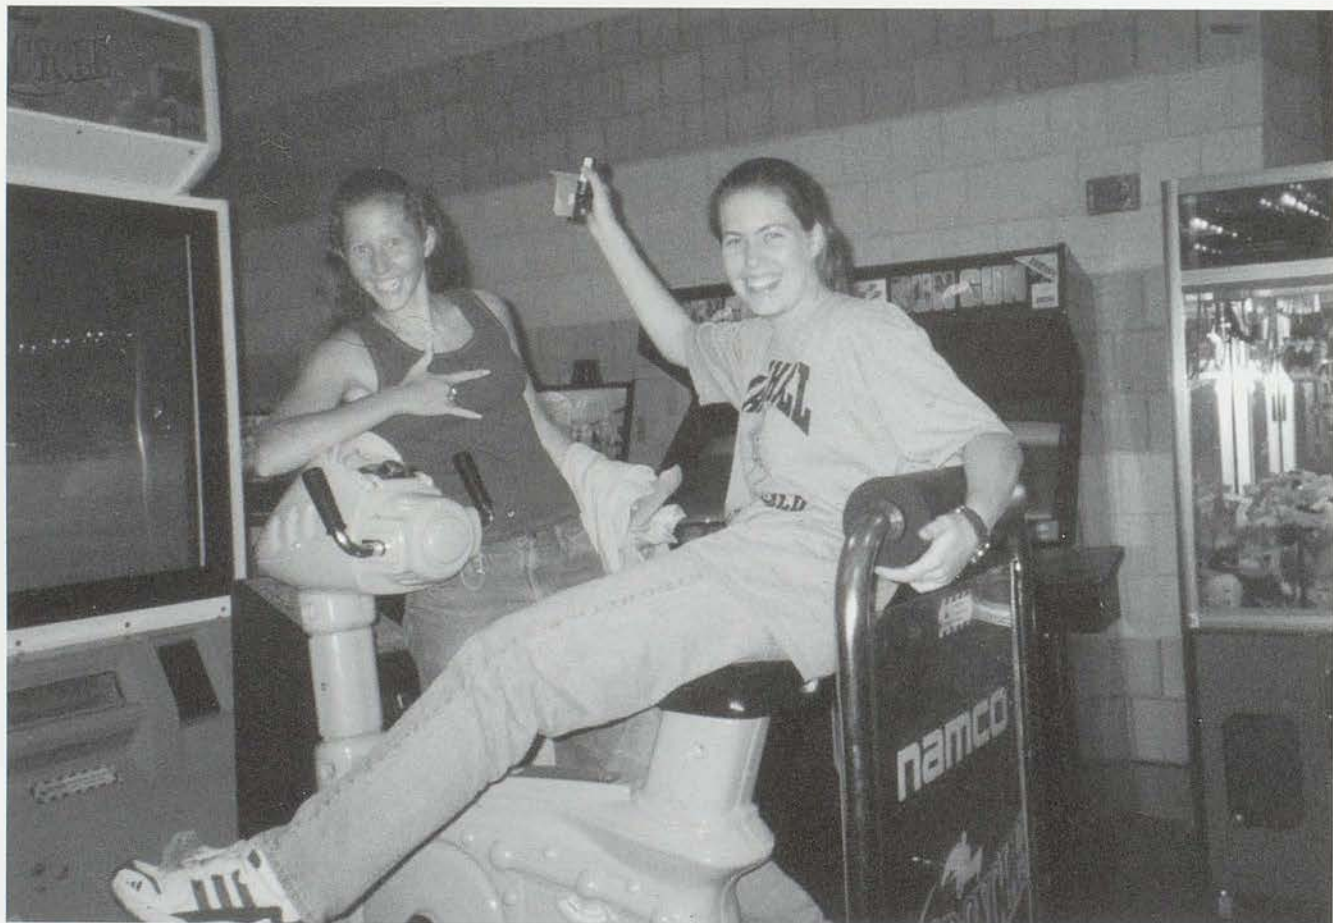

Riding the Tunnels

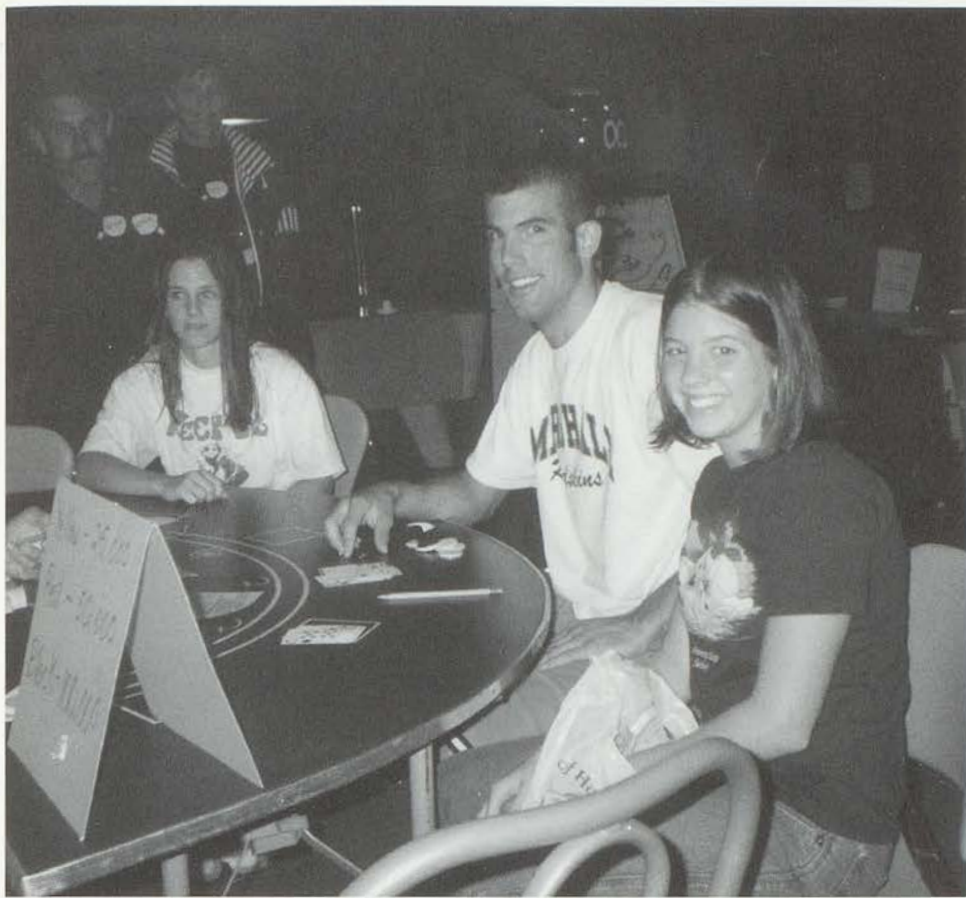

Dan Schroeder shows the skills he has on the water slides in the indoor pool. Several people took the chance to cool off in the pool after working hard on having fun.

We're so happy to be here

Jenny Kimerer and Shannon Tucker display their happiness for being at the party. Everyone looked as though they had enjoyed one of the last nights as a class.

We're feeling lucky

Jodi Rodgers and Brad Bigelow give a winning smile at the black jack table because they are doing so well. Maybe Tina Rewa's luck has run out at this table.

Shoot those aliens

Nick Dereski practices his shooting skills on one of the games in the arcade. Several people spent time trying all of the games in the arcade.

The temptation

Luke Peck, Andy McCormack and Ashley Trylick try to hold back the temptation of playing another game. Eventually they gave in and tried it just once.

I am king

Chris Brockman shows everyone he can beat anyone in sumo wrestling. The seniors were able to try sumo wrestling.

"There is always one moment in childhood when the door opens and lets the future in."

Always,
Mom and Bill

Ashley Trylick,
The Class with Class, a hard act to follow. Good, Better, Best. Never let it rest! Until your good is better, your better is your best!
Love,
Buff Daddy

John Turner,
Congratulations on a wonderful four years. We've been proud to be a part of it all. Don't forget the lessons that you have learned and the people who taught them to you. You're the best!
Love,
Mom and Dad

Lissy Rae (Umphey),
You make us all VERY proud of you. Continue to reach for the stars!
Love,
Dad, Mom, Jaime, Billy (and Poon)

Aaron Van Dusen
The person who said "Boys will be boys" forgot to add "Boys will be men." And what a fine man you've grown into. I'm very proud of you son and I know whatever you choose to do in life you'll do it well.
Love,
Mom

Ryan VanDyke,
Wow! What an exciting high school career. We are so proud. Looking forward to the next four exciting years.
Love always,
Your family

Crystal (Voght),
Dreams can come true ... That's our dream for you. We're proud of who you are, and lucky to be your parents.
Love,
Mom and Dad

Adam Burk Wilson,
We are so proud of the special person you have become. You mean so much to us. Work hard to make your dreams a reality and always be happy.
Our love and support always.
Mom, Dad, Noah and Joey

Kelly A. Winchester,
God gave us the ability to dream. We have to provide the courage and determination to make them come true.

Dear Phil (Wolk),
Keep focused and go after what you believe in.
Love,
Dad and Mom

Community Cash Comes to Marshall...

...A receipts for cash program designed to help local organizations in their fund raising efforts.

• Register Today help us say thanks to the Marshall Community

September 9, 1996

Dear Community or Civic Organization,

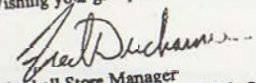

Carter's is pleased to announce that the Carter's Community Cash program is being extended to include the Carter's Big Valu store in Marshall.

On behalf of Carter's and Carter's Big Valu, I would like to take this opportunity to welcome you back to our Community Cash Program. Since the program's inception, Carter's has provided more than $2,000,000 to non profit organizations in the communities that we serve throughout the state. The following is a review of how our program works:

1. Any non profit group, church, school or civic organization can register at Carter's Big Valu.
2. As soon as your group is registered and qualified, you can begin saving all of your sales receipts from Carter's Big Valu. You will receive one percent (1%) of all qualified sales, excluding beer, wine cigaretes, sales tax and bottle deposits.
3. Turn your receipts over to your group's representative to be totaled and returned to the store's customer service counter.
4. The store manager will verify the amount, then send it into Carter's corporate office so a check can be issued to your group or organization.
5. Carter's Community Cash checks are issued once a month. All receipts turned in by the 10th of the month will be processed and the check will be ready to be picked up at the store on the 25th.

As a dedicated member of the community, Carter's is committed to supporting the groups and organizations that actively work to keep Marshall a great community to live in. If you have any questions or comments regarding the Community Cash program, please feel free to contact Fred Ducharme, Store Manager, or Cindy Jacobs, Marshall Community cash coordinator.

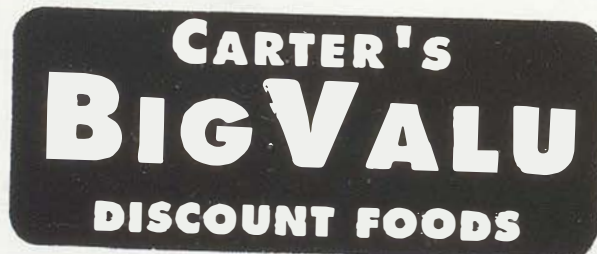

Wishing your group continued success.

"Gone but not forgotten."

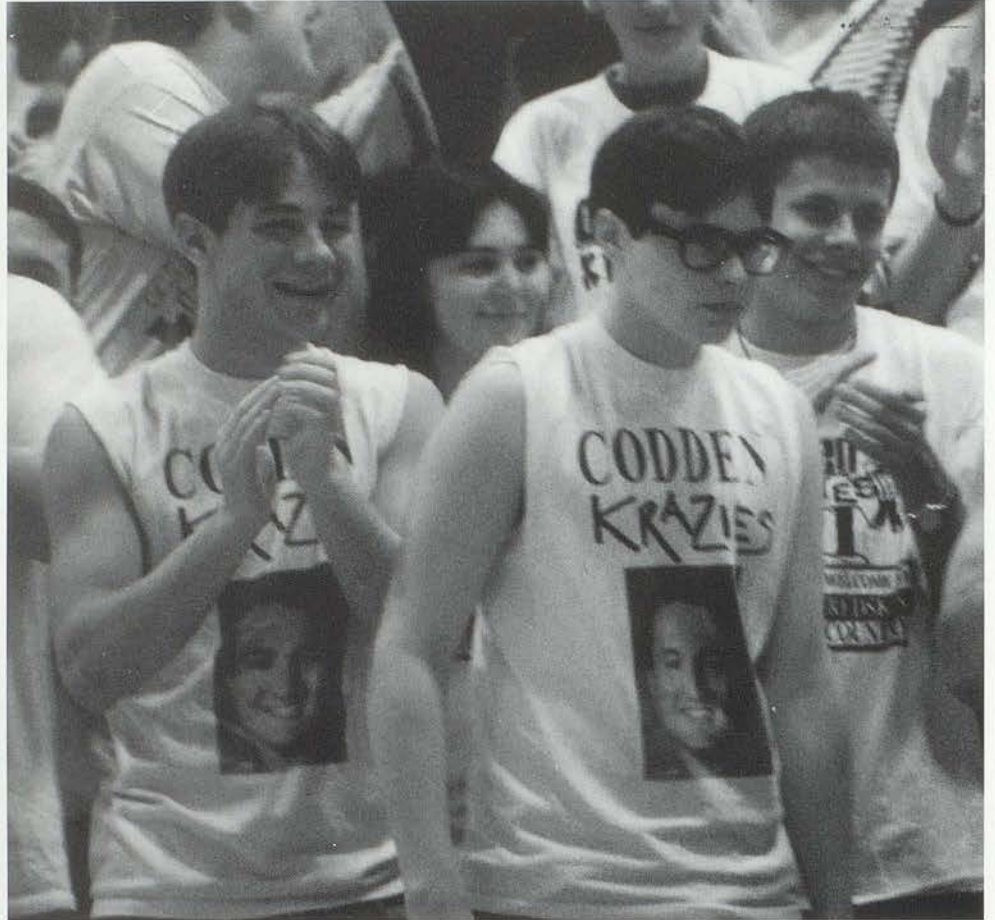

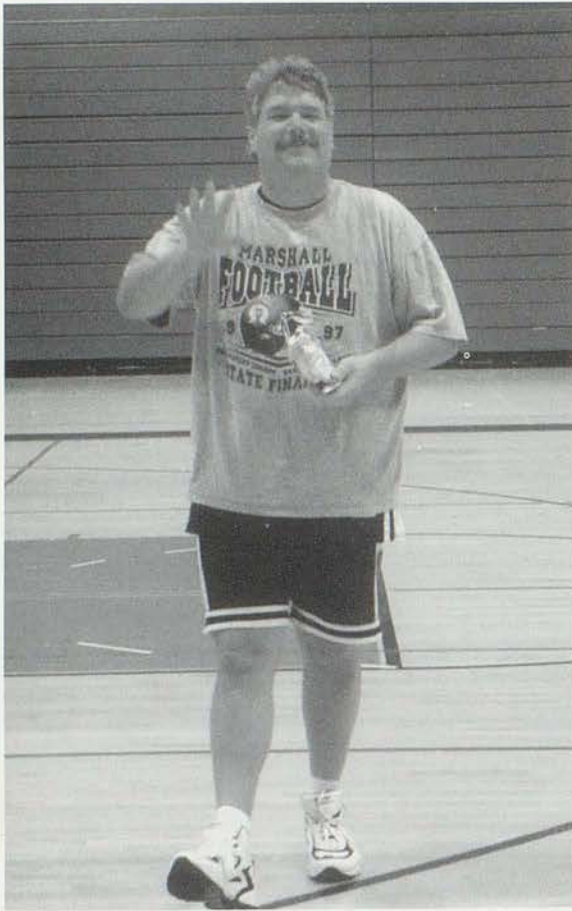

After 11 years at Marshall High School, Mr. Bob duBois chose the opportunity to move on. He accepted the position of Principal at St. Clair Shores Lakeview. His hard work and dedication has made him an important part of the Marshall High School family. Because he played the role not just of assistant principal but also counselor, teacher and friend, he will truly be missed.

As they did throughout the entire season, Krazies Adam "Vots" Kiebala, Kari Rozell and Brian Zalewski enthusiastically cheer on the basketball team for a "W." Rich Huggett, however, opts for the secret methods of X-Men leader Cyclops, shooting optic blasts out of his eyes to simply melt the competition. Now we know why he wears those glasses.

Mr. Jerry Triece, teacher of geometry and transitional mathematics, is on the verge of sweating bullets during warmups for the recent All Star basketball game. But, wait, is that a bag of chips in his hand? No, that must be the bag of tricks he used to give the All Star team fits all throughout the game. Mr. Triece certainly was a key player for the team of "old guys," using his strategical smarts and devious ways to come up with many clever and quick ideas to trick the other team. The referees didn't even notice that quite often they had six players on the court, thanks to Mr. Triece and the diversions he created.

Greg Rasher takes a breather to spend some Q.T. with his pumpkin on Halloween. When Greg was a young lad, his mom planted a pumpkin patch every year so he could wait with his friend, Linus, for the Great Pumpkin to visit. Greg feels fairly certain that this is the reason for his love of pumpkins.

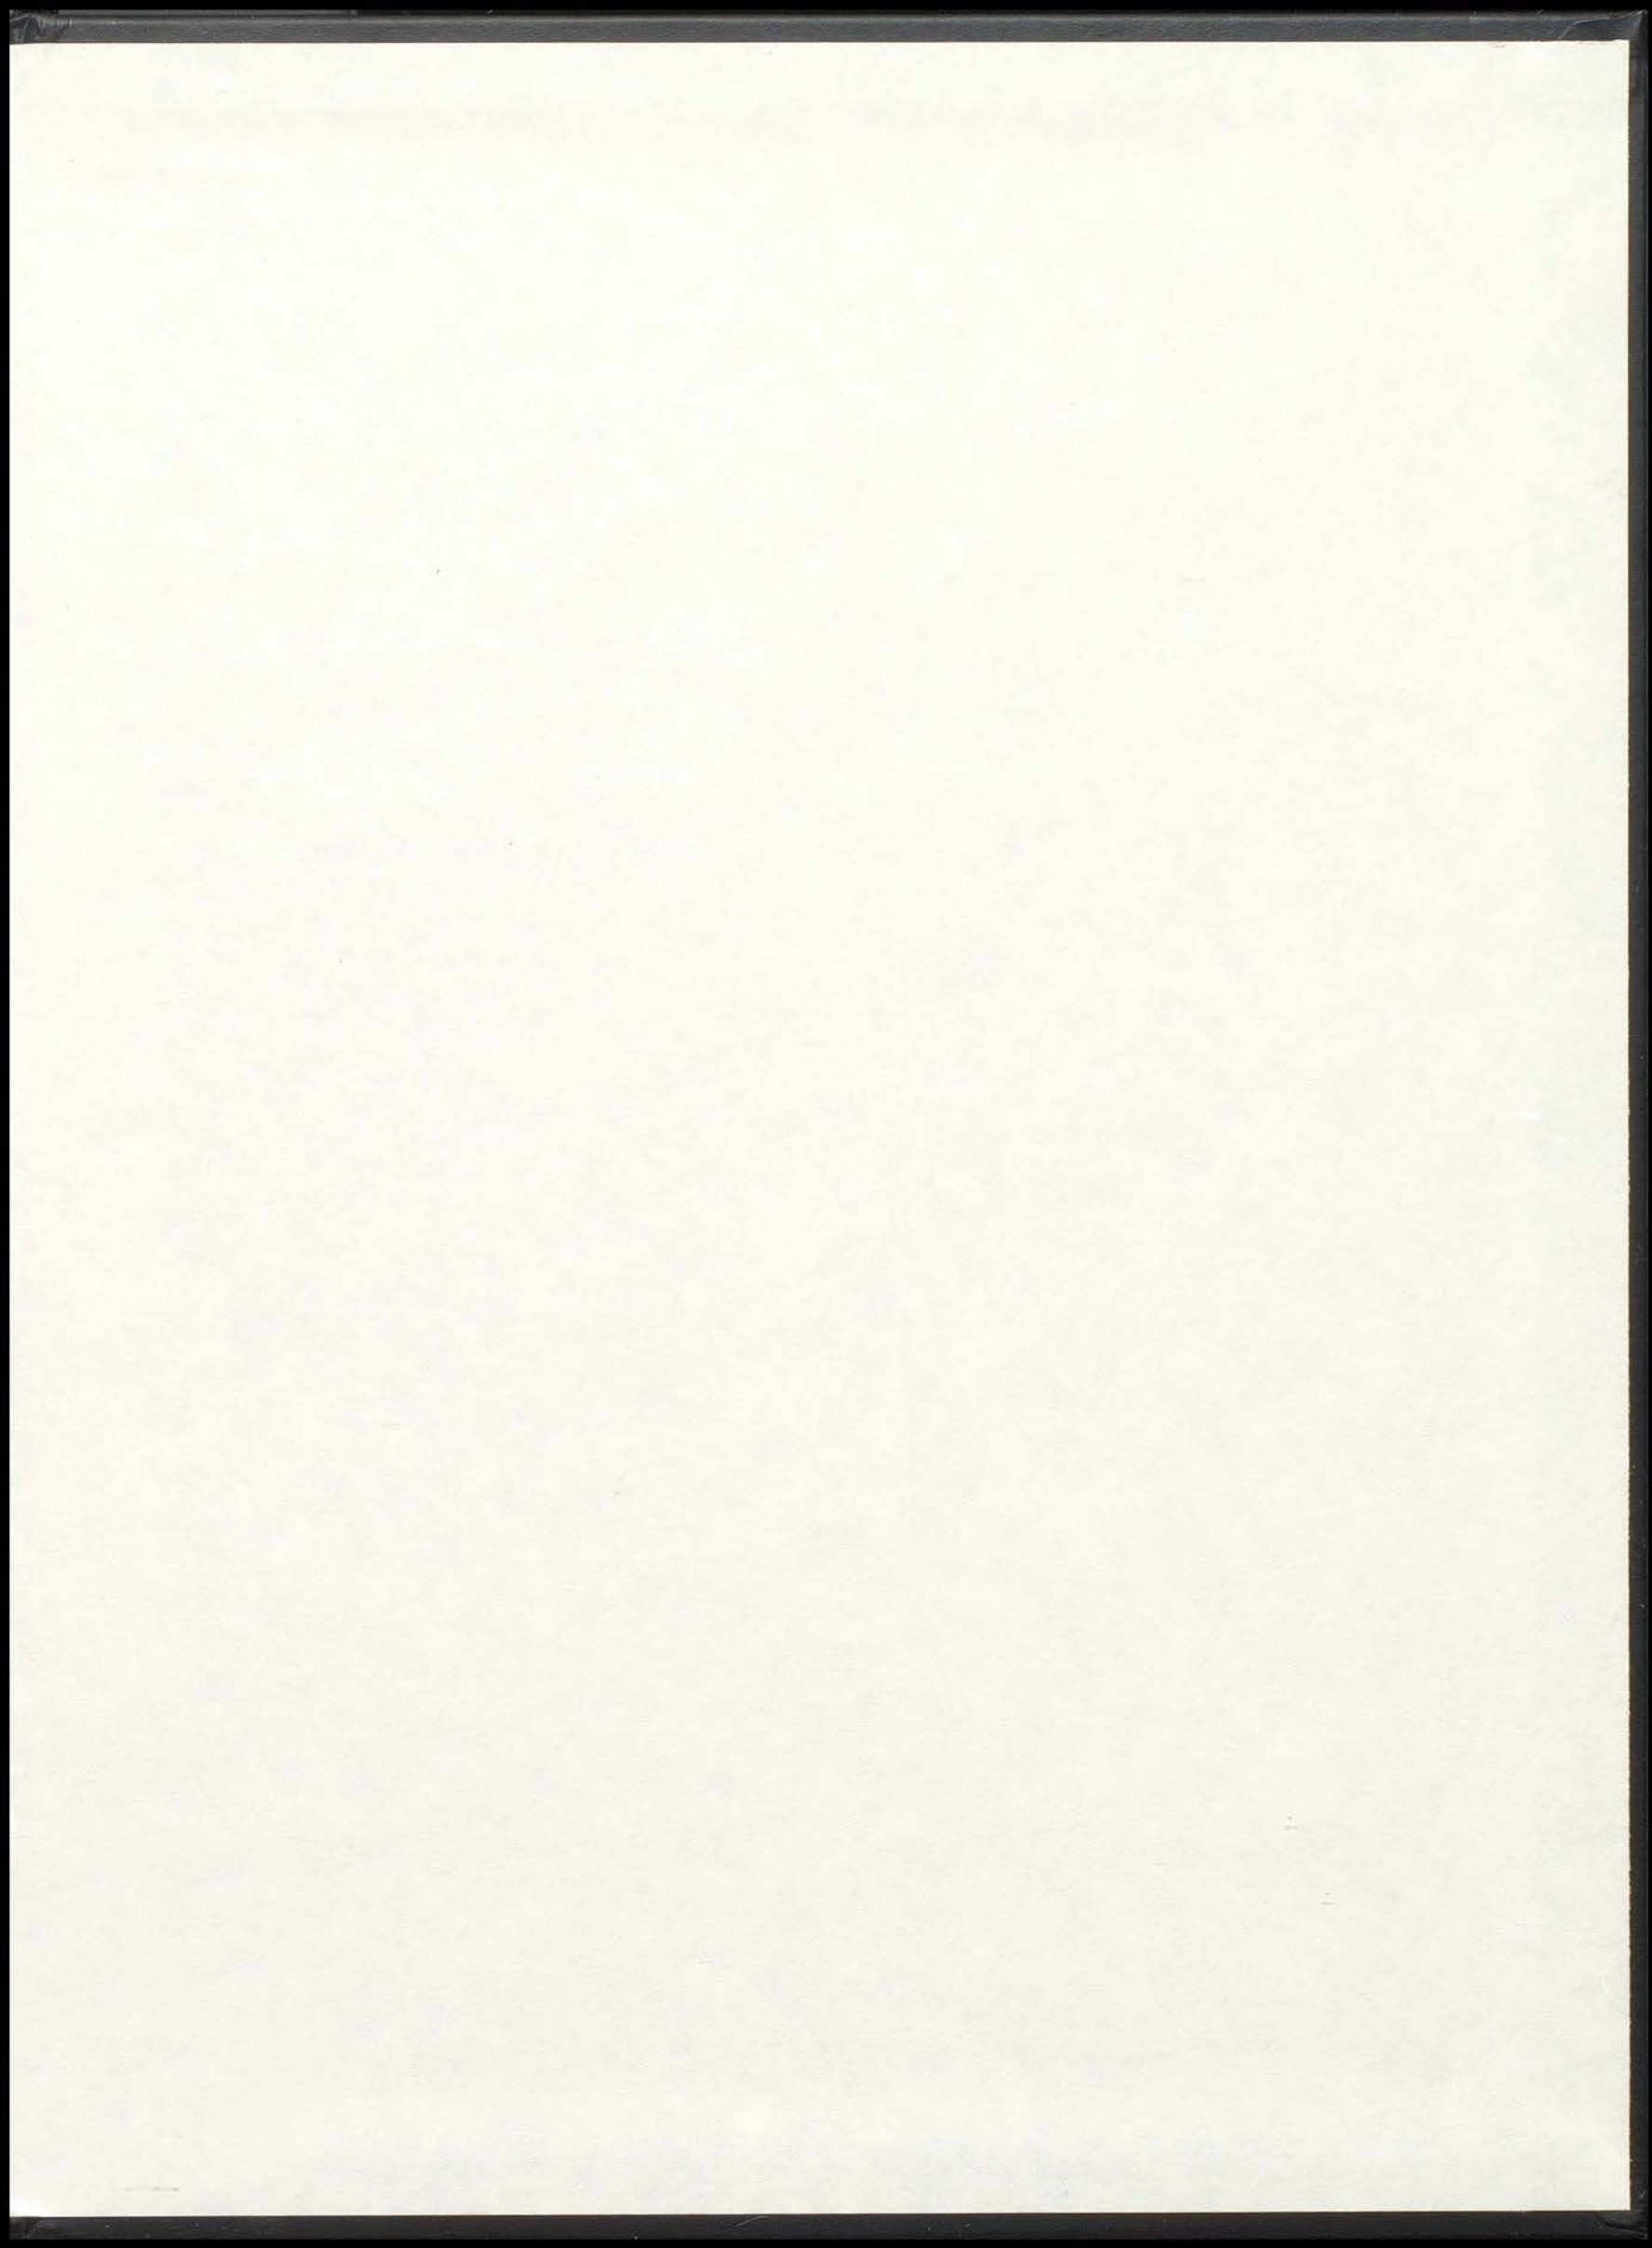

Do, or do not. There is no 'try'.
Chad Hile, star member of Mrs. Edward's Chemistry class, devotes his efforts to his Bunsen burner bearing this advice he received from Yoda. According to Mrs. Edwards, Chad is an extremely diligent and careful executor of assignments.
